Rain, Snow Flurries and Cold Add to Misery of Persons in Open in England, Holland and Belgium.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 3 (AP)—Grim and weary searchers on both sides of the English channel and the North Sea pushed the total known dead in Europe's greatest storm and flood disaster in centuries above the 1500 mark today in Holland, England and Belgium.

Additional bodies by the hundreds were reported from Dutch villages isolated by the sea waters that rushed in some places 40 miles inland. Rain, snow flurries and near-freezing temperatures added to the horror for thousands still huddled on rooftops or high ground for the third day without food, water or medicines.

This was the latest count of the dead, from official reports and reliable unofficial sources:
Holland, 991.
England, 536.
Belgium, 22.
Total, 1549.

Relief Measures.

Relief measures were under way on a vast scale. Lt. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, United States commander in chief in Europe, ordered in 300,000 sandbags, 30,000 spades, six helicopters, 15 slow planes, 200 amphibious "ducks," landing craft, and numerous specialists. Many other units were alerted to move in when needed.

NATO's air force headquarters at Fontainebleau, France, dispatched a trailer-truck convoy of supplies and communications specialists to repair the flood-ripped telephone and telegraph lines. A United States Air Force airlift was readied to carry medicines and other supplies. French engineers already were at work.

Two Areas Hardest Hit.

The Zeeland section of southwest Holland and the Thames estuary of southeast England were the chief centers of death, destruction and misery wrought by the hurricane-fanned giant waves and tides which crashed inland over the weekend, smashing everything in their path.

Many sections of Holland still were isolated. Early today, 48 hours after the disaster struck, word finally reached Amsterdam that 200 persons had drowned in the village of Stavenisse.

An exhausted messenger from the burgomaster of Oude Tonge told of 180 corpses piled high in a shed on the joined islands of Goeree and Over Flakkee. The same messenger said 1500 persons had spent their third night on an open dike, in sleet and snow, without water or medicine.

Another 70 persons were missing from the village of Stellendam, on the same island.

The burgomasters of the villages of Oosterland and Bruinisse pleaded by radio for amphibious planes or helicopters to make a quick rescue of their 3877 residents. The officials said that if aid is not rushed there will be a big loss of life.

Dutch officials could make no accurate estimate of the missing or homeless. A thousand square miles of The Netherlands were estimated flooded—most of the 23 islands of Zeeland and south Holland and some of the world's richest soil. More than 50 Dutch cities, towns and villages had reported deaths so far.

5 Feet of Water.

From the submerged Dutch island of Schouwen-Duiveland an official radioed early today that the "number of deaths is not estimated." The town of Zierikzee

MESSAGES BY EISENHOWER EXPRESS SYMPATHY OVER EUROPE'S FLOOD DISASTER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP) PRESIDENT EISENHOWER yesterday sent messages to Queen Elizabeth of England, Queen Juliana of The Netherlands and King Badouin I of Belgium expressing sympathy in the disaster caused by flood and storms.

The United States, meanwhile, is considering making available to The Netherlands government part of a $300,000,000 foreign aid fund to help flood victims. The State Department is discussing release of the money with the Mutual Security Agency.

The sum represents "counterpart" funds set aside by The Netherlands to match dollar grants received from the United States for projects in line with Western European recovery and rearmament programs. The Netherlands would have to request use of the funds for flood recovery before the money could be turned over, officials said.

3 MEN WHO KILLED WILD GEESE WITH DYNAMITE SOUGHT

Three men who used dynamite to kill geese, after luring the birds by spreading feed for them, were being sought today by state conservation agents.

About 30 blue and snow geese were killed a week ago by the dynamite charge, set off on a sand bar in the Missouri river near Augusta in Franklin county.

A witness observed the men spreading feed for the birds for several days beforehand, attracting a larger flock each time. When the geese became accustomed to the feeding place, the dynamite was placed on a box in the center of their feeding ground and exploded from a distance, the witness said.

The men put the geese in a motorboat, which headed for Augusta, it was reported.

BRITAIN'S HIGHEST AWARD SOUGHT FOR YANK FLOOD HERO

HUNSTANTON, England, Feb. 3 (AP)—People in this battered Norfolk sea resort want England to honor Reis Leming, 6-foot 3-inch American hero of the weekend flood disaster.

The town council sena a letter to the government today telling how Airman 3-C Leming snatched 27 persons from the wind-whipped tidal wave which swept in from the North sea. Leming, of Toppenish, Wash., formerly lived in East St. Louis, Ill.

Said council chairman R. S. Mudie: "As I told the Queen during her visit yesterday, we do not think the George Cross is too high an award for what this man did. He is a stranger among us yet time and again he risked his life to save others."

Leming, 22 years old, was careful to keep his feet firmly on the ground as he pushed a rubber raft to haul survivors across chin-high flood waters. He explained why: "I can't swim."

WAGE AND SALARY BOARD STAFFS OUT OF JOBS MARCH 5

2000 Affected, but Skeleton Groups Will Be Kept Until Law Expires April 30.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower's death sentence for wage and price control brought dismissal notices today to all 1700 employes of the Wage Stabilization Board and the 310 workers of the Salary Stabilization Board.

The discharge slips are effective March 5, in Washington and in field offices across the country.

Some workers—a "very small percentage," said a spokesman—will be given reprieves for a month or two, to provide skeleton staffs until April 30 when the price-wage control legislation expires.

Eisenhower told Congress in his State of the Union message yesterday that he does not want price or wage ceilings extended. The emergency agencies are interpreting his words to mean that they should be completely out of business by that date.

Meantime, skeleton staffs will clean up pending enforcement cases, dispose of agency property and prepare historical records.

A salary board spokesman said pending enforcement cases will be completed but no new investigations of violations will be begun.

The wage board ordered its regional offices to stop processing wage adjustment petitions. It said that firms could still file the petitions but none would be handled pending further instructions from the White House.

The Office of Price Stabilization, which has been stripped from 12,200 to 4300 in the last seven months, is expected to accelerate its layoffs.

About 60 per cent of the OPS employes are in Washington, the rest in field offices. The wage board employes are about two-thirds in the field, the rest in Washington.

Similar blanket dismissal notices went to the 10 or 12 workers of the railroad and airline wage board.

James Powers, St. Louis field representative of the Wage Stabilization Board, is the federal agency's only employe in this area. He had received no notice of dismissal today. The WSB regional office is in Kansas City. The Salary Stabilization Board has no employes in St. Louis.

BLAST ON BRITISH CARRIER OFF MALTA, ONE MAN LOST

Explosion Occurs in Hangar; Several Other Crew Members Reported Injured.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (UP)—The Admiralty announced today that an explosion had occurred in a hangar aboard the 23,000-ton British aircraft carrier Indomitable off Malta in the Mediterranean.

One man was reported lost overboard and several other crew members were reported injured.

Queen Turned Back on Flood Tour By Guard's 'Keep Out, Sightseers'

SNETTISHAM BEACH, England, Feb. 3 (AP)—"Keep out, it's no place for sightseers," said a special constable who stopped a station wagon entering this flood-ravaged community Sunday.

So Elizabeth II, Queen of England, and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, who were in the station wagon, ordered the chauffeur to turn about, and get out.

The constable, who hadn't recognized the Queen, was embarrassed when told today he had turned back the Queen.

The Queen saw a great deal on her tour and learned firewood was the chief need of the sufferers. She ordered that wood be sent from her Sandringham estate and truckloads were being delivered today.

R. S. Mudie, chairman of the council of Hunstanton, where several American were drowned, sent the Queen a telegram saying that her visit there had been "a source of inspiration."

STATE EMPLOYE'S HUSBAND SOLD $75,000 IN FEED TO STATE LAST YEAR

By JAMES A. KEARNS JR.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3—Oliver Leach, whose wife worked in the state purchasing agent's office until she was fired last month after Phil M. Donnelly became Governor, enjoyed singular success last year in bidding on sales of stock feed for state institutions, inquiry by the Post-Dispatch disclosed today.

Leach sold more than $75,000 worth of feed to the state. He failed to get the contract only 19 out of 93 instances in which he submitted bids in 1952, records here show.

On a number of occasions his bid was the only one filed. Frequently, when other bids were submitted, Leach was low by only a few dollars, even on sales running more than $1000.

In Charge of 'Bid List' Room.

Mrs. Leach helped in tabulating bids and was in charge of the "bid list" room during four years Leo J. Clavin served as state purchasing agent. Clavin, appointed to the post by former Gov. Forrest Smith, a close friend, was promptly removed by Gov. Donnelly the day after he took office.

Edgar C. Nelson, named by Gov. Donnelly to replace Clavin, fired Mrs. Leach the day he assumed his duties. He would not comment on the reason for her dismissal.

In 1951 the Post-Dispatch disclosed that Clavin, had awarded Leach a contract for sale of wastepaper for $9 a ton at a time when other dealers who were not invited to bid said they would have bid $17 to $18.

Clavin told a Post-Dispatch reporter he saw nothing strange in the fact the Mrs. Leach helped to tabulate bids while her husband was seeking state contracts, or that she was in charge of the room where lists of prospective bidders on various items were kept.

"No Way to Affect Bids."

"She had no way in the world to affect those bids," Clavin said. "They were received under seal in another room and kept in a locked cabinet until time to open them. Another employe had charge of this cabinet."

The other employe, named by Clavin, also was fired promptly by Nelson when he took office.

Leach, who operates a truck line, obtained stock feed contracts last year for at least 11 state institutions in various parts of Missouri, including the St. Louis Training School, seven hospitals and three penal establishments. Several state institutions have dairy herds. Some, like the penitentiary here, also have beef herds and hogs.

Last March 24 Leach received a $2312 order for delivery of feed to a penal institution. The file in the purchasing agent's office here shows no bids filed at all, but simply contains the name of Leach's firm typed on the bottom of a requisition form.

Another order, dated last Aug. 21, calling for delivery of $2250 in cattle feed to the same institution, included only a bid by Leach.

Leach also had a $2120 order for a state hospital in which he apparently was the only bidder.

Competitive Bidding Required.

Competitive bidding is required by law for purchases by state institutions and, when the estimate is more than $2000, there must be advertising for bids. However, advertising is not necessary if the estimated cost is under $2000.

In three instances in which Leach received contracts of $2000 or more, there were no advertisements. In one case, the file indicated an estimate of $1850. The files on the other two did not show clearly if an estimate was made.

Leach, whose bids almost without exception were written in pencil, sometimes barely beat out his competitors. Once he took a $1218 bid by a $3 margin. On a smaller order, involving two items, his offer of $765 was just $2.75 below the next in line. His edge in other instances included $9 on a $1550 bid, $12 on $1200, and $8 on $1293.

Clavin, when asked to explain why Leach on several occasions was the only bidder, with no indication in the file that others had been invited to submit offers, said bids often were solicited by telephone if the requisition was of emergency nature.

"If Leach gave us the low figure, he got the order," Clavin asserted. "Sometimes, too, if more of a certain item was required on which bids had just been received, we just gave the order to the man who had submitted the low bid the first time. He was sure to be low again."

Mrs. Leach began working in the purchasing agent's office about six months before Clavin assumed his post. Clavin said that during his four years in office he kept her at the same work she was doing when he took over.

However, Clavin's predecessor, William L. Smith, said Mrs. Leach served only as a typist and did not handle bids in any fashion.

EDEN SAYS FORMOSA DECISION WILL HAVE UNFORTUNATE REPERCUSSIONS; CHIANG HAILS EISENHOWER'S STEP

SAYS FREE CHINA WON'T ASK FOR GROUND FORCE AID BY OTHER NATIONS

Generalissimo Makes No Mention of Air and Naval Support but It Is Believed He Would Welcome It.

TAIPEH, Formosa, Feb. 3 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek tonight hailed President Eisenhower's decision to lift the bar on Chinese Nationalist operations against the Red mainland as "not only judicious but militarily and morally sound."

In a formal statement, however, Chiang gave no hint of any impending action against the Communists.

He said his own plan of action will "necessarily form an important link in the general plan of the free world to combat worldwide Communism."

He said the Nationalists will not ask for ground forces of other nations to help "achieve our own goal—the liberation of China."

"China has never made such an appeal, nor has China ever cherished such illusions," he said.

But he did not mention air or naval support, and observers here thought it was implicit in his statement that he would welcome air and sea support.

Plea for Support.

Chiang said Eisenhower's decision to free the Nationalists for action against the long China coastline should have "the unanimous sspport of all freedom-loving peopies who realize the danger of Communist aggression and are prepared to resist it."

The leader of Free China said he had opposed the shackles imposed on his forces by the United States Seventh Fleet ever since the Chinese Reds intervened in the Korean war in Novmber 1950.

"During the past two years," he asserted, "Soviet Russia and the puppet Peiping regime have stepped up their aggressive actions and have thus made themselves the common enemy of the United Nations. It is time that we recognize that both in principle and in fact the . . . limitation on the operations of our armed forces should no longer be allowed to continue."

Chiang's statement reflected the general air of satisfaction here with the latest United States move.

K. C. Wu, Governor of Formosa, declared, "It's the first time since the beginning of the cold war that the initiative has been taken from the Communists."

Newspapers, however, took special pains to emphasize that—while the future now might be brighter—the responsibilities of the Nationalists would be heavier and still greater hardships and sacrifices will have to be borne.

Commando Raids Expected.

Stepped-up commando and possibly air raids on the Red China coast in which Nationalist troops based on Formosa would take part was expected to be one of the first results of the policy switch.

The new policy would permit reinforcement and supply of Gen. Li Mi's 10,000 to 15,000 troops who have held out on the Burma border area of southwest China since the collapse of Nationalist armies on the mainland in late 1949.

Li Mi's activities have aroused British trepidations in the past. One year ago the United States Department turned down a British suggestion that a United Nations mission investigate the activities of Chinese Nationalist guerrillas in Burma.

Li, former Governor of Yunnan, welded a three-column striking force from remnants of the old Nationalist Eighth Army and Ninety-third Division. Their activities drew protests from Burma.

Immediate Effects Doubted.

Observers in Tokyo said it seemed doubtful that the removal of the Seventh Fleet patrol, which consisted of two destroyers with a third in reserve and a seaplane tender, would in any way alter the Korean war immediately. Nor was it expected to divert any possible movement of Red Chinese troops from Korea, Indochina or Malaya.

It was pointed out that the Reds have had ample opportunity to bolster their coastal defenses with Russian-made radar controlled anti-aircraft guns and long-range coastal guns.

Red China's army, estimated at more than 4,000,000, has ample manpower and the baring of the 2000-mile coast to possible attack could bring thousands of Communist troops into the area without pinching Red forces elsewhere, wrote Correspondent Olen Clements from Tokyo.

Besides their 50,000-man navy the Nationalists are believed to have an army of 400,000 men, an air force of 80,000 and about 50,000 service troops.

DULLES SAID TO HAVE WON OVER FRANCE ON FORMOSA

Assurances Also Given of U.S. Co-operation in Europe's Welfare — Secretary and Stassen Go to London From Paris.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles came to London today after his visit to Paris, where he gave assurances to French Government leaders which were reported to have won their agreement with the new American policy in Formosa.

Dulles and Mutual Security Administrator Harold E. Stassen are on a seven-country fact-finding tour of Europe. They plan to be in the British capital 42 hours and will talk with Prime Minister Churchill, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler.

Dulles stressed in a statement to reporters that he comes "to establish personal contact" with British leaders. "We look forward to happy and useful talks together," he added.

Dulles arrived in London at a moment of considerable tension in British-American relations. Much of the British press today expressed editorial concern at the Eisenhower policy and Eden followed this with a statement of concern in the House of Commons.

Dulles and Stassen, before leaving Paris, held final conferences with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme Allied commander in Europe, and officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and the Organization for European Economic Co-operation.

In a speech to a formal NATO council session, Dulles said the United States looks on NATO as a "great and growing force for the peace and security of the world."

An OEEC spokesman said Dulles promised that no bilateral economic decision would be taken with any European country without consulting others in the organization.

These were general assurances of American co-operation in Europe's protection and economic welfare.

Dulles also told NATO that it was important to bring West Germany into the proposed six-nation European army. He said the European defense treaty now awaiting ratification is the only practicable formula for getting Western Germans into the European army.

After their talk with Ridgway and his chief assistants, Dulles termed their report "encouraging" but added, "much remains to be done."

BRITAIN 3 TIMES VOICED CONCERN OVER U.S. MOVE, COMMONS IS TOLD

Secretary Asserts Action Will Cause Political Reverberations Without Compensating Military Advantages.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today Britain feels the United States decision on Formosa will have "unfortunate politica' repercussions without compensating military advantages."

Eden disclosed Britain had brought two main points to the attention of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles:

1. That the change in the United States policy of keeping Formosa neutralized would have "unfortunate political repercussions"—which he did not name.

2. That the British Government hopes the United States has no intention of allowing its neutralization policy to go by the board.

The Foreign Secretary added: "What we do not yet know and we should be wise to suspend judgment about is what action if any will follow this decision."

Eden addressed the House of Commons at almost the same time Dulles was arriving in London from Paris for conferences.

Eden Tells of Concern.

Eden said Britain at three different times had expressed concern to the United States over the change in policy.

The leader of the Labor party's left-wing group, Aneurin Bevan, asked Eden to check with Dulles whether the United States will go on supplying arms to Chiang Kai-shek's forces. That, he asserted, would create "a grave situation."

Eden replied: "I should have thought that the statement I gave of the representations we have made . . . has made it quite plain what were the British Government's views."

Another Laborite, Reginald T. Paget, said any spread of fighting into the Formosan channel would endanger the British island colony of Hong Kong. He asked:

"If the American fleet is not going to keep the peace there, will the Foreign Secretary consider ordering another fleet to keep the peace and guard our interests?"

Eden said that in view of Dulles's presence in Britain and of the "not inconsiderable delicacy between ourselves and America" on the question, he hoped Parliament would show "some reticence in further comment."

Statement by Eden.

"The President of the United States announced yesterday in the State of the Union message that the United States Seventh Fleet, which has been enforcing the neutralization of Formosa since the outbreak of the Korean war, would no longer be employed to prevent Chinese Nationalist attacks against the mainland of China.

"Her Majesty's Government were informed in advance by the United States Government and at once made known their concern at this decision, which they feared would have unfortunate political repercussions without compensating military advantages. This continues to be the view of Her Majesty's Government.

"It is important, however, to keep this matter in its correct proportion and perspective.

'Unilateral Act of Policy.'

"The neutralization of Formosa was a unilateral act of policy, with which Her Majesty's Government was not associated. It was made before Chinese intervention in the Korean war.

"President Eisenhower has now decided that 'there is no longer any logic or sense in a condition that required the United States to assume defensive responsibilities on behalf of the Chinese Communists.'

"He has therefore issued instructions 'that the Seventh Fleet no longer be employed to shield Communist China.'

"'This order,' Mr. Eisenhower went on to say, 'implies no aggressive intent on our part.'

"The step announced is in consequence of a unilateral decision by the United States administration to amend a unilateral decision taken by their predecessors."

Former Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison, who is acting leader of the labor party, asked for a full scale debate on Formosa in particular and the Far Eastern situation in general next Thursday. Churchill's government agreed.

VINCENT ORDERED TO STAY IN TANGIER PENDING DECISION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (UP)—John Carter Vincent has been instructed by the State Department to remain at his post in Tangier pending further developments in his case, it was disclosed today.

The career diplomat was suspended Dec. 15 as United States minister and diplomatic agent after the Loyalty Review board found "reasonable doubt" as to his loyalty and recommended that he be fired.

Vincent was ordered home, but later was told to stay in Tangier while a special panel appointed by former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, reviewed the case. The new Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, dismissed the Acheson-apopinted panel last week and decided to make his own decision. Vincent again was told to come home, but today's decision reverses that order.

PAIR 'SCHEDULES' 10 DAUGHTERS; NO. 7 ARRIVES

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (AP)—Everyone laughed and wished them luck when Mr. and Mrs. Henry Drabik announced after their marriage in 1941 that they wanted 10 children—all girls.

Mrs. Drabik yesterday announced the arrival of No. 7, a girl, last Saturday.

"I knew it was going to be a girl, although my doctor said he thought I would have a boy," Mrs. Drabik, 28 years old, said.

The newest baby was named Maryrose. All the girls have Mary in their names. The others are Marybeth, 11; Marykay, 9; Marysue, 7; Marylynn, 6; Marylan, 3½; Marypat, 21 months.

The mother's name Rosemary.

CONTINUANCE OF PRESIDENT'S REORGANIZATION POWER VOTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—The House today voted President Eisenhower broad power to revamp Government agencies in the interest of economy and efficiecy.

It passed and sent to the Senate by roll-call vote a bill continuing for two years, to April 1, 1955, Government reorganization powers first given President Truman in 1949.

Earlier a voice vote beat a proposal that the law be changed to make it easier for Congress to veto streamlining plans prepared by the President.

The amendment, sponsored by the House Government Operations Committee, would have allowed a reorganization plan to be stopped by a simple majority vote of either the Senate or the House. As the law stands, it requires a constitutional majority of either branch—218 in the House or 49 in the Senate—to block a reorganization plan.

13 U.S. REDS GET PRISON TERMS OF ONE TO 3 YEARS

Seven Sentenced to 3 Years and $6000 Fines, Five to Two Years and $4000 Fines.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Thirteen Communist party leaders were sentenced today to prison terms ranging from one to three years—a fate they preferred over banishment to Russia.

Seven of the 13 were given three-year terms and were fined $6000 each. Five others were sentenced to two years in prison and fined $4000 each. The other defendant got one year in prison and was fined $2000.

The 13 were convicted of conspiring to advocate violent overthrow of the Government. Maximum sentence is five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

The three-year prison terms and $6000 fines were meted out to Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Pettis Perry, Alexander Bittelman, Alexander Trachtenberg, Victor J. Jerome, Louis Weinstock, and Arnold S. Johnson.

Those sentenced to two years and fined $4000 each are Albert F. Lannon, Betty Gannett, Jacob Mindel, William W. Weinstone, and George Blake Charney.

Claudia Jones, a British subject from Trinidad, got the one-year term and was fined $2000.

Immediately after the sentencing, Defense Attorney John T. McTernan told the court he planned to file notice of appeal.

Federal Judge Edward J. Dimock said he was not fixing the maximum penalties beeause he felt Congress did not intend such punishment for conspiracy to violate the Smith Act, which makes "teaching and advocacy" of forcible overthrow of the Government a crime.

The judge said the top penalty in his opinion was intended only for "the worst conspiracy" to commit a specific crime.

He handed down the sentences, after the 13 yesterday heatedly rejected his suggestion that they might go to Russia rather than jail.

Before fixing the penalties, he gave each defendant a chance to make a final plea to the court.

The last of the defendants, Charney, 47-year-old party trade union director, declared—like the others before him—that he and his fellow defendants have no regret for their conduct.

Contractor Refunds $1,150,000 To Army; Saved It Cutting Costs

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3 (UP)—The Army disclosed yesterday that a contractor had voluntarily refunded $1,150,000 on a defense contract. L. B. Smith Inc., of Chambersburg, Pa., found a way to do the work at a cheaper figure than the contracted price, so gave back some of the money.

Col. W. M. Tisdale, deputy district chief of the Philadelphia ordnance district, attributed the firm's action to its "cumulative cost experience, increasingly efficient truck rebuild techniques and buying procedures."

The firm said it saved $150,000 on the cost of repairing 1500 trucks. The million-dollar balance came from savings in producing spare parts on a cost-plus, fixed-fee basis.

"We intend to continue to publicize such outstanding actions on the part of ordnance suppliers within our district," Tisdale said, "in order to refute with facts the continued loose and unfounded charges of 'waste' within the nation's military production programs."

CONGRESS FAVORS PRESIDENT'S PLAN TO VOID SECRET PACTS WITH RUSSIA

Applause Also Given Action to Lift Bar on Chinese Nationalists — Reed Calls Again for Tax Cut.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Quick approval of President Eisenhower's plan to repudiate any secret agreements with the Kremlin was forecast today in a Congress which is applauding also his decision to free Formosa Nationalists for raids on Red China.

Senator Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, said he saw no reason why Congress could not act quickly to adopt a resolution proposed by Eisenhower in his State of the Union message yesterday.

The President said the resolution should make it clear that "this Government recognizes no kind of commitment contained in secret understandings of the past with foreign governments" which permit "enslavement" of any peoples.

Taft said he was whole-heartedly for the Eisenhower plan.

Eisenhower did not say what agreements he had in mind, but the general assumption in Congress was that he was speaking of Yalta, where the United States and Britain made concessions to Russia to persuade Moscow to enter the Pacific war. The Truman State Department said the Yalta pact has been fully public since 1947, two years after its signing.

The Yalta agreement recognized military boundaries for the armistice that placed Eastern Europe within the Soviet sphere. It also returned the southern part of Sakhalin island to Russia, restored Port Arthur to the Soviet Union as a naval base, and gave the Reds the Kurile islands.

Meantime, Representative Reed (Rep.), New York, called again for quick passage of his bill to cut income taxes, insisting it did not conflict with Eisenhower's declaration that balancing the budget is "the first order of business."

Representative Cooper of Tennessee, senior Democrat on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, of which Reed is chairman, chided Republicans as being "in considerable disagreement." "We Democrats have to wait and see if they get together and see what they come up wieth," he added.

There were plenty of indications that Congress would let wage and price controls die April 30, as President Eisenhower recommended.

Standby Controls Bill Offered.

The President did not ask for a standby controls law — one that would give him the authority to revive the control machinery quickly in a future emergency, but Senator Capehard (Rep.), Indiana, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, introduced such a bill anyway within minutes after Eisenhower delivered his address. The measure would let the actual controls die, but continue to vest the reserve powers in the President.

Stabilization officials said they thought that, in view of the President's massage, Congress would be most unlikely to pass such a bill.

Of the message as a whole Taft said:

"It was a clear, straight-forward statement of principles, and of a definite program of executive and legislation action. I was pleased particularly by the promise of economy and sound finance to replace inflation; by the return finally to a free economy in the cancellation of wage and price controls."

Representative Kersten (Rep.), Wisconsin, has proposed a resolution designed to nullify the Yalta agreement, which he said "gave Stalin a seemingly legal stranglehold on his conquests" and violated the rights of Poland and China.

By setting it aside, Kersten said, the United States would "seize the initiative from the Communists and win the cold war."

Some Democrats said they did not see how the repudiation the President proposed would alter the facts of Soviet conquests based on military power.

Senator Russell of Georgia, often the voice of the majority of Southern Democrats in the Senate, said such a resolution would have "tremendous propaganda value in the world," and that he would support it. He added wryly:

"But I don't believe the Russians will move out of Port Arthur the day we pass it."

First Move in Campaign Pledge.

Eisenhower's repudiation proposal was regarded in Congress as a first move toward carrying out his presidential campaign promise that the United States will move in ways short of war to bring about the liberation of captive peoples in Russia's satellites.

Secretary of State Dulles, reported to have originated the plan, is expected to discuss the resolution with members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on his return this weekend from a tour of western European capitals.

While the congressional reaction to the repudiation proposal was almost completely favorable, some Democrats voiced dissents in the chorus of G.O.P. approval for Eisenhower's order unfreezing the Formosa Nationalists for any raids they may be able to make on the mainland of Red China.

Eisenhower told Congress he was issuing instructions that the Seventh Fleet "no longer be employed to shield Communist China" by carrying out ex-President Truman's 1950 order for the fleet to prevent any military excursions from Formosa.

He said nothing about the companion part of the order, which directed the fleet to guard Formosa against Red attack. Thus presumably it will stand. At the time Truman issued the order, just after the start of the Korean war, it was designed to neutralize Formosa and keep the Red Chinese out of the Korean fighting.

"Permit me to make crystal clear this order implies no aggressive intent on our part," Eisenhower said. "But we certainly have no obligation to protect a nation fighting us in Korea."

Despite this, Senator Green (Dem.), Rhode Island, a Foreign Relations Committee member, said he did not know "where it would land us and the President doesn't tell us where it leads."

"It sounds like MacArthur's willingness to go it alone," Green declared, referring to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

House Democratic Leader Rayburn of Texas indicated he did not think Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists would be able to do much damage to the Communist mainland.

"The President seemed to indicate that our fleet has been protecting Communist China," he said. "This is certainly news to me."

Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, another Foreign Relations Committee member, applauded the fleet order as a move which not only may divert Chinese Communist troops from Korea but may prevent the Reds from sending troops to Indochina because they will need men to guard their own coasts.

Senator Morse (Ind.), Oregon, and some Democrats said they feared the fleet order might mean extension of the Korean war.

Senators Hill and Sparkman, Alabama Democrats, expressed this view and wondered if Chiang Kai-shek might not now believe the United States was going to back him up in any venture he undertakes.

Eisenhower said nothing about what role the Seventh Fleet would play if Formosa is attacked. George and Taft said they have no fears this country would let Formosa fall to the enemy, but Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the minority leader, said the country ought to be told what further moves may logically flow from the fleet order.

Reed's Tax Views.

As to tax-cutting, Representative Reed said he was "not at all disturbed" over Eisenhower's plea that Congress put budget-balancing ahead of tax reductions.

"There's no quarrel between us," Reed said. "I've insisted all along on balancing the budget. But we can pass my bill and balance the budget, too."

Reed again predicted the House Ways and Means Committee would approve his bill at a meeting called for Feb. 16. His proposal would advance by six months, to June 30, the presently scheduled lapse of an 11 per cent boost in individual income tax rates.

Eisenhower told Congress it would not be wise to reduce federal revenues "until we can determine the extent to which expenditures can be reduced."

Reed indicated he has moderated his earlier prediction of House passage of his bill this month. He still hopes for passage in February but he would go along with any "reasonable" delay.

Congressional staff specialists estimate that advancing the income tax cut by six months, as in the Reed bill, would cost a billion dollars in revenue this year. That would put federal income about 11 billions behind spending as estimated by ex-President Truman — meaning Congress would have to cut the budget 11 billions to balance income with outgo.

Rayburn Sees Disappointment.

House Democratic Leader Rayburn said, "I fear the President's speech will be disappointing in many parts of the country because he does not propose to immediately start reducing taxes."

Representative Richard Simpson (Rep.), Pennsylvania, a Ways and Means Committee member who was reluctant to declare for early tax-cutting, said of Eisenhower's speech:

"I am convinced now that the budget can be balanced and taxes cut immediately—at this session of Congress. The sound policies outlined by President Eisenhower are bound to bring economy in government."

Senator leader Taft already has said he personally favors balancing the budget before reducing revenue. He indorsed the President's views.

Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, a Finance Committee member, said Eisenhower's "forceful discussion of our budgetary problems indicates a steadfast purpose to balance the budget by the elimination of waste and then reduce taxes."

Deliberate Omission.

A source close to the White House said Eisenhower's omission of a request for standby controls was deliberate—that he decided he would rather ask Congress for a specific law if he finds he needs it.

The President recommended extension of rent controls, also due to expire April 30, in critical defense housing areas. He called for procedure generally to turn over rent regulatory authority to local governments. He also recommended that priority and allocation powers over defense materials in short supply be continued beyond the June 30 expiration date.

Thus it appeared that the Office of Defense Mobilization would remain, perhaps strengthened, while the Office of Price Stabilization, directly concerned with ceilings, would go out of existence.

Rent Stabilizer James M. Henderson yesterday announced his resignation, effective Feb. 8. He will be succeeded by his deputy, William G. Barr.

Farm Senators Critical.

Eisenhower's plan for "far-reaching studies" to develop new farm programs met sharp bipartisan criticism from Senators seeking an immediate pledge of high price supports.

Criticism of the President's study stemmed largely from Senators favoring mandatory price supports at 90 per cent of parity which now cover six basic crops. This program will expire at the end of 1954.

Southern Democrats served notice that they would fight Eisenhower's call for abolition of racial segregation in the Capital "to provide an honorable example" for the nation.

GEORGE C. DYER WITHDRAWS AS U.S. ATTORNEY CANDIDATE

George C. Dyer, a former assistant United States attorney here, said today he had requested Missouri Republican leaders to withdraw his name from further consideration for appointment as United States attorney in St. Louis.

The request was made in telegrams to A. D. (Bud) Welsh, Republican National Committeeman for Missouri, and Perry Compton of Montgomery City, chairman of the Republican State Committee. Dyer, who lives at 11 Homewood drive, Kirkwood, explained that he would be unable to accept the job, if offered to him, because he recently had been employed to represent two clients in controversies and litigation with the Government and the Treasury Department.

LIPSTICK KISS ON FOREHEAD OF MAN FOUND SHOT 7 TIMES

OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 3 (AP)—The body of Thomas Pelton, 26 years old, an airline mechanic, was found by police yesterday with a lipstick kiss on his forehead—and seven bullet holes in his face, neck and head.

Police said he apparently was kissed after he was killed. The body was in his automobile on a lonely, fog-shrouded road.

Officers are searching for Mrs. Hildegarde Garni Pelton, 32, his German war bride whom he divorced Jan. 6. Neighbors said the Peltons quarreled violently just before they drove from Pelton's apartment together Sunday evening.

FIREMAN OVERCOME IN BLAZE, LOSS IS PUT AT $12,000

One fireman was overcome by smoke in a fire which broke out today in a large two-story brick building occupied by the Julius Seidel Lumber Co., and three tenants, at 2221-39 South Vandeventer avenue. Damage was estimated by Deputy Fire Chief Hugh Lyon at $12,000.

Capt. John Sterling of the Twenty-ninth Engine Co., 1217 South Vandeventer, was treated for smoke inhalation at City Hospital. The blaze apparently originated, Lyon said, in a storage area above quarters of the Moderns Kitchens & Bath Co., 2221 South Vandeventer. Three alarms were sounded as firemen fought to keep flames from spreading to lumber and paint stocks.

Damage to the building was $2000, to stock and fixtures of Modern Kitchens Co., $9000, and to supplies of the Seidel company, $1000. Dr. Anna Hyman, a physician at the City Sanitarium, 5400 Arsenal street, was injured when her automobile collided with a hose wagon en route to the fire, at Macklind and Manchester avenues.

SEOUL (Wednesday), Feb. 4 (AP)—A famed American fighting outfit struck on the western front Tuesday with sudden fury, blasted Chinese Communists in their deep bunkers with explosives and flamethrowers and retired after killing an estimated 300 reds.

Unlike the ill-fated "Operation Smack" of Jan. 25, this raid was carried with precision and success, involving an unusual feint with tanks and artillery, a front line dispatch reported.

About 200 men of the outfit, which cannot be identified, struck two low Chinese hills near Kaesong behind an artillery barrage, and tackled the Chinese in the trenches with rifles, grenades and machine guns.

Photographer George Sweers said the attackers lobbed bundles of high explosives into deep bunkers and flushed the Reds with flamethrowers.

The commanding general kept the Chinese guessing with a feint at a hill to the west of the main attack. This latter hill was pounded first with artillery.

Then 24 tanks rumbled out and poured their fire into the hill. Sweers said the general's tactics apparently worked. The Reds were kept guessing as to whether the attack was coming, and they were unable to commit reinforcements in time to check the raid on the two hills to the east.

Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor arrived in Korea Tuesday for a round of conferences prior to taking over command of the Eighth Army.

CREDIT OF CITY EARNINGS LEVY ON STATE INCOME TAX BACKED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3—A bill which permits any municipal earnings tax payments to be credited against the State income tax was reported favorably today by the House Committee on Taxation and Revenue.

The measure, sponsored by Representative A. Clifford Jones (Rep.), Clayton, would allow persons subject to the St. Louis earnings tax to deduct the amount paid by them under the city tax from their state income tax.

The committee considered, but took not action on, bills which would repeal the state income tax and exempt foodstuffs and clothing costing not more than $10 from state sales tax.

Over-Contented Cows.

WASHINGTON, Ga., Feb. 3 (UP) — Farmers along Fishing creek have been complaining that some of their cows have been getting drunk since revenue agents poured 4500 gallons of sweetened mash and 750 gallons of moonshine whisky from five illegal stills into the stream.

'POLITICS' PLAYED IN ALCOHOL TAX UNIT, CHIEF SAYS

Influence Exerted in Appointments and Tax Settlements, He Tells House Group.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 — Dwight E. Avis, head of the Federal Alcohol Tax Division, astonished members of a House subcommittee today by telling them that "politics have interfered substantially" with the administration of the division.

This interference, Avis said, has occurred primarily in the making of appointments to jobs but also has extended to the settlement of specific tax cases.

"There is an old adage that politics and liquor don't mix," Avis observed.

Representative Robert W. Kean (Rep.), New Jersey, chairman of the subcommittee which is continuing the work of the old King subcommittee on the internal revenue laws, told reporters the committee had indications of just what Avis had said but that "the fact that he said it was a surprise."

Asks for Closed Session.

Kean pointed out the subcommittee was planning to investigate the part politics has played in the administration of the alcohol tax laws and would hear Avis in executive session soon. Avis asked for this procedure, saying it probably would be necessary for him to mention names and he thought that should be done privately at first.

The inquiry into the division, now officially the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division of the Internal Revenue Bureau, was the main piece of unfinished business left over when the Democrat-controlled committee headed by Representative Cecil R. King of California disbanded Jan. 3.

The subcommittee, an offshoot of the House Ways and Means Committee, now has been reconstituted under the chairmanship of Kean and opened a series of public hearings today. Avis will appear in public session again tomorrow.

Irregularities Found.

Kean said the subcommittee would not immediately take up its investigation of the Alcohol Tax Division and declined to say what matters would be given prior consideration. The King sub-committee touched on the alcohol tax unit early in its hearings, turning up enough material of a scandalous nature to demonstrate that a full inquiry was needed.

Avis described at length the organization and operation of his unit, stressing the complete control it exercises over the liquor industry, even to prescribing the color pipes in a distillery must be painted for identification.

"The Internal Revenue Bureau's position with respect to the liquor industry is entirely different from its relationship with other taxpayers," Avis said. In the liquor field the government is, in effect, an operating partner in each of the businesses it supervises. The value of the liquor tax is far greater than the intrinsic value of the product taxed.

"The government's stake in the continued operation of a distillery is usually greater than the investment of the private citizens who own the business. For this reason the liquor tax laws have made the government an active and dominant participant in the day to day operation of each business."

'SMACK' TIMETABLE FANCY COVER LAID TO EAGER BEAVER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (UP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today an over-zealous public relations officer "made a mistake" in putting a fancy cover on the official timetable for "Operation Smack." But he asserted the attack was soundly conceived and not made to impress officers.

"I offer no brief whatsoever for the eager beaver who assembled the operation order and put it in a little folder with the (Seventh) Division colors on the cover," Collins said.

Collins told the House Armed Services Committee the Chinese recently moved a new army — about three divisions — into position and American officers needed prisoners to identify it. No prisoners were taken in the Jan. 25 raid, he said, because "we were receiving such casualties we called off the operation." Three Americans were killed and 61 wounded.

In reply to questions from Representative Hoffman (Rep.), Michigan, whose criticism prompted the hearing, Gen. Collins denied the men in Korea are not warmly clothed and or have insufficient ammunition.

GRAND JURY INDICTS FORMER TAX OFFICIAL, JAMES B. OLSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—A United States grand jury today indicted a third top-ranking internal revenue bureau official on income tax evasion charges.

The five-count indictment charged James B. Olson, former New York district supervisor of the alcohol tax unit of the internal revenue bureau, with evading payment of $22,179 in income taxes for the three years 1946-1950.

PUTS PUBLIC AID WASTE YEARLY AT 25 TO 100 MILLION

Senate Subcommittee Aid Says FSA Has Only 45 Investigators for Entire U.S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—A Senate investigator estimated today that possibly as much as $100,000,000 dollars a year is paid to ineligible persons under the federal-state public assistance program.

Jerome S. Adlerman, assistant counsel of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, said that actually no one knows how much is paid out to ineligible cases but he testified it "could be" $25,000,000 to $100,000,000 a year.

"I'd say the average was $60,000,000 to $75,000,000," he said as the subcommittee opened a public inquiry into what Chairman McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, has called evidence of waste and mismanagement in the Federal Security Agency.

Under the public assistance program the Federal Government makes grants to the states for aid to the aged, dependent children, the blind and the totally disabled.

The benefit payments are financed jointly by the state and the federal governments up to a maximum of $55 a month, with the Federal Government paying three-fifths of that amount.

Adlerman said that in the last fiscal year total federal grants under this program were $1,124,000,000.

He told the subcommittee that the FSA's bureau of public assistance has a responsibility to check state rolls to see that chiselers or other ineligibles are not receiving aid, but that only 45 federal employes were assigned to this work in the entire nation.

In answer to a question, Adlerman said that the states are supposed to audit their own assistance rolls, but he added it was "somewhat akin to having a cashier of a bank audit himself."

Senator Jackson (Dem.), Washington, asked if the states did not have an incentive to prevent any padding of the rolls themselves since they bear part of the cost of the program.

Adlerman agreed that was true, but he said there may be "local situations" that prevent too close a check and also may be "cases of laxity."

EX-SUPERVISOR TESTIFIES STATE LOST $1,200,000 IN AUTO FEES

Former Registration Official Urges Flat Instead of Graduated Charges for Cars at House Hearing.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3—The House investigation of the State Department of Revenue and other state agencies opened today with testimony by a former motor vehicle registration supervisor that the state has lost heavily through frauds, evasion of automobile taxes and fees, and lax revenue laws.

The House inquiry is independent of an investigation ordered by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly last Jan. 15 into the operation and reported irregularities in the Department of Revenue, which collects all state taxes and other funds, totaling about $324,000,000 a year.

Highway patrol Sgt. Olen B. Curtis of Kansas City, former head of the motor vehicle and drivers license unit of the Department of Revenue, the first witness, estimated the state had lost more than $1,200,000 in such revenue since 1949.

Curtis, who headed the unit for 18 months during the Smith administration, was removed from the supervisorship last month and returned to patrol duty by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, when Donnelly started his own investigation of the Department of Revenue.

Due to lax practices under the present laws and various devices for avoiding fees and penalties, the state now has outstanding about 2,100,000 motor vehicles license plates, or about 600,000 more than the estimated 1,500,000 motor vehicles operated in Missouri, Curtis said.

Curtis recommended that, in place of the present graduated license fees, that the charge for all passenger cars, regardless of make and horsepower, be $15 for the original license, and $12 for renewals. "The state now has 84 different fees, ranging from $5 to $37.50," the witness said.

Curtis told the committee that in the first six months of 1952 the state collected a total of $6,198,972 in motor vehicle license at present rates. The same number of vehicles, if licensed at a flat $12 fee would have returned $6,569,724, or $370,751 more than was collected, Curtis added.

Committee members appeared astonished when Curtis, in response to a question said any automobile owner could qualify as an automobile dealer by paying $10.50 for a dealer license, and then could operate his car under that license even though its rating might call for the maximum state license fee of $37.50.

Repeating his earlier statement relating to alleged "duplicate title rackets," Curtis said a St. Louis finance company had requested many duplicate titles to automobiles in recent years. He explained it was apparent that the applications to replace "lost titles" were written by the same individual in the same color ink, but under different names.

Duplicate titles largely were used, the witness continued, by used car dealers in the transfer of machines, thus avoiding payment of the 2 per cent sales tax, and for evasion of transfer fees.

Curtis also testified the state had lost an average of about $200,000 a year in 1949, 1950, and 1951, through various misuses of license plates, such as borrowed or stolen plates, failure to renew licenses and other evasions. Curtis, discussing the rapid growth in the practice of obtaining duplicate title of ownership through claims they had been lost, said 32,914 such duplicates were issued last year, compared to about 20,000 in 1948.

Before the committee recessed at noon until tomorrow morning, Curtis was asked about the disappearance of between 250,000 and 300,000 truck license applications for 1950, from files of the Motor Vehicle Registration and Drivers License unit in the Capitol. Disappearance of the applications was discovered recently by the highway patrol in investigating the department for Gov. Donnelly.

The Governor said this loss would hamper his inquiry and that no explanation had been obtained for the disappearance.

Curtis told the committee he knew early last year that the truck applications were missing for 1950, but that he did not know who had removed them or what became of them. He said he did not order their destruction.

Representative Christian F. Stipp (Rep.), Carrollton, chairman of the six-member committee, said the inquiry's purpose was to determine what changes in laws are necessary to improve operating methods and close any loopholes.

The committee has notified the Governor it desires to co-operate with him in his inquiry and Donnelly has offered his co-operation to the committee.

The Republican-controlled House Committee is not viewing too seriously a suit filed yesterday afternoon in Cole county circuit court by Representative Roy Hamlin of Hannibal, Democratic minority floorleader, attacking legality of the House resolution creating the committee and authorizing it to use up to $5000 of the House funds for expenses.

Mrs. Anne W. Taylor, Prophet Maid In 1937, Seeks Aldermanic Post

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer
MRS. ANNE W. TAYLOR.

Files for Republican Nomination Saying Board Needs Woman's Approach in Many Matters.

Mrs. Anne W. Taylor, a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's Ball in 1937, filed yesterday for the Republican nomination for Alderman from the Twenty-fifth Ward because she says she thinks the Board needs a woman's viewpoint.

Mrs. Taylor, the former Miss Anne Wendling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Wendling, formerly of St. Louis but now living in New York, is 34 years old, a mother and a business woman.

Stating that the city has a population of almost 860,000, "one half of whom are women," Mrs. Taylor said, "The woman's approach, as well as the man's, is required on such things as public health, traffic problems, public housing, urban redevelopment, adequate parks and playgrounds and municipal taxes."

Cites Restaurant Ordinance.

She pointed out that it was the persistence of a woman, Mrs. Clara Hempelmann, which was responsible for the enactment of the city's clean restaurant ordinance. Mrs. Hempelmann, the only woman ever to serve on the Board, was alderman from the Twelfth Ward from 1943 to 1947.

As a member and later as chairman of the Public Welfare Committee of the Board, Mrs. Hempelmann fought for three years to get the ordinance enacted, Mrs. Taylor said.

"I believe that women can contribute much to the future progress of the city," she added. "If the city has lagged behind others, it may be because its women were not consulted enough."

Sales Manager.

In business life she is sales and advertising manager for the Lennox and Mayfair hotels. She is the wife of Edgar L. Taylor Jr., trust officer for the Mercantile Trust Co., and is the mother of an 8-year-old son, Billy Stanard.

The Taylors live at 4628 Maryland avenue.

Mrs. Taylor will be opposed for the nomination by the incumbent, John Curby, an attorney, who was elected recently to fill the unexpired term of the late Alderman Floyd McKinney.

Carl J. Weis Sr. filed yesterday for the Republican nomination for Alderman from the Ninth Ward. He is a marble and tile contractor and lives at 2626 Indiana avenue.

JENNER TO REPAY $12,000 HE GOT AS DISABLED VETERAN

By JOSEPH HANLON
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Senator William E. Jenner has agreed to repay the approximately $12,000 he has drawn illegally as a totally disabled veteran of World War II.

This was announced today by the Comptroller General's office, after an inquiry had been requested by the Air Force, from which Jenner, a one-time Air Corps captain, had been drawing a pension of $179 a month, plus the $15,000 a year he is paid as a Senator. The latter includes an expense allowance of $2500 for which no accounting is required and which was tax free until this year.

Jenner's disability was diagnosed as "choroiditis, chronic, central, bi-lateral, moderately severe, progressive, cause undetermined." This is an eye disease.

Legal Point at Issue.

At issue in the question of whether Jenner could draw two government checks was a point of law which has been on the books since 1932. If a Senator were paid an amount which, plus his disability pension, would amount to no more than $3000 a year, there would have been no question about the legality of accepting the two checks. That could be done.

The General Accounting Office decision was made known by acting Comptroller General Frank L. Yates, serving in the temporary absence of Comptroller General Lindsay Warren, who is ill.

Yates said Jenner had "asserted his good faith in receiving disability retirement pay and his willingness to repay the entire amount of overpayment, which is now being computed by the General Accounting Office; as well as his readiness to return disability retirement checks in his possession, but not negotiated since the question was raised."

Jenner, a lawyer, is chairman of the powerful Senate Rules Committee and a member of its judiciary committee.

The point of law involved in whether he was entitled to be paid by two departments of the Government, in addition to the $3000-a-year limit mentioned, was whether he had incurred his disability in combat.

He had not. Had the disability resulted from combat action, he would still have been entitled to the two checks.

He entered the Air Force in June 1942, and was retired for disability in October 1944. His pension, originally about $150 a month, was later increased to $179.

MAJOR PAY RISES BEING SOUGHT FOR TEACHERS BY AFL

Cost of Increases Put at $500,000 to $1,000,000 a Year—Would Affect 3000.

Major wage increases for teachers in St. Louis public schools are being sought by Local 420 of the AFL Teachers' Federation, it was learned today. Cost of the increases, if granted by the Board of Education, would range between $500,000 and $1,000,000 annually, it was estimated.

Principal points in the new pay request for the school system's 3000 teachers are an increase in the maximum salary from $5400 annually to $6000 and yearly "step" increases of $300 instead of the present $200.

Present teacher salaries begin at $2800 for probationary instructors with no teaching experience, advancing at the rate of $200 a year for 12 years, until the maximum of $5400 is reached. Under the union proposal, salaries would start at $3000 annually and advance at $300 for 11 years, until a $6000 maximum was reached.

The wage request, contained in a letter to Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey from Bostic J. Franklin, secretary of the teachers' union here, was referred back to Hickey for study yesterday after the School Board's committee on instruction had studied it.

At the same time, Hickey took under advisement a letter from M. Virginia Hayes, president of the St. Louis Grade Teachers' Association, asking for wage increases "on all levels" for teachers. No amounts were specified in the second letter.

The last pay rise for teachers was granted by the School Board last May. At that time teachers were given a $600 yearly increase, consisting of that year's automatic $200 "step" and two additional steps totaling $400.

Estimated cost of the last increase was $450,000 yearly, but Hickey, comparing that increase and the new proposal, said actual cost of the last increase was about $1,800,000. He said present salaries paid teachers are in line with the national average for salaries.

"The new proposal, if granted, would place salaries of our teachers well above the national median," Hickey declared. Average maximum national salary now is between $5200 and $5400 annually, he said.

The last wage increase for teachers, and a similar increase granted the school system's non-teaching employes, were principally responsible for the School Board's decision to seek authorization to levy a higher school tax rate at the April 7 election.

Present school tax rate is $1.01 on each $100 of assessed property valuation, but authority to levy this rate will expire if new authorization is not granted by the voters, and the tax rate will revert to the 89 cents permitted without a vote. The board's finance committee is studying school finances in an attempt to set amount of the new levy to be sought.

The pay requests by the two teacher groups are viewed as reflecting their desire to have wage increases considered before amount of the new tax rate is set.

Urging tht $100 increase in the annual wage "step," Franklin's letter pointed out that the annual increases now range from $200 for teachers to $300 for directors and assistant superintendents, with "step" increases for principals ranging between $250 and $275. He urged that "steps" be made a uniform $300 for all teaching personnel.

The letter said some teachers are not now receiving the salary their experience and place on the wage schedule call for, but this was disputed by Hickey, who said adjustments under the last wage increase are still being made.

Saigh Begins Preliminary Talks With Possible Buyers of Cardinals

Dickers With New Yorker, Californian, Pittsburgh and Detroit Men—Several Groups Meet With Walsingham.

Fred M. Saigh, who will begin serving a 15-month prison sentence for income tax evasion by May 4, started preliminary negotiations yesterday for possible sale of the St. Louis Cardinals. He is the president of the club and owns all except seven shares of stock.

Among prospective bidders for the club in the preliminary talks were John James Jachym of Los Altos, Calif., former stockholder in the Washington Senators and former owner of the Jamestown (N.Y.) baseball club; Harold J. Klein, a New York attorney representing trucking interests; Harry Wismer, a Detroit sports broadcaster, and Charles J. Margiotti, a Pittsburgh lawyer.

"Five or six groups" also have met with William Walsingham Jr., vice president of the Cardinals, who is expected to be named operating head of the club by a three-man trustees' committee, to be selected by Saigh.

Jachym, a former part-time scout for the Cardinals under Branch Rickey and former journalism student at the University of Missouri, has told friends he is "definitely interested in buying the Cardinals if the price is right."

Jachym's Baseball Deals.

After World War II, in which he was decorated by the Marine Corps for heroism at Guadalcanal, Jachym bought the Jamestown (N.Y.) club in the Class D Pony League. He operated the club for four years, then sold it to the Detroit Tigers. He became an assistant farm club director for the Tigers.

In 1949, Jachym headed a seven-man syndicate which bought 40 per cent of the stock in the Washington Senators. After six months Jachym sold his stock to a Washington insurance broker, reportedly at a profit of $80,000. Now Jachym wants to get back into major league baseball.

In New York Klein said he had been in touch with Saigh by telephone concerning a possible deal for the Cardinals.

Klein, attorney for the Inter-City Motor Carrier Association, said he had been authorized by that group to open negotiations and that he was ready to make a "firm offer." Klein planned to come here for further conferences with Saigh.

Detroit Interest.

Wismer, spokesman for a Detroit syndicate seeking to buy the Cardinals, said he will discuss his plans with Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick. Wismer's group hopes to move the Cardinals to Detroit.

However, Saigh has said he does not wish to sell the Cardinals to any group that would take the franchise to another city.

In Pittsburgh, Margiotti said he and a "group of friends, outstanding business and professional men from Pittsburgh and elsewhere," were considering purchase of the Cardinals.

The former Pennsylvania attorney general said an agent of the Cardinals visited him last Friday in Pittsburgh and agreed to supply the club's financial records for the past five years and a statement of assets, including the farm system.

'In Talking Stage.'

Margiotti said he expected to get the figures today. "The deal is in the talking stage," he said. "I have an idea what they want but we can't make an offer until we see their figures."

His group, Margiotti said, is the same one which made an unsuccessful bid for the Pittsburgh Pirates several years ago.

Meanwhile, United States Attorney George L. Robertson announced yesterday no contempt of court action would be taken against Saigh "at the present time," as the result of Saigh's remarks on a television program.

After conferences with United States District Judge Roy W. Harper, Robertson issued this statement: "We have considered the remarks made over television in New York by Saigh on Jan. 30, together with his telegram of public apology to Judge Harper. No action is at the present time contemplated."

Both Robertson and Judge Harper had studied a transcript of statements by Saigh on a national television program last Friday, in which the baseball club president complained about his punishment for tax evasion.

KNETZER RECORD INVESTIGATOR IS CROSS-EXAMINED

Final Important U.S. Witness—Attorney for Trustee for Estate Testifies.

By ROY J. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3—Cross-examination of Harold J. Bruninga, accountant and former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, who examined the bankrupt Robert L. Knetzer's records, was resumed today in the trial of Knetzer on a charge of concealing assets from his 600 creditors.

Bruninga, who spent a good part of the last four years investigating Knetzer's multi-million dollar automobile sales scheme before quitting the FBI last November to go into business, was the final important witness for the Government as the trial entered its third week.

Acting United States Attorney Marks Alexander said he expected to close his case with one or two minor witnesses late today.

Lengthy cross-examination of Bruninga by defense counsel Manuel Wiseman of Alton was directed at showing that Knetzer's records were so incomplete as to constitute less than substantial proof that the former "wizard" of Edwardsville concealed assets of around $700,000.

The Government position apparently is that it is up to the defense to show how Knetzer disposed of the $696,727 which the agents reported unaccounted for.

State Representative G. William Horsley, attorney for the trustee for Knetzer's estate, testified he filed 37 suits in two years after Knetzer filed his bankruptcy petition, seeking to recover automobiles or refunds made on deposits for cars.

Horsley related the suits named 800 to 900 defendants and totaled about $1,000,000. In addition, he said, he sued Jack A. Wolff, used car dealer who furnished many of the automobiles sold by Knetzer, for $3,600,000, and the Ace Rent-A-Car Co., Chicago for $50,000.

Horsley explained there was a two-year time limit for filing the suits and many were based on "rumors, hints, suspicions and records."

NORTHWOODS AUTO STICKERS

Applicants must present 1952 personal property tax receipts. Stickers will be on sale from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and until 9 p.m. Feb. 16.

EDUCATIONAL TV LIKELY TO BEGIN IN THIS AREA IN APRIL

Operation of an educational television station in the St. Louis area may begin in April, Charles Guggenheim, acting director of the station, said today.

A contingent order for equipment to begin operation of the new station was placed yesterday with the Radio Corporation of America, Guggenheim said. The equipment will cost $144,000 and includes all facilities necessary to set up the station except an antenna.

The order is contingent on action by the Federal Communications Commission in granting a construction permit for the station. Application to operate the station was filed with the FCC last week by the St. Louis Educational Television Commission.

Speedy action is expected since the commission is the only agency to file an application to operate a station untilizing channel nine, set aside for non-commercial television in this area. Delivery of the equipment on schedule may enable the station to begin operations in 90 days, Guggenheim said.

WASHINGTON U. FRATERNITIES 'PLEDGE' BLOOD

Fraternity pledges at Washington University will begin next Monday an initiation week of useful service to the community, including donation of blood to the Red Cross.

The pledges, who used to huddle in frightened groups to compare bruises from initiation hazing, will spend much of the week collecting old clothes for distribution overseas by CARE.

More than 300 students have been pledged to join fraternities this year. A prize will be awarded to the fraternity whose members collect the largest pile of clothing.

1549 KNOWN DEAD IN TIDAL FLOOD IN WEST EUROPE

there was reported under five feet of water and a tug and oil tanker left to evacuate survivors.

The fate of some 8000 persons on the island of North Beveland, in the lee of Walcheren, was unknown. One report said the island was completely under water; a further report said evacuation was under way.

Queen Juliana ordered her luxury yacht Piet Hein to serve as a hospital ship. The 43-year-old queen waded in hip boots through the flood waters for several hours yesterday on an inspection tour. Juliana also took a large quantity of clothing from her own and her four daughters' wardrobes for distribution to the needy.

Her mother, Princess Wilhelmina, 72, who saw three floods during her 58-year reign as queen, traveled to the southern part of the disaster area by train. She was in the frontlines of the battles to save dikes in 1906, 1916 and 1925, often carried pick-a-back through flooded streets by booted sailors.

Much of Holland is under sea level, some of it as much as 21 feet. Dikes have kept back the sea for centuries, permitting the Dutch to grow good crops in the bottomland and build prosperous cities on sea beds. The work of reclaiming land from the sea goes on constantly.

BRITISH FIGHTING TO HOLD OUT SEA

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—The toll in Britain's worst hurricane and flood in history reached 536 dead today. Thousands of troops and civilians continued to fight the English Channel and North Sea to save other lives and lands still threatened.

The known toll of 11 American dead included three Air Force men, three Air Force wives and five children. Seven others—two airmen, two Air Force wives and three children—were listed as missing and presumed dead. Most of the American casualties occurred in Hunstanton, near the United States Air base at Sculthorpe.

There was fear that the spring tides—due in two weeks—would smash again through the weakened sea defenses. Around the clock, in sleet, rain and snow at scores of villages along the east coast, men laid sandbags and piled dirt. Others continued the search for survivors. Estimates of the number of Britons missing ranged between 600 and 1000.

Possibly 300 of the missing lived on 25-mile-square Cavney island, in the Thames estuary. Police said at least 130 died there. Today there were still some 3800 persons on the stricken isle. Many of them—some possibly because of the shock—refused to leave their homes. Nearly 7000 others had been rescued by small boats.

In all Britain, about 35,000 were homeless and 250,000 acres of land had been flooded. Property damage ran into the millions of dollars.

Relief Drives Started.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill in a speech in Commons, called the flood a "national responsibility," and promised to take immediate steps to relieve distress. Queen Mother Elizabeth, in a message this morning, appealed to the nation to contribute clothing and bedding for the homeless. Dozens of drives were under way for money, clothing, medicine and relief workers.

Four million sandbags were issued by the army to fight the "battle of the gaps." The giant operation was led by thousands of Royal Army engineers, air force men and sailors. Working with them were American airmen.

Great Yarmouth, almost in the center of the stricken area, ordered emergency measures "on a full wartime basis" as the four-mile tidal basin threatened to burst its walls. Many small breaks already had been plugged by 20,000 sandbags.

Damages to two Royal Navy ships at Sheerness were estimated officially at a million pounds — $2,800,000. They were the frigate Berkeley Castle and the submarine Sirdar, both battered and knocked on their sides.

The 16,000 people of Sheerness were without electricity. They suffered, too, from a water shortage and the sewer system was blocked.

Refugees trudged to safety across the big iron bridge from Canvey island. Men in mud and water soaked clothing carried bedding, small children clung to their parents.

Two miles away at Benfleet police station a crowd stood around an official as he called out the names of inhabitants who had reached reception centers safely.

Midway between the bridge and the submerged and shattered seawall was a vague new shore line—a street where fire trucks equipped with powerful pumps, ambulances and army dispatch riders sloshed through mud and water to meet and mingle with the grounding rowboats.

Some islanders were rescued in their nightclothes, some were naked when dragged to safety. William Nial, a 78-year-old invalid unable to walk, sat in his wheel chair for seven hours as the water rose around him. All that time his wife signalled frantically for help.

Three smiling boys stood on a bench at a bus stop. A painted brown bear bore the freshly chalked legend: "Cheer Up. Canvey Will Rise Again."

Sixty-seven American airmen and their families were driven from their homes and lost all their possessions in Hunstanton.

List of U.S. Casualties.

The United States Air Force listed the following casualties.

Dead:

Staff Sgt. Jack D. Short, Raven, Va.

Master Sgt. Herbert Branch, Oakdale, La., his wife, Gladys M. Branch, their son, Herbert E. Jr., and their daughter, Sandra K.

Mrs. Rose E. Richardson, Atlanta, Tex., and her son, Joseph.

Mrs. Agnes L. Bailey, Anawalt, W.Va.

Russell O. Martin Jr., and John Wayne Martin, sons of Airman 1-C Russell O. Martin and Mrs. Dorothy Martin (no relation to Maynard Martin) of Reed, W.Va.

Missing and presumed dead:

Mrs. Dorothy Virginia Martin, wife of Airman 1-C Maynard Martin.

James Alan Richardson, son of Mrs. Rose E. Richardson, who is among the dead.

SUSPECT IN ARKANSAS BANK HOLDUP ARRESTED IN COUNTY

A man booked as Vernon T. Janes, 21 years old, was arrested last night at a St. Louis county tourist court as a suspect in the $33,000 robbery of a bank at Reyno, Ark., last Dec. 28.

Federal Bureau of Investigation Agent John S. Bush and City Detectives Thomas Moran and William LaPosha reported that Janes carried an automatic pistol in his belt and had a rifle in his cabin at the Travotel Tourist Court, in Valley Park. He offered no resistance and denied knowledge of the robbery of the Farmers & Merchants Bank at Reyno, small northeast Arkansas community.

Janes, who said his home is in Peach Orchard, Ark., told the officers he had been in the St. Louis area about three weeks and paid $2200 on a new automobile, on which he had traded an old machine. He had little cash in his possession. He was taken to police headquarters and held for federal authorities, who said a warrant had been issued against him in Randolph county, Ark.

DULLES REPORTED TO HAVE WON OVER FRENCH ON FORMOSA

Ismay strongly defended western European countries against charges that their rearmament efforts were slackening, a communique disclosed.

"Lord Ismay thought that this impression was erroneous and that in fact substantial progress has been made over the whole field," the communique said.

In a formal statement before he left, Dulles highly praised France.

"We have again been impressed both by the vision of the leaders of France and by their determination to transform vision into living reality," the statement said.

Discussion of Formosa.

Dulles was reported to have told French Premier Rene Mayer and a group of his Cabinet ministers during a quiet, friendly talk yesterday that President Eisenhower ordered the United States Seventh Fleet to end its neutralizing screen around Formosa to give the Red Chinese something more to worry about.

He said the move was the first of several new projects Eisenhower has planned with the aim of seizing the initiative in the cold war from the Russians and was designed to force the Red Chinese to concentrate forces to guard against possible onslaughts from Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists on the island.

The French officials, who had been fearful that the move might spread an Asian war, were said to have agreed with the decision when Dulles explained it to them.

An informed source reported that Dulles, in turn, was optimistic over chances that the European army treaty—adding German troops to Western defense forces—would be rolling toward ratification in the French National Assembly within a matter of weeks.

Dulles was said to have received strong assurances of quick support for the treaty in the Assembly after he told the Cabinet ministers that the United States Congress wanted to see some real action this spring on the proposal to weld troops from six nations into a unified fighting force.

If progress is not forthcoming, he warned, Europe can expect trouble in getting military aid appropriations from Congress. He said American lawmakers want solid indications that France and West Germany have made substantial progress in shelving their mutual suspicions in order to build a common defense against Russian pressure.

Dulles and Stassen also conferred with officials of the United States Mutual Security Agency here and a spokesman said later that a thorough examination of the MSA "personnel and program" would begin soon.

The spokesman added that a commission made up of non-paid top American leaders would come to the key countries in the MSA program to conduct the examinations.

There have been expectations in MSA's European headquarters that a great many jobs would be eliminated in the huge program that began with the Marshall plan in 1948.

ROBBERS BEAT PATH TO OIL STATION; 2 HOLDUPS IN 3 HOURS

Leonard Andrews, station operator, told police that two men, Negroes, entered the station about 10:30 o'clock and asked, "Do you have a gun?" "Why, no," Andrews replied. The men asked if he had identification papers. Andrews said he did, but they were in the safe. He was asked if he had a key to the safe and replied that he did.

The men, neither of whom displayed a weapon, told him to open the safe. Andrews complied and produced a canvas bag containing his wallet and the day's receipts of $159. Taking the bag as they departed, the men said, "this was a holdup." "I thought they were special officers," Andrews explained when he called police.

At 1:15 a.m. two other men and a woman, Negroes, appeared at the station, where Eugene Logan had come on duty, replacing Andrews. They took $60.

AUTO CRASHES INTO BRIDGE, CATCHES FIRE; DRIVER UNHURT

Charles E. Berry, 557 North Thirty-second street, East St. Louis, was uninjured when his automobile caught fire after crashing into the north railing of MacArthur Bridge last night.

The front of the machine was left hanging over the edge of the bridge, 100 feet above the Mississippi river edge, when it came to a halt. Two sections of railing were knocked out.

Firemen extinguished the flames and police towed the automobile back to the bridge deck. Berry said he lost control.

SECRET MATERIAL IN LOYALTY CASE TO BE RELEASED

Gen. Smith to Tell Senators What He Testified About Diplomat John Patton Davies.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (UP)—President Eisenhower has authorized Gen. Walter Bedell Smith to present to a Senate committee a review of secret testimony he gave the loyalty review board last year in the case of career diplomat John Patton Davies, it was announced today.

Smith's nomination to be Under Secretary of State is before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Chairman Alexander Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, had asked that Smith's testimony in the Davies case be made available.

Wiley told reporters that Smith, retiring chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, "will present the information" he gave the loyalty board.

Hot Issue for Years.

It was not clear whether Smith would give a recapitulation of his testimony or turn over a transcript of it. The issue of disclosing Loyalty Board files to congressional committees has been a hot one in Congress for years. Former President Truman took a stand against such disclosures.

Davies had been accused of advocating that the CIA employ Communists. Davies denied the charges and subsequently was cleared by the Loyalty Review Board after Smith spoke out for him during the loyalty investigation. Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, said recently he still thinks Davies should be prosecuted.

Other Secret Testimony.

Meanwhile, the Senate Judiciary Committee agreed to furnish the Foreign Relations Committee other secret testimony by Smith before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. Judiciary chairman Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, said the file on Davies will be forwarded to the Foreign Relations Committee this afternoon. Davies appeared before the Internal Security subcommittee in connection with the investigation of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Senator McCarran (Dem.), Nevada, former chairman of the internal security subcommittee, asked that the Smith testimony in the Davies case be obtained by the Foreign Relations Committee before it acts on Smith's appointment. Smith will be called for questioning in a few days.

PRESIDENT MEETS SENATE LEADERS TO PUSH PROGRAM

Taft, Others Agree After Luncheon Eisenhower Wants to Get Along With Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—This was Republican harmony day at the White House with President Eisenhower entertaining G.O.P. Senate leaders at a luncheon which looked like an open bid for future close and friendly relations.

The Senators—headed by Majority Leader Taft of Ohio—include the Senate's committee chairmen. On Thursday, Republican House leaders will break bread with the President at a similar luncheon.

The Senate leaders agreed after the luncheon that the new Chief Executive is a good fellow who wants to get along with Congress.

Vice President Nixon, Taft, Senator Knowland and the 15 committee chairmen spent 90 minutes with the President. After lunch, he conducted them on a tour of the executive mansion.

Chairman Saltonstall (Rep.), Massachusetts, of the Armed Services Committee told reporters that "President Eisenhower is certainly an agreeable gentleman who obviously wants to get on with us in the Congress."

President Sees Texans.

Eisenhower met also with two Texans who are strong supporters of state control of the offshore oil lands. They are Senator Daniel (Dem.) of Texas, and Robert Storey of Dallas, president of the American Bar Association.

Eisenhower made no mention of the offshore oil controversy in his message yesterday, but he is on record as favoring states' control of the rich deposits which former President Truman reserved for the Navy in one of his last official acts.

Eisenhower seemed determined to sidestep as much as possible any conflict with Congress over his legislative program. He emphasized this point when he said that United States foreign policy "must be the product of genuine, continuous co-operation between the executive and the legislative branches of this government."

The White House announced appointment of three special legislative assistants in congressional liaison—Homer H. Gruenther of Omaha, Neb.; Bruce N. Harlow of Oklahoma City and Gerald D. Morgan of Gaithersburg, Md.

MARINE PILOTS WORRY REDS WITH DELAYED-ACTION BOMBS

WESTERN FRONT, Korea, Feb. 3 (AP) — Marine Corsair pilots have developed a new technique that gives the Communists the jitters before it kills them.

They dropped 18 delayed-action, 1000-pound bombs on a Chinese-held hill last night. The fuses were timed to go off at intervals.

M'KENNA FAVORS DRASTIC STEPS TO UNSNARL TRAFFIC

Backs One-Way Street Systems, Co-ordinated Lights, Underground Parking in Plazas.

The city's traffic control problem calls for immediate and drastic steps toward a solution, Director of Public Welfare J. Glennon McKenna, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, declared today in announcing his platform.

McKenna, who has also been a magistrate and a member of the State Legislature, said traffic, transit and health problems must be approached on the basis of the St. Louis metropolitan area, rather than as matters limited to the boundaries of the city.

He recommended legislation for drastic parking restrictions in the downtown and neighboring areas, systems of one-way streets, co-ordinated lights to move traffic quickly and construction of underground parking facilities in the Aloe and Memorial Plaza areas. Such facilities would provide parking space for 10,000 automobiles, McKenna estimated.

McKenna said he also favored a metropolitan transit authority; a permanent earnings tax, to give the city a sound financial structure; bond issues for needed capital improvements; establishment of a committee of city and county officials, "to meet and discuss problems affecting the metropolitan area"; acquisition of the Principia College property, Page boulevard and Belt avenue, as a complete rehabilitation center, including the rehabilitation of youth; additional parks and community centers, and fluoridation of water as a public health measure.

Housing needs were described in the platform as "still critical," with recommendations for the continuation of the Public Housing program and eradication of slum areas.

COMMANDERS OF 2 ANTI-AIRCRAFT UNITS HERE ANNOUNCED

Commanding officers of the two battalions of National Guard anti-aircraft artillery being formed to protect the St. Louis area from possible air attack were announced yesterday at Jefferson City by Maj. Gen. A. D. Sheppard, the Missouri Adjutant General.

The commanders are Capt. S. A. Williams, 201st AA Battalion, and Maj. Clyde Withrow, 202nd AA Battalion, both of St. Louis. Maj. Withrow will be relieved from duty with the 138th Infantry Regiment to take his new command.

Recruiting of 800 officers and men as a maintenance strength of the two battalions is under way and surveys for desirable weapons emplacements are being made. Each battalion will be equipped with guided missiles and 16 anti-aircraft guns. The periods in which firing positions will be manned have not been announced. The St. Louis battalions and the 203rd AA Battalion in southwest Missouri will be part of the national defense against air attack.

EARLY BUYING URGED OF EXPRESSWAY LAND

County Planning Director Calls for Action on North-South Road.

Early acquisition of rights-of-way for the proposed St. Louis county North-South expressway, connecting the planned Mark Twain and Ozark radial expressways, is "absolutely essential," members of the County Council's Highways Committee were advised last night.

M. Eugene Baughman, planning director of the County Planning Commission, emphasized the belt expressway in a report detailing possible road projects for which the county should set priorities and arrange methods of financing.

The proposed Inner Belt North-South Expressway would start at the intersection of Moline Creek valley and the Mark Twain Expressway. It would continue southwest and south along Moline Creek, Lackland Station road, Brown road, the Rock Island right-of-way, Black Creek Valley, Laclede Station road and Rock Hill road to Highway 21 and the Ozark Expressway.

Although state and Federal agencies have given priority to construction of radial expressways, Baughman said, property for the belt route should be acquired "at this time when buildings have not been erected on the rights-of-way and also to provide access for spurs in the Central area, such as the Highway 40 truck route, the Clayton-University City Parkway, and the modification of Clayton road."

Baughman's report listed the Mark Twain and Ozark expressways, other belt lines west of Lindbergh and in Kirkwood, and a possible Highway 40 truck route as projects for which ways and means of providing necessary funds must be given consideration.

In addition, the report detailed 24 routes for which the county must furnish all of the right-of-way, with the state and federal governments paying for paving.

Baughman submitted the highway data in response to a request of the Highways Committee at its Jan. 26 meeting. He said an additional report will be made covering grade separations, interchanges, bridge widening and construction.

HOUSE UNIT OK'S MEASURE TO OPEN WELFARE ROLLS

Bill to Permit Inspection of Lists Favored as Means to Eliminate Chiselers.

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3—A bill which would open Missouri's welfare rolls to public inspection was reported favorably last night by the House Social Security Committee, following a hearing at which adoption of the measure was urged as a means of eliminating "chislers" from the rolls.

Proctor N. Carter, director of the state's public welfare division, told the committee he believed the bill "worthwhile" and said it had his whole-hearted support.

"Although we know of no specific instances of ineligible persons being on the welfare lists, this measure would tend to turn up valuable information which might lead to removal from the lists of persons, who possibly have hidden assets," he said.

"We do not want ineligible persons on the rolls," he said.

Provisions of Bill.

The bill, introduced by Representatives C. D. Hamilton (Dem.), New London, and Carl T. Webber (Rep.), Union, would require that county directors of welfare maintain a monthly list of names, addresses and amounts of benefits received by each person on county welfare lists. It would apply to persons receiving old-age assistance, aid for dependent children and aid for totally and permanently disabled persons.

Under the proposed law, this list would be open to public inspection, but any political, or commercial use of such lists would be prohibited. Publication of the lists in any way also would be forbidden.

John R. Thompson, executive vice president of the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce, also spoke in favor of the measure. Chief advantages of it, he said, would be that it would tend to "eliminate chiseling" and would provide the welfare division with sources of information not now available regarding the true need of welfare recipients.

The committee also reported favorably a bill which would permit persons otherwise eligible for old-age assistance to receive benefits whether they live with relatives able to support them, or not. A similar bill was tentatively approved in the House last week.

Under present regulations of the welfare division, aged persons living with relatives whose finances are adequate to support them are refused the monthly benefits.

'Fair Employment Act.'

A "fair employment act," which would prohibit discrimination against employes in public offices or private corporations in Missouri because of race, creed or color, was introduced in the House today.

The measure, similar to unsuccessful bills submitted at previous sessions, was presented by Representative James McKinley Neal (Dem.), Negro of Kansas City.

It would make it unlawful for any department of the state, or of any political subdivision of the state, including Boards of Education and police departments, or for any private corporation to so discriminate against any employe, or applicant for employment.

In addition, it would prohibit discrimination because of marital status or political and organizational affiliations, "other than those advocating overthrow of the United States Government by force."

A proposed constitutional amendment which would lower the voting age in Missouri from 21 to 18 years of age was tentatively approved in the House yesterday. If finally passed in both the House and Senate, the proposal would be submitted to the voters in the state at the general election in 1954.

Division of the Department of Public Health and Welfare into two separate departments would be provided in a bill introduced in the House yesterday. One of the proposed new departments would devote its attention to matters of public health, the other to the administration of public welfare.

COUNTY TO OPPOSE MOVING OF QUONSET HUT AT COURTHOUSE

A quonset hut, which was put up in 1948 on the east side of the County Courthouse in Clayton, will be defended by County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews tonight at a meeting of the Clayton Board of Aldermen.

The municipality wants the 24 by 48-foot gray hut removed on grounds that it does not measure up to the city's building regulations. Matthews was expected to explain that the county has plans for continued use of the $5900 structure.

When the new courthouse was under construction, the quonset hut offered temporary housing for county agencies. Later the United States Marines put a recruiting station in the hut. More recently, the hut has been out of use.

Now, however, the electrical inspector is to be moved from the building commissioner's office to new quarters in the quonset hut to make room for the plumbing inspector, now housed at the County Health Center. Removal of the hut, the county says, is out of the question.

U.S. Envoy Breaks Leg Skiing.

STATE LIQUOR CONTROL CHIEF, COVELL R. HEWITT, DIES

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3 (AP)—Covell R. Hewitt, the retiring state liquor control supervisor, died last night, several hours after he had suffered a stroke in Gov. Phil M. Donnelly's office in the capitol. He was 64 years old.

Hewitt was talking with the Governor when stricken.

Hewitt, whose home was in Maysville, was still supervisor of the liquor department although the Governor sent the appointment of Hollis M. Ketchum to the Senate last week. Ketchum has been Hewitt's assistant. He is expected to take over the job as soon as the Senate confirms his appointment.

Hewitt, a lawyer and a Democrat, had been state liquor supervisor since 1949. Previously he had served as prosecutor of DeKalb County and for seven years as assistant state attorney general. He is survived by his widow.

EXPLOSION, FIRE IN HOME IN COUNTY UNDER INQUIRY

St. Louis county authorities are investigating an explosion and fire, apparently of incendiary origin, which destroyed the interior of a small home at 3612 Sargent avenue, Bel-Ridge, last night.

Nine one-gallon glass containers, some broken and others partly filled with gasoline, were found in the two-room home. The explosion occurred while Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. O'Brien, the owners, were at work at a tavern. They could not account for the containers. The loss, including $50 in currency, was not insured.

Neighbors reported that an automobile was driven rapidly away from the home shortly before the blast. The neighbors called firemen, who made no estimate of the damage.

WOMAN DIES IN RESTAURANT

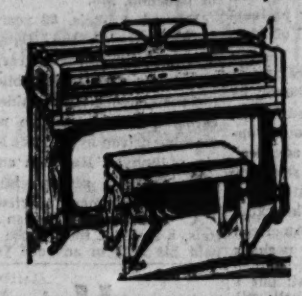

Mrs. Dorothy Finklang, a United States Post Office employe, 758 Hamilton avenue, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at the Black Cat Cafeteria, 910 Olive street.

Seated at a counter, she collapsed as a waitress was serving her, police reported. She was 57 years old.

MAKINS SAYS U.S. WILL MEASURE UP TO TASK

New Envoy Pledges Britain's Help as Partner in Answering Call of 'Destiny.'

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—The new British Ambassador to the United States expressed confidence last night that America, with Britain's help and partnership, will answer the call of "destiny."

Sir Roger Makins, speaking at a dinner given in his honor by the Pilgrims of the United States, added that the future holds "opportunities for a great advance" by the two nations. He said:

"Today, more insistently than ever before, destiny is knocking at the door of the American people. It is no longer perhaps so 'manifest' as in the simpler circumstances of the past; but I have no doubt that the call will again be answered and that in answering it the United States will, as always, have at hand the assistance and the partnership which the British peoples can, within the limits of their strength, provide."

Travel Disadvantage.

In examining what he called "the narrower front of relations between the United Kingdom and the United States, he pointed out that today tens of thousands of Americans visit the United Kingdom every year, yet only a handful of British are able to come to the United States.

"This is one of the least obvious, yet most significant disadvantages of the economic imbalance between the dollar area and the rest of the world," he said.

"Generally speaking British people can only come to the United States at present for an authorized purpose, on official duty or for some rapid business affairs. They cannot come just because they want to get to know the country and the people.

"Today many thousands of young American service men annually pass through the British Isles for comparatively brief periods.

"It is the utmost importance for the future of our relationship that they should come away with a good impression of the British, and that we should be left with a warm feeling about them."

Two Changes in Partnership.

Sir Roger said he saw two great changes in the external association of Britain and the United States.

"They are the change in the balance of power within the partnership between the United Kingdom and the United States and the operation of this partnership within a widening circle of allied countries," he said.

"The first change has been the inevitable consequence of the growth of American population and resources in relation to those of Great Britain, propelled forward in two great bounds as the result of the first and second world wars. These wars impoverished us, but led to a vast increase of American industrial potential.

"I think that some American views about the British derive from the time when Britain was the stronger member of the partnership.

"This has led to a feeling that nowadays we are not pulling our weight, and to an expectation of greater performance from the United Kingdom than is reasonable in present conditions."

The Pilgrims organization works for a better understanding between the peoples of Britain and the United States.

SWINDLING SUSPECT SAID TO USE 'TOO MUCH CHANGE' TRICK

East St. Louis police yesterday arrested an alleged short-change artist who merchants said had a novel routine—he complained about getting too much change.

But, one victim said, the man walked off with quite a profit after his fast-talking act. First, it was charged, he bought an item for 28 cents and handed the clerk a $5 bill.

"I only gave you a $1 bill," the "customer" was quoted as saying when he got change for the five. The clerk insisted it was a five. Admitting his "mistake," the customer gave the clerk another five, asked for a ten, got it and walked out of the store—with the ten plus change from the original five—before the clerk realized his mistake.

Numerous complaints about the trick have been received recently police said. The man, who was arrested after a complaint by a suspicious merchant, was held for investigation.

OIL SLICKS FOUND ON ATLANTIC WHERE PLANE SENT SOS

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (UP)—The Coast Guard cutter Campbell has sighted "oil slicks and dye markers" in the North Atlantic 120 miles from the last reported position of a British airliner which disappeared yesterday with 39 persons aboard, the Coast Guard announced here.

In London Skyways Ltd., operator of the plane, said it had given up hope for it. The airliner was en route to Gander, N. F., ferrying 10 British soldiers, their wives and 13 children to the West Indies. It carried a crew of six.

Strong wings and torrential rains hampered the search after the plane's SOS early yesterday but better weather was forecast today from the area from which the plane called for help, some 359 miles east-southeast of Gander, N.F.

Fog Still in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3 (AP)—For the third successive day San Francisco is blanketed by heavy fog. Most bay area airports were closed. Ship sailings were canceled. Commuter trains were off schedule. There were numerous automobile collisions.

ST. LOUISAN KILLED IN MISSOURI CRASH

Edward A. Reis Loses Life, Two Other Persons Seriously Hurt.

A St. Louisan was killed and two residents of Bolivar, Mo., were seriously injured today in a head-on collision on United States Highway 66, about 10 miles east of Lebanon, Mo.

Edward A. Reis, 63 years old, a resident of the Downtown Y.M.C.A., 1528 Locust street, was killed when his automobile left the road, struck the shoulder and caromed back to collide with a machine driven by Maurice Hampton of Bolivar. Hampton and his wife suffered serious injuries, highway patrolmen reported.

A Y.M.C.A. spokesman said Reis, a resident there since 1936, paid his rent in advance yesterday and said he was going on vacation. Lebanon is about 150 miles southwest of St. Louis.

William C. H. Naber, 7000 Florence place, Jennings, died last night at St. Louis County Hospital of injuries suffered Jan. 21 when he was struck by an automobile in the 5300 block of Helen avenue, Jennings.

The automobile was driven by Albert Cassel, 8534 Mora lane. Naber, 67 years old, was a shipping clerk.

AFL Orders Longshoremen's Union to Rid Itself of Racketeering

Council Says Failure to Do So by April 30 Will Bring Recommendation for Its Suspension.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 3 (AP)—The AFL Executive Council, in an unprecedented action, today ordered the crime-infested AFL Longshoremen's Union "immediately" to purge itself of "racketeering, crime and corruption."

Failure of the Longshoremen's Union, headed by Joseph P. Ryan, to place itself "above suspicion and completely free of all racketeering" by April 30 will bring a recommendation from the 15-man council to suspend the 60,000-man union from the big labor federation.

In a letter addressed "to the officers and members of the International Longshoremen's Association," the council said:

"Union representatives with criminal records can not be tolerated in any official capacity and they must be immediately removed from all positions of authority within your organization."

The letter was handed to Harry Hasselbren, national secretary-treasurer of the Longshoremen's Union.

Evidence taken by a New York State Crime Commission had linked union officials with extortion and other rackets which bled the world's largest port of an estimated $350,000,000 a year.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 3—A fresh approach to labor unity between the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the craft-conscious American Federation of Labor is to be made this month. Unification committees from the two organizations, representing the major blocs of unionized labor in this country, will meet in Washington, Feb. 24.

George Meany, new president of the AFL, who is presiding at the quarterly session of its executive council here, said that he was not optimistic of early results through the unity talks, but added that there was no doubt that the rank and file of dues-paying union members wanted unity.

"It is of tremendous importance to the workers of America," Meany said, "to bring the CIO and the AFL together into one federation."

Meany said that there was much preliminary work to be done before unity could be achieved. He added that he was betting 17 to 10 against prospects of unity in the near future. A few months ago he laid eight to five against unification.

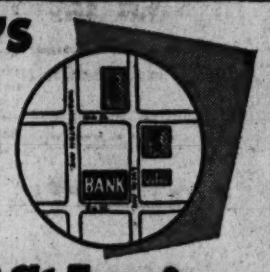

Eleven representatives of the CIO will serve on its committee to meet with the AFL. There will be nine AFL committee members, although Meany said that the size of the AFL committee might be increased. It will be the first meeting of representatives of the rival organizations in three years. Preliminary arrangements were made by Meany and Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO.

While no formal plan for unity has been advanced, the Post-Dispatch learned that a basic working arrangement had been suggested tentatively in an informal conversation between a top officer of the AFL and the head of one of the major CIO unions. The proposal would be to have the CIO merge with the AFL occupying the position of an industrial division of the AFL.

Under this plan agreements would be made not to raid each other's unions although any union which might desire to amalgamate with another would be permitted to do so.

Council members yesterday spent the afternoon studying President Eisenhower's State of the Union message. One council member said it "did not seem to be very exciting" and indicated the message to Congress should have contained more explicit recommendations, particularly on amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act.

ATTEMPTS TO PUSH WIFE OUT WINDOW; SHOT, KILLED BY SON

Robert Lee Sills, laborer, 2104A Chestnut street, was shot and killed last night by his son, James, 16 years old, following a family dispute at their home.

Sills' wife said he became abusive when she poured some oil into a stove and couldn't immediately find the cap for the container. She said her husband threw a chair at her and tried to push her out a window.

A daughter summoned James Sills. He shot his father, a Negro, five times in the chest.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Kid Is Kidding—Don't Be the Goat.

TUB thumping has built up many a phony. . . . And there's been a lot of it in the boxing game. . . . One of the ancient devices to interest fans has been the new punch, with which a fighter is going to win the title. . . . Or the new hold, in case of the wrestler. . . . Or a new delivery, by the baseball pitcher. . . . Or a new formation by the football coach. . . . Ad lib as far as you like.

* * *

The highly press-agented Davey-Gavilan fight has developen a new one. . . . Davey, the challenger is a southpaw. . . . He may surprise the champion who has fought few lefties. . . . So-o-o-o! . . . Gavilan, the 27-year-old titlist is going to surprise Chuck by turning southpaw himself.

* * *

It's that easy, you think. . . . Sure it's easy to talk. . . . But wait 'til the guy tries it. . . . By the time he leads from the wrong foot, and messes up his defense, getting roughed up in the process, the Keed will fall right back to the style that won him the title. This always happens when a fighter tries something unfamiliar against a man who knows all about it.

* * *

In other words, don't believe a word about Gavilan the southpaw. . . . It may get him a few headlines, before the fight. . . . In the ring it will only get him a sock where it hurts. . . . In the meantime, the fight is several days away. . . . What next for the ballyhoo?

The estimated gate already is near $300,000—says Tub Thumper.

Calumet Farm Sport's Outstanding Monopoly.

YEAR after year Calumet Farm's thoroughbred racing monopoly goes on but nothing is done about it. . . . The stable has the most and best winners, the highest total of earnings through long years, the country's outstanding sire—let's make it sires—the best jockey and the best trainers—a setup that makes this unbelievable supremacy seem almost a permanency.

* * *

Another proof of all this developed last Saturday when the stable's Mark-Ye-Well, just another offspring of that marvelous Bull Lea, galloped home first in the Maturity Stakes, richest turf payoff in the world, with another Calumet horse, Fleet Bird, second.

* * *

Mark-Ye-Well — never worse than second in his racing career — is just starting another cleanup career, it now seems. . . . On Feb. 28 he will go after another $100,000 stakes race, the Santa Anita Handicap. . . . A week afterwards he will seek a third victory in the $100,000 San Juan Capistrano — which he seems destined to win if he starts.

* * *

In the meantime the stable hopes to win the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby on Feb. 21 with another Bull Lea colt, Chanlea. . . . If all goes well, the stable will then move East to Churchill Downs and Chicago in full strength, taking from Santa Anita winnings of possibly $400,000. . . . A season of more than $1,000,000 for Calumet once more is probable and for the fifth time.

* * *

It seems a miracle. . . . Yet not too wonderful, if you have the best horses, the best trainers and the best riders — a combination hard to beat.

Racing States Plan New 'Bite' of Mutuel Profits.

THE huge crops harvested from racetrack pari-mutuel betting last year, and reports from Santa Anita and New Orleans of still greater returns so far this year, have developed in various state legislatures the idea of siphoning off still more mutuel profits into state treasuries.

* * *

In California, where the state already permits a 13 per cent takeout by track and state, a bill has been introduced asking an increase of two per cent (to go to the state), making the grand total "bite" 15 per cent . . . This deduction already is in force in both New York and Florida.

* * *

An Arkansas bill would lengthen the Oaklawn Park meeting, increasing the state's share thereby . . . In Colorado, where both horse and dog mutuels have been legalized, a bill to increase the number of potential bettors provides for reducing the legal wagering age from 21 to 18. . . . A Maryland legislative bill contemplates action that would completely wipe out bookmaking and thus force more dollars into track mutuels.

* * *

New York legislators recently turned down a proposal to legalize off-the-track betting, the idea being that this would reduce the race track handle, in which the state shares as a non-investing partner.

* * *

To many it may seem somewhat confusing that in some communities the state arbitrarily can declare itself in on the profit of a gambling enterprise while at the same time raiding bingo games designed to pull a church's finances out of the red.

Yanks and Dodgers to Play Benefit Game

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (UP)—The New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers announced jointly yesterday that they will meet in the Mayor's Trophy game for the benefit of sandlot baseball at Yankee Stadium, June 29.

The date was set at a meeting of Yankee and Dodger officials with Mayor Vincent Impelitterri of New York.

Branch in Long Talk With Cubs

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (UP)—The efforts of the Cincinnati Reds and Boston Braves to acquire Ralph Kiner from the Pittsburgh Pirates hit a snag yesterday when Branch Rickey declared "I have no deal now that is acceptable to me."

Rickey, who only 24 hours earlier said a deal for Kiner was imminent, conferred with Gabe Paul of the Reds and John Quinn of the Braves and they "doubted whether a deal will be made."

Rickey, however, repeated his intentions of obtaining desperately needed infield strength for the Pirates with the comment:

To Confer With Mathews.

Rickey also revealed that he is scheduled to confer today with Wid Mathews, director of player personnel for the Chicago Cubs. Mathews is a former associate of Rickey when Branch was general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. The two conferred four hours yesterday.

Paul, who freely advertised his desire to acquire the seven-time National League home run king and his $90,000-a-year salary, left New York early last night to return to Cincinnati. Quinn, meanwhile, is scheduled to remain in New York and will be joined later this week by Lou Perini, president of the Braves.

Rickey would not reveal the players mentioned in yesterday's conferences but Paul announced that his offer was of five players. Two of the players are believed to be first-baseman-outfielder Joe Adcock and rookie shortstop Alex Glannas. The others are a pitcher, an infielder and an outfielder.

The nature of the Braves' offer was not revealed but it obviously fell short of the Sid Gordon-Earl Torgeson, an infielder and cash outlay visioned by Rickey.

Gordon a Question Mark.

It was believed that the Braves balked at the inclusion of Gordon. It is understood that they are willing, if not eager, to trade Torgeson.

Speculations on the trade that Mathews might offer Rickey immediately brought up the names of infielder Eddie Miksis, pitcher Johnny Klippstein and outfielder Hal Jeffcoat. Miksis, a brilliant fielder but weak hitter, was always a Rickey favorite and could do much to lift the Pittsburgh infield to big league caliber.

Klippstein, a righthander, had a 9-14 record for the Cubs in 1952 but is a hard thrower and some experts believe he will develop into a first-rate pitcher this year much in the manner that Warren Hacker did last.

Jeffcoat hit only .220 in 103 games last season but is a brilliant fielder of the type required to the vast acreage of Forbes Field. Rickey said Kiner could help Brooklyn more than any club in the league.

BOBBY SHANTZ'S 2-YEAR CONTRACT CALLS FOR $50,000

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Bobby Shantz, most valuable player in the American League last season, topped a list of 15 players who signed 1953 major league contracts yesterday.

The tiny Philadelphia southpaw agreed to a two-year deal with the Athletics which will pay him more than $50,000. His salary will be the most ever paid to a pitcher by the Athletics.

The Athletics also signed outfielder-third baseman Allie Clark and released Sad Sam Zoldak, veteran relief hurler who went from the Browns to Cleveland in a $100,000 transaction several years ago.

The Chicago White Sox came to terms with Pitcher Saul Rogovin while the other dozen signings were by National League clubs.

The New York Giants gathered five men into the fold—pitchers Jack Harshman and Bill Connelly, outfielder Clint Hartung and infielders Bill Rigney and Bob Hofman, a St. Louisan.

Veteran pitcher Joe Hatten signed with the Chicago Cubs. The Philadelphia Phillies added pitcher Jack Sanford, infielder Dick Young and outfielder Joe Tesauro and the Brooklyn Dodgers signed three rookie outfielders—Carmen Mauro, Bill Antonello and Gino Cimoli.

Braves Sign Prep Star.

Burgess, who played for St. Mary's High School here last season and was instrumental in that school's victory in the northern California Catholic League, received a bonus.

Burgess is attending Fresno State College.

Stanky on Flying Visit Sings Praises of Rookies

By Neal Russo

Eddie Stanky, the Fat Boy Diet's loudest rooter, had optimism to spare today as he went over player personnel matters at the Cardinal office on his final visit to the city until his return in April for the series with the Browns.

After studying calorie charts during appearances yesterday before the Traffic Club of St. Louis at Hotel Jefferson and the American Retailers Association at Hotel Chase, the Redbird manager huddled with Joe Mathes, farm director, and other Cardinal officials.

Most pleasant stop on his current banquet tour, Stanky reported, was the two-day visit to Rochester, N.Y., just before the weekend meetings in New York.

"Instead of being asked questions in Rochester, I asked them," tSanky said, "and I found out plenty. About Ray Jablonski, third baseman . . . Wally Lammers, shortstop . . . Rip Repulski, who looks like a great defensive centerfielder who struck out a lot less in 1952 than he had previously . . . Jack Faszholz, pitcher from St. Louis . . . Jack Crimian, relief pitcher who won the Little World Series almost single-handed and who will join the best bullpen staff in baseball—Al Brazle and Eddie Yuhas . . . Steve Bilko, first baseman who weighs six pounds less than he did on the last day of the 1952 Little World Series."

Little Potatoes.

Stanky reported on some complaints, too.

"Yes, I heard about those potato growers who didn't like my advice to my players to lay off potatoes if they're overweight. I have some good friends in the potato business near home (Alabama) and they said, 'Are you trying to ruin us?' I just told them I've got enough to worry about without bothering about their potatoes."

That complaint was small potatoes compared to another Stanky revealed. He said he received about 200 pieces of mail criticizing him for not playing Cardinal stars the last two games of 1952.

"Didn't you want to win those games?" the letter-writers wanted to know. But Stanky said under similar circumstances he would again give his tired stars the rest of the season off.

After Gerry Staley's victory clinched third place with two games to go, Stanky excused him, Brazle, Yuhas (whose wife was expectant), Red Schoendienst and Enos Slaughter.

"Red and Enos said they didn't care about batting averages but I wanted them to finish with .300 anyway," Stanky said.

'Meet Mr. Second Base.'

The Redbird pilot drew laughs as he prepared to stand and take a bow when the Traffic Club president, James Logan, said: "Now I want you to meet THE second baseman, the best second baseman . . ."

Schoendienst stood up.

"In another year Red will be making more money than I; why shouldn't he have to play?" Stanky said.

Stanky said he was tying a shoelace in the Cincinnati clubhouse when he noticed a small, scrawny youth.

"I told Butch Yatkeman (club property man) to get that stenographer out of here, but he told me it was our new pitcher, Stu Miller. Miller's no once-around pitcher, either; after he shut out the Cubs they told me 'he's nice to hit at, we'd like to see him again.' So I decided to accommodate them and he shut them out again 1-0."

Stanky will speak in Columbus, O., tomorrow before moving on to Alabama to close out the banquet tour. He plans to get in some golf a few days before his early Redbirds show up at St. Petersburg.

"Need the practice," he said. "Schoendienst and Brazle took me for some dough last season."

Bender's 729 Wins Ameling Pin Prize

A 729 total fired early Saturday by Elmer Bender held up throughout the weekend and brought Elmer Bender first prize in the Jerry Ameling South Side Handicap bowling tournament at Bevo Lanes. Bender earned $75 with his games of 229, 215, and 168, plus 117 pins handicap.

Tom Beckerle shot 725 in the final squad for second place and $50. Third was Clem Voges, 709; Cliff Wolfsberger took fourth with 708, and Ed Patterson's 704 was fifth.

Jersey Joe to Sign Today for Marciano Fight

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (UP)—Jersey Joe Walcott was expected to agree today to meet Heavyweight Champion Rocky Marciano in their return title bout at the Chicago Stadium April 10.

His agreement probably will be announced after a conference between his attorney, Angelo Malandra, and Promoter Jim Norris.

Malandra is handling the negotations for ex-Champion Jersey Joe and Manager Felix Bocchicchio, while Bocchicchio is confined to his bed at home in Mount Ephriam, N.J., because of a heart attack on Jan. 15.

Marciano and Manager Al Weill have signed with Norris for the April 10 bout, but Walcott and Bocchicchio have been holding out. A few days before his collapse Bocchicchio told Norris he would not fight Marciano in April unless the bout was held where it could draw the most people.

Norris said the Chicago Stadium could accommodate 26,000 persons for a fight. And with top ringsides scaled at $50 it could provide a gate of $860,000. In addition the radio - television money would range between $200,000 and $300,000. "It will be a million-dollar fight," he said.

But Bocchicchio declared it could draw more with 42,000 persons at Convention Hall in Atlantic City or with 75,000 persons in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla.

Rose Bowl Pact Given Approval At Illinois U.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (AP) — The University of Illinois has taken the first stand in the Big Ten Conference on a possible new bowl series.

The university gave provisional approval last night for another three-year extension of the Pasadena pact between the Western Conference and the Pacific Coast loop.

The action came in approval by the school's faculty senate on a vote for renewal if the conference leaders agree to restore the so-called "one-in-three" rule.

This rule bans Big Ten teams from participating more than once each three years in the annual New Year's day classic. The current regulation, which ends with next year's game, prohibits participation more than once every two years.

Dean Bob Browne, Illini faculty representative, was instructed to put forward the university's view to Big Ten officials. However, he may use his own judgment if sentiment of other conference schools is against the Illinois stand.

$100,000 Insurance On Fight Telecast — In Event of Cancellation

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP) — To protect themselves against the epidemic of injuries that knocked out all four main event fighters in their first two TV boxing shows, the advertising agency handling the new Saturday night TV series (ABC) has insured the Carl (Bobo) Olson-Norman Hayes show at Boston this week for $100,000.

The policy affords reimbursement of any loss because of inability to televise the bout between Olson and Hayes, Feb. 7, if the fight should be cancelled.

Injuries scratched both Johnny Gonsalves and Paddy De Marco from their Jan. 24 opening show and both Pat Marcune and Joey Cam for their Jan. 31 show. Two substitute bouts were presented.

Fat Boy Diet Charts Interest Stanky, Who Watches Birds' Weights

Eddie Stanky will have available for his Redbirds Elmer Wheeler's Fat Boy Diet charts, listing 62 foods and their calorie counts. He requested that a supply be sent to him.

Each Cardinal must report for spring training at or below a specified weight. Fine for excess weight is $2 a pound.

Handicapper Stanky himself has been fighting a losing battle in the Knife and Fork League. He has himself down for 161 pounds but weighs 169.

102 for McKendree In Conference Win

McKendree College walloped Greenville, 102 to 79, on the Greenville court last night, for its fourth victory without a loss in Illinois Church College Conference play.

Gene Hoyt led McKendree with 33 points, Loyd Dale Cruse had 20, and Richard Herrin 16. Ron Shives scored 20 points and Clem Parr 19 for Greenville.

Dr. James E. Collie's McKendree team has a 12 and 5 season record.

Billy Disch Dies; Famed Texas U. Baseball Coach

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 3 (UP)—William J. Disch, the "Grand Old Man of Texas Baseball," died today at his home of a heart ailment. He was 78. He had been ill since 1940, when a strained heart muscle brought on a chronic condition that ultimately led to his death.

Disch coached 21 Southwest Conference champions in his 26 years as University of Texas baseball coach, sending many of his players to the major leagues.

The white-haired coach, often called the "Connie Mack" of college baseball" because of his physical resemblance to the Philadelphia Athletics' famous manager and his use of the same strategy, was a strict disciplinarian.

He took an active part in leading his baseball charges throughout his coaching career until he was advised by physicians to retire from the game in 1940.

Uncle Billy slid the bases with his boys while in his 60s. One day, while helping pull a 300-pound tarpaulin off the playing field, he strained a heart muscle, an accident that ultimately forced his retirement.

Bronzed by his years on the diamond, Disch became so wrapped up in the game that he couldn't stand the strain of watching a Texas team play.

"I wouldn't be here today if I hadn't cut that out," he remarked shortly after his seventy-fourth birthday anniversary.

Disch, who sent more than 20 players to the big leagues, was born in Benton county, Mo., on Oct. 20, 1874.

When he was 12 years old, his family moved to Milwaukee, Wis., where he graduated from Southwest High School in 1894.

He coached at Milwaukee High School, leaving there to coach at Sacred Heart College at Watertown, Wis., in 1898.

In 1900, he came to Texas, serving as coach at St. Edward's University here until the 1911 season, when he switched to the University of Texas for a stay of 30 seasons.

Among those who served on Disch teams and went to the majors were Frank (Pinky) Higgins, Ernie Koy, Bib Falk, who succeeded Disch as Texas coach after a big league career with the Chicago White Sox; Norman Branch and C. C. (Tex) Hughson.

One of the most widely told stories about Uncle Billy concerned Sammy Baugh, All-America football player and one of the Southwest's greatest passers.

Baugh on graduating from Sweetwater (Tex.) High School, came to Disch with baseball ambitions and asked Uncle Billy to get him a job.

Disch was unable to place the youngster, but loaned him money to go to Fort Worth to attend Texas Christian.

Grants Totaling $100,632 to Be Awarded to 144 Athletes, North Carolina U. Announces

CHAPEL HILL, N.C., Feb. 3 (AP) — The University of North Carolina is awarding scholarships or grants totaling $100,632 to 144 athletes this year.

A report released by chancellor Robert B. House said the athletic scolarships and grants range from $50 to $1200 annually.

Non-athletes are receiving financial awards valued at $53,385, according to the report. The 289 awards to non-athletes do not include 64 grants valued at $76,835 made to graduate students.

House reported, "not a cent of these funds come from university appropriations, student fees, or athletic gate receipts."

Of the $100,632 awarded to athletes, $98,532 for 140 of the 144 athletic grants was contributed by the educational foundation, an organization of university alumni and friends. The foundation's prime purpose is to give financial aid to students participating in athletics. The report said the foundation also gave funds for 14 non-athletic scholarships.

The grants-in-aid to 140 athletes totaling $98,532 includes 38 grants for $50 each. The report shows that 76 football players get scholarships ranging from $180 to $1200 each, and totaling $75,637 this year.

The figures show that 79 of the 144 athletes have grants of $1000 or more, none exceeding $1200 annually. Sixty-five of these go to football players, 11 to basketball players, and three to tennis players.

Brains No Handicap.

WICHITA, Kan., Feb. 3.

NOBODY questions the fact that it takes brains to play good basketball—to learn it and then to think quickly under the stress of fast action in order to make the adjustments necessary to win. So you know that Doc Carlson was strictly spoofing when he got off a standard gag before the St. Louis U. game with Pitt the other night.

"Seven out of 10 on our squad are 'A' students and one of them—Art Boyd—just made Phi Beta Kappa," remarked the Pitt coach. Then he added in mock apology—"Of course, that doesn't put the ball through the basket."

Pitt was a studious-looking team. Two of the players—Boyd and the football regular Dick Deitrick wore spectacles. And the quality of academic ambition in the squad is very high. Mickey Zernich is heading for medical study; Boyd will enter medical school next year; Don Virostek is an honor student in the dental school. Chester Palesko the same in Chemistry. Dietrick also is a pre-med student. So it is indeed an unusual basketball squad.

This didn't seem to interfere with the quality of play for Pitt was one of the better drilled teams, both in the long-passing fast break which it used fairly often and in the revolving set offense which it set up slowly, then worked occasionally with gathering speed, especially in the weaving variations of that system.

Doc Carlson, now retired from medical practice and devoting his time to coaching, appears headed for more basketball success this season than he has had in a number of years. There's a simple explanation. Pitt has a new field house for its home court. Prior to last year it practically had been a "homeless" team for a long period of time because its antiquated gym had not been a suitable place to play.

"You can't play most of your games on the road and be a winning team in this game," said the veteran Carlson.

"Doc," the great baiter of officials, has become a more philosophical gent nowadays. Now 58, he says he has been forced to tone down his actions which used to be the delight of spectators and the bane of game officials.

Game Is Growing.

WHILE there is some concern about the drop in basketball attendance here and there in this country, the world-wide growth of the game continues.

One of the signs came recently when it was reported by United Press that "basketball fever" has hit the "staid old diplomatic stronghold" of Geneva, Switzerland. The occasion was a "great international triumph" of the Swiss over the Austrian national team.

Switzerland, the report continued, was crushed because it fared so badly last summer in the Olympic games, and then it became even more humiliated when its national team suffered a series of defeats on an international tour.

But then came the victory over Austria under new coach Paul Kiledjian.

"We have indeed seen a transformed team, showing surprising force and stamina and attack precision and elan," the Swiss newspaper La Suisse commented.

Further international developments include preparation by Brazil to entertain the basketball world championships next summer. Brazil is building two stadiums, each to seat 30,000, all under roof, according to a dispatch published in the Mexico City LaAficion.

Under present plans 16 nations will send teams to the tournament. The new stadiums, one in Sao Paulo and the other in Rio de Janeiro, are now under construction, according to Senor Martins Meira, president of the Brazil Basketball Federation, who described the preparations on a recent visit to Madrid, Spain.

Argentina won the title in 1950. The Utah U. team represented the United States in that event. Other countries expected to send teams to the next tournament include Chile, Egypt, France, Uruguay, Russia, Bulgaria and Mexico, and perhaps Canada, the Philippines and Czechoslovakia.

Illinois, Indiana Triumph

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (UP)—Five of the nation's highest-ranked college basketball teams put important victories into the record book today but Oklahoma was left with only a shaky hold on the Big Seven leadership as a result of a 73-69 defeat by Iowa State.

The loss was the first in four conference games for Oklahoma and means that Kansas State now can tie the Sooners for the league lead by beating Nebraska Saturday night.

Oklahoma led by 35-32 at halftime in the game at Norman, Okla., but Iowa State rallied and assumed a 67-57 lead with only three minutes to play. The Sooners put on a desperate finish, but Iowa State stalled out the final minute. Delmar Diercks of Iowa State and Bob Waller of Oklahoma tied for scoring honors with 20 points each.

Indiana, Illinois, the Oklahoma Aggies, Western Kentucky, and Minnesota all came through with expected victories to strengthen their claim to national honors.

Illinois Drubs DePauw.

Indiana and Illinois, one-two in the Big Ten, took a night off from league activity to score "outside" victories. The Hoosiers, ranked second nationally, ran up the highest score in their history to crush Butler, 105-70, as Don Schlundt racked up 33 points although he played only 26 minutes. Illinois, ranked fourth, trounced DePauw, 93-50, as Johnny Kerr's 17 points and Jim Bredar's 16 led the attack.

In official Big Ten games, Minnesota beat Northwestern, 72-69, and Ohio State shaded Purdue, 79-77. Chick Mencel tallied 28 points and Ed Kalafat 20 for Minnesota, which scored 6 points in the last minute to win. For Ohio State, Jack Jones's set shot in the final seconds broke a 77-77 tie. Paul Ebert scored 25 for the Buckeyes.

The Oklahoma Aggies, ranked No. 7, tightened their grip on the Missouri Valley Conference leadership with a 67-58 conquest of Detroit. Norman Swanson scored 26 points for Detroit, the greatest total in history against the Aggies on their home court, but the Aggies led almost all the way.

No. 17 for Western Kentucky.

Western Kentucky, ranked fifteenth, walloped Bowling Green, 71-60. It was the seventeenth victory in 20 games for the Hilltoppers.

In other leading games: Clarence (Bevo) Francis sank 61 points to lead unbeaten Rio Grande of Ohio to its twenty-eighth victory, 97-61, over Pikesville College of Kentucky, boosting his scoring average to 50.1; Clarence Burch scored 15 points to lead Pittsburgh to a 66-63 win over Houston; Duquesne handed Niagara its third loss in 15 games, 71-61, as Dick Ricketts paced the attack with 32 points; Jim Paxson's 19 points led Dayton to a 70-65 victory over Loyola of the South; Alabama downed Mississippi State, 70-58, and Mississippi edged Georgia, 77-75, in Southeastern Conference games; Texas Christian beat Arkansas, 49-46, in the Southwest; South Carolina downed Clemson, 71-67, in the Southern, and Toledo beat Marquette, 72-70.

Bills, With Backs Against Wall, Know Wichita Game Is a Big One

By Robert Morrison of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

WICHITA, Kan., Feb. 3. — Every game is the big one now, said Eddie Hickey as the coach and his St. Louis University Billikens prepared to meet Wichita U. in a Missouri Valley Conference basketball contest tonight at 8:30.

It is easy to see why every game must be the big one now.

The Bills, standing at 9 and 7 for the season and 3 and 2 in the league, have a rugged stretch between now and the end of the season, March 2.

Of 10 games remaining on the regular season schedule, six are away from home and that in itself is not a favorable balance.

Moreover, many of the remaining opponents—say, at least six or seven out of 10—have appeared capable of winning at their appointed time and place on the St. Louis schedule.

Wichita is one of these for, although the Shockers were a 16-point victim at St. Louis, 92-76, they easily could become a more serious problem on their home court. Here they have lost only once (to Tulsa) in an 11-6 season so far. Their league mark is 1-4.

Hickey, of course, was aware of the situation.

Scheer Ready Now.

"Paul Scheer (Wichita's standout shotmaker who was injured and did not play against St. Louis in their first game) will be with them and they'll be greatly improved," the Billiken coach acknowledged. He was not ready to concede victory, however.

"Since we last met Wichita we also have become a more settled team, with a specific lineup," Hickey continued, "and while we've had weak moments and haven't had the stability or finesse of a veteran team, we've made a creditable showing in almost every instance."

That specific lineup includes the sophomore scoring sensation, Dick Boushka, who has averaged 21.2 points per game and who had a school record 36 in the first meeting with Wichita; Center Tom Lillis, Forward Jerry Koch, and Guards Bob Dubinick and Bob Klostermeyer.

The difference in the St. Louis team make-up since it played Wichita a month ago is that Sophomore Bob Dubinick has replaced Pat Partington as a starter. Dubinick's contribution has been considerable. In that period since the last Wichita game, Dubinick has averaged 11 points a game for six contests.

Bills Have Learned.

Thus St. Louis is not quite the same team the Shockers played and led for a half at St. Louis. The Bills certainly have gained, too, in experience. But no matter how you slice it, playing away from home is difficult.

That, incidentally, is an important added handicap borne by Hickey's relatively green, young team this season. They are being required to play more games away from home than any St. Louis team has had to play in Hickey's time. In their 26-game schedule, 12 are at home and 14 away.

"This was occasioned," Hickey explained, "by the fact that at the time the schedule was drafted, Kiel Auditorium was not available for certain dates. It was a matter of necessity."

The handicap is reflected in the results so far. The Bills have a 7-1 record at home, and 2-6 away.

Bill Walker, Former Cardinal, Chief Deputy Of St. Clair County

William H. (Bill) Walker, former pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants, yesterday was appointed chief deputy sheriff of St. Clair county by Sheriff Max Hill.

Walker, whose big league career ended in 1936, is 49 years old and lives at 1523 North Fifty-fifth street, East St. Louis. He is a member of the East Side Levee and Sanitary District and until recently was a deputy in the office of State Auditor B. O. Cooper at Springfield. His new position pays $385 a month.

St. Clair county has not had a chief deputy sheriff since shortly after Sheriff Hill took office in December, 1950. Hill recently lost an appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court, which ruled that his Republican opponent, Edgar Lehman, was winner of the 1950 election. He has continued in office pending action on his request for a review of the decision.

Marquette Names Coach.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 3 (AP)—George Teriep, 30, first assistant football coach at Vanderbilt University the past two seasons, will be Marquette's new backfield coach, Hilltop athletic director Conrad M. Jennings announced. Teriep succeeds Don Fleming, who resigned to enter private business.

Golden Gloves Tourney Begins With 128 Bouts

One hundred and twenty-eight matches in the open, novice and subnovice divisions are scheduled for tonight's opening program in the eighteenth annual Golden Gloves championship boxing tournament at Kiel Auditorium.

Fighting continues through tomorrow and Thursday nights at Kiel, with the finals set for Friday night, Feb. 13, at the Arena. The bouts tonight begin at 6:45 o'clock.

Sixteen open bouts will feature the initial program. Chester Martin of the Kutis Boys Club, who competes in the lightweight class is the lone 1952 open king who'll see action tonight. Martin, who was the featherweight titleholder last year, will meet Willie Frazier of the Neighborhood Association squad.

A novice champion last year, Joe Vitale, South Broadway A.C. featherweight, will start his bid for the 126-pound open title when he opposes Rudy Hamiel of the St. Paul Social Center.

Experienced James Lairy, Rock A.C. lightweight who recently was released from the Army, will try but his "fancy-dan" tactics against hard-punching Leon Brooks of the Vashon Recreation Center in another feature.

Two defending open champs, Flyweight Bernard Dean of Tandy and Moynihan will make their tournament debuts tomorrow night.

Michigan State Swim Team Defeats Illinois

EAST LANSING, Mich. Feb. 3 (AP) — Michigan State swimmers breezed past Illinois, 65-28, here last night for the third consecutive Spartan victory in Western Conference dual meet competition.

Although first string swimmers were not entered all the way through, Michigan State took first in eight of the 10 events.

The best time was set in the 440-yard free style where Bert McLachlan won in 4:39.5 for a new dual meet record. The old record was 5:07.3 set by Roger Miller of Michigan State in 1947.

The Illinois firsts were in the 220-yard backstroke, where George Gfroerer won in 2:22.8, and in the 200-yard breaststroke, won by Robert Clemons in 2:46.6. Clemons's time bettered the former dual meet record of 2:49.4 by MSC's Dave Seibol in 1947.

42 Per Cent of Small Fight Clubs Closed Last Year

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 3 (AP)

NAT FLEISCHER, editor of Ring magazine, said 42 per cent of the small boxing clubs in the United States had folded in the last year. He attributed it to television.

Fleischer, speaking last night at a sports dinner attended by 650 in the Jewish temple Hesed Abraham, also said boxing was going into a decline because the smaller clubs were'nt producing new talent.

In New York state alone, Fleischer said, there were 22 clubs operating two years ago, producing $1,500,000 in tax revenues to the state.

He said on Jan. 1 the number had dwindled to seven clubs, with two on a part-time basis, causing a decine of $500,000 in tax revenues.

Cousy, Macauley Are One, Two in Basket Scoring

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (UP)—Bob Cousy of the Boston Celtics extended his scoring leadership of the National Basketball Association to a fat 93 points today as Ed Macauley of the Celtics, Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors, and George Mikan of Minneapolis scrapped for the runner-up slot.

Cousy, also the league's top playmaker shows a total of 1027 points in statistics released by the league including games played through Sunday.

Macauley moved into the second position with 934 points but was closely followed by Johnston with 930 and Mikan with 928. If you view the race on a per-game average basis, the standings are juggled with Johnston first with 21.6, Cousy second with 21.0, Mikan third with 20.2 and Macauley fourth with 19.9.

Either way, Bill Sharman of Boston nails down the fifth spot with 809 points, a 16.5 average, to give the Celtics three of the top five places.

Mikan has been the hottest scorer in the league since the all-star game on Jan. 13. He's been racking up 24.9 points per game since then, followed by Bob Nichols of Milwaukee with 22.2, and Johnston with 21.8. Sharman is next with 19.5 and then comes Cousy with 19.4.

Cousy has a comfortable lead in play-making with 358 assists to 272 for Andy Phillip of Fort Wayne. Mikan leads in rebounds with 642. Johnston, playing three less games, trails Mikan by only six rebounds.

The New York Knickerbockers lead two departments this week for the first time this season. Harry Gallatin shows the top field goal shooting average, 44.8 per cent, to 44.6 for Sharman, while Carl Braun has the best free-throw average, 84.7, to 84.5 for Fred Scolari of Washington.

The 10 leading scorers:

	FG.	FT.	Pts.	Avg.
Cousy, Boston	335	357	1027	21.0
Macauley, Boston	298	338	934	19.9
Johnston, Phila.	296	338	930	21.6
Mikan, Minn.	332	264	928	20.2

Hayden AWOL? Flyer Officials Want to Know

LOST: One right wing.

Flyer hockey club officials today were trying to solve the mystery of missing Kenny Hayden, a forward who was given permission to visit his family at Montreal but who missed the team's last two games in the East.

Syracuse newspaper men reported that Hayden had jumped the club, as he had jumped the Syracuse Warriors during a flare-up with General Manager Eddie Shore about a year ago.

But there are other factors involved, said Emory Jones, president of the Flyers. It seems that Hayden was stopped at the border near Buffalo, N.Y., because he lost his visa. He had been given an okay by Coach Jakes Forbes to make a quick trip to Montreal to see a new-born child, but he was expected to rejoin the team by Saturday.

In the Flyers' game with Syracuse last night, Hayden was nowhere in sight, and he didn't show up for Sunday's game at Providence. Jones said that Hayden had wired Coach Forbes last week to explain his difficulties of the lost visa and had been instructed to call back if he needed further help.

Jones said that he and Forbes would like to hear Hayden's story before taking any action against the player. Meanwhile, they hoped he would show up (with a good enough excuse) for tonight's second game of a series with the Rhode Island Reds at Providence.

The Flyers, forced to play with only 13 men, defeated the Reds Sunday afternoon, 5-2, for their second victory against the same number of losses on their current Eastern swing. The St. Louis club takes the ice tonight tied with Hershey for third place in the American Hockey League standings.

After tonight's return engagement with the Reds, the Flyers jump to Hershey for contests with the Bears Wednesday and Saturday. Forbes & Co. will be back in St. Louis Sunday night to face Cleveland. H. F.

Moore to Defend His Title in Buenos Aires, Promoter Pace Says

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 3 (UP) — Lightheavyweight Champion Archie Moore will defend his crown against a leading Latin-American challenger at the Luna Park Arena in May, Promoter Ismael Pace, owner of the arena, announced today.

Jace said Moore also would fight in two non-title fights at the arena against opponents to be named later. His opponent in the title fight will be determined by a tournament.

SHORT WAVES

The National Baseball Congress announced that a sanctioned district championship tournament for non-professional clubs will be held in Chicago in early July. . . . Three stakes in addition to the $100,000 Preakness were announced by Pimlico race track: the $25,000 Dixie Handicap, May 9; the $15,000 Baltimore Spring Handicap, May 16, and the $20,000 Black-Eyed Susan, May 30.

DICK MONROE, former Kansas University football player, has been named third and final assistant grid coach at the University of Wichita. . . . An ankle fracture suffered by FREDDIE SCOLARI has caused former Notre Dame star KEVIN O'SHEA to be removed from the Baltimore Bulets' waiver list and ordered to rejoin the National Basketball Association club. . . . T. W. (TOMMY) MILTON, 1921 and 1923 winner of the Memorial day auto race, resigned as chief steward of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway because of business interests.

The New York Knickerbockers said that X-ray reports indicate Forward MAX ZASLOFSKY will be out for the rest of the National Basketball Association season as the result of a broken hand suffered a week ago. . . . Churchill Downs race track will add 200 six-seat boxes during the summer. . . . Halfback LAUREN HARGROVE, leading Georgia ground gainer in 1951, said he would play for the professional Green Bay Packers next fall.

Once again it will be the Baltimore 'Colts' in the National Football League. The new team will use the name of the former N.F.L. club that bowed out of the league in 1951. . . . Colt President DON KELLETT said he will talk to Halfback BILLY VESSELS of Oklahoma about signing a contract. Vessels was the Colts' No. 1 choice in the player draft, but the former Sooner star has discussed going to Canada to play in the pro league there.

Host Was Tough in Tourney

By Harold Tuthill

Big Jim Krebs and his hard-riding mates from Webster Groves will hunt Eagles tonight at Brentwood in what could be a pivotal engagement for the undefeated Webster Statesmen, now 15-0 for the season with seven games to go.

At the same time St. Louis U. High, regarded by many as the No. 2 team in the district, will start its second half of Prep League competition, seeking its fifth straight leagde triumph against C.B.C., which broke even in its first four Prep contests.

The Junior Billikens own two decisions over Dee Wilcutt's squad—37-35 in the Prep League tournament and 57-33 in a league game at C.B.C.

Webster will face one of the few schools remaining on the Suburban League leader's schedule calculated to give the Yatesmen more than ordinary trouble. The Eagles, fired by Coach Don Burt's halftime pep talk, actually out-scored Webster, 30-28, in the last two quarters of the recent Suburban tournament final won by Webster, 64-51.

Krebs Had Cold.

In fairness to Tyke Yates's squad, however, it should be mentioned that Webster was below its physical peak. Krebs, the 6-7¼ center who rapidly is developing into a coach's dream, was among the players who had been bothered by colds.

Fortunately for Webster, the Statesmen have good players galore. Krebs, Don Carter, Herschel O'Kelley, Bob Woodson, Sherwood Carl and Taylor Stoneman are considered among the starters. On the bench are Don Buercklin, Hudson Hellmich, Les Dahlheimer, Laurie Heinemann, Bo Toft, Dick Weinischke, Tom Cole, John Wolf and Jon Thompson, all used as subs freely by Coach Yates.

Webster leads the Suburban parade with a 5-0 mark while Brentwood is tied with Kirkwood and Normandy for second, all with 4-1 records. Brentwood is the only school in the league with an enrollment under 294, the dividing line for state Class A and B schools in basketball.

Brentwood a 'B' Team.

Consequently, while Webster will be concerned about the "A" regionals the last week of February, Brentwood will be one of the hot contenders for "B" subregional honors. Others include Champion John Burroughs, Bayless, Berkeley and Country Day.

The "B" subregional winner and runner-up will compete in a regional elimination at Elvins March 3-7, and the winner and runner-up there will advance to the state tournament at Cape Girardeau, March 10-14, a week after the "A" finals are run off at Columbia.

Other good league attractions tonight appear to be Affton at Valley Park and Hancock at Eureka in the South County, and Alton at Granite City in the Southwestern Illinois Conference.

Non-league attractions include Country Day at Chaminade, 3:30; De Andreis at Roosevelt, Bismarck, Mo., High at Beaumont and Lutheran at Bayless.

And Where Was Christenberry?

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Edwardsville, Collinsville in Same Regional

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3 (AP)—Pairings for regional and district tournaments which open the 1953 state basketball eliminations were announced today by the Illinois High School Association.

Kankakee and LaGrange, current downstate favorites for the big prize, launch their drives in separate regionals at Kankakee and Hinsdale, where the competition appears greatly outclassed by these two unbeaten clubs.

The four week title grind gets underway Feb. 23 when 265 small schools wade into 45 district meets. The 45 district survivors then join 435 larger schools in 60 regional tourneys March 2-6.

After the regionals come 15 sectionals March 11-13 which qualify the winners for the windup at Champaign March 18-21. The Chicago city champion completes the field.

One of the hottest regional scraps is slated at Collinsville, where the home team and Edwardsville are paired in opposite brackets. The two southwestern area kingpins collide this week in a regular season tile that may give a clue to the regional outcome.

At Decatur, the host school is expected to face a stern test in trying to roll up its eighteenth straight regional championship. The top seeded team there is St. Teresa of Decatur, which already owns a victory over Decatur this season.

Hebron's defending state titlists who are having trouble keeping at the .500 mark this season, open up the district tourney at St. Edward of Elgin. The home quintet may stop Hebron's bid right in its tracks.

If Hebron survives the district test and advances to the Elgin regional, more worries are in store. Among the regional entries are Elgin, Dundee and Crystal Lake, all capable of pulling down honors.

At Rock Island, the Rocks and Moline are seeded to meet in the regional payoff clash. Rock Island lists one decision over its traditional rival during the current campaign.

Pinckneyville and Centralia, best prospects from southern Illinois for the state crown, are heavy favorites to capture regional flags. Both put on their own regional tournaments.

5 Foot 8 Linneman Hits 'em From All Angles as Eagles Hand Concordia Eighth Defeat

By Harold Flachsbart

There was only a hairbreadth difference in the shooting accuracy of the rival teams, but because the Central College Eagles took more shots at the hoop and also cashed more free throws, the Fayette (Mo.) club romped to an easy victory over Concordia Seminary last night, 70-58.

Pete Pederson's Preachers, suffering a fourth straight loss which dropped them below .500 for the first time in several seasons with a 7-8 record, made good on 20 field goals in 51 attempts for a .392 percentage. The green-clad Eagles, expertly coached by Dick Brumitt, former St. Charles High School mentor, hit 23 of 58 for a .396 average.

Not much difference there, but the Preachers were a sadly outclassed club at the end of the battle of young players at the Concordia field house. Sophomores dotted the Central lineup, and three freshmen and three sophomores played much of the time for Concordia.

The Preachers' Augie Lubkeman, first-year player from Fort Wayne, took high scoring honors with seven field goals and a total of 18 points; but the boy who made the difference in the final reckoning was Central's 5-foot-8 guard, Gerald Linneman from Salisbury, Mo.

.867 Scoring Percentage.

A stocky player who let 'em fly from far and wide, Linneman sank the first four buckets he attempted in the first half—all from way out—then missed an easy lay-up. He kept popping in those long angle shots in the second half, however, and wound up with eight field goals in 12 tries for a fancy .667 average and added one foul toss for 17 points. His out-court shooting broke the Preachers' backs.

Concordia held a momentary early lead but dropped behind, 11-15, after one quarter in which the rangy visitors showed better rebounding and surer ball control. At the half it was 35-32, Central, and there was a moment early in the third quarter when the score was tied, 36-36, but the Blue and White fortunes turned decidedly blue thereafter.

Former Missouri and Illinois prep stars shot the Eagles to the front. Tom (6-4) Burcham of Doniphan, Mo.; Dean Burgess of De Soto, St. Charles's Jim Koper (6-3) and Big Eddie Moffat (6-6) of Sparta, Ill., kept up a pace too fast for the tired Preachers, who played and lost successive games on the road last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Other 6-foot-3 helpers for the Fayette club were Earl Whited, formerly of Edwardsville, and Granite City's Don Spalding.

New Concordia Star.

Concordia uncovered a new scoring arm in Freshman Gene Seefeldt, a member of the Jayvees in most of the campaign. He sank five out of 12 and also made his 187-pound (6-foot-1) frame felt on the court. Chuck Symmank, a sophomore elevated to a starting role, wasn't as prominent as Seefeldt and Lubkeman. Dave Wacker, only veteran to see much service, fouled out after falling to cope with Central's jumping jacks.

It was the ninth triumph in 20 games for the M.C.A.U. Eagles, but it looks as if Coach Brumitt will have height and speed to burn for several years.

The Preachers next hit the road again for a game with the Missouri Miners at Rolla Saturday and then play Scott Field here Feb. 13. . . . Central and Concordia meet again at Fayette Feb. 14. . . . About 1100 saw the Eagles scream in their St. Louis appearance.

PAUL M. BERRA SWORN IN AS STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 3 — Paul M. Berra was sworn in yesterday as State Representative of the second St. Louis legislative district. The oath was administered by Speaker Lester A. Vonderschmidt of the House.

Berra, a Democrat, was elected last Tuesday in a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Fred Ray Columbo. He is a cousin of Columbo and of Alderman Louis G. Berra of the Twenty-fourth ward. He was 28 years old yesterday.

Also sworn in yesterday was Representative J. S. Wallace (Dem.), Sikeston. Wallace had been prevented by illness from attending sessions until today.

CITY AND P.S. CO. AGREE ON TRAFFIC SPEED-UP ROUTES

Plan Calls for One-Way Streets on 3 Major Arteries, Rerouting of Transit Lines.

Agreement on a plan to redesign the downtown traffic pattern to conform with the Chamber of Commerce proposal for measures to speed up the traffic flow was reached at a meeting of city and Public Service Co. officials yesterday.

The plan calls for making one-way streets of three major arteries, removing streetcars from Washington avenue and rerouting of four bus lines and three streetcar lines.

Frank Kriz, Director of Streets and Sewers, issued a statement after the day-long meeting, saying he thought the plan was the most acceptable for efficient movement in the downtown area. A number of alternate plans were discussed, he said.

Details of Plan.

Pine street would be made westbound only from Fourth street to Grand boulevard under the proposal. Olive street would be eastbound only from Twelfth street westbound only from Fourth to Leonard avenue.

Traffic would continue to move both ways on Washington avenue, Kriz said, but the movement would be speeded up by removal of all streetcar lines now using it. This would eliminate a major cause of congestion during periods when downtown office employes are en route between home and office.

Hodiamont streetcars, which now travel on Washington, would continue south on Leffingwell avenue from Franklin avenue to Olive street, east on Olive to Fourth, south to Pine, west to Thirteenth, north to Olive and west to Leffingwell. The rest of the route would be unchanged.

Addition to Tracks.

Additional tracks would have to be built by the Public Service Co. along the two blocks on Leffingwell between Washington and Olive.

Delmar and University streetcars would go east on Olive to Fourth, as now, but then would follow the same route as proposed for the Hodiamont line to return to Thirteenth and Olive.

Forest Park busses, which now go east and west on Pine between Leffingwell and Fourth, would turn east on Olive at Leffingwell on the downtown trips. They would then go south on Fourth and resume the present outbound route on Pine.

Local and express Lindell busses, which now go east on Locust, would turn north from the Lindell-Locust cutoff over Leonard avenue to Washington, east on Washington to Fourth and south to Locust, there resuming the present route.

Lee busses, which now go east and west on Locust from Twentieth to Fourth, would turn east into Washington from Twentieth on the downtown trips. They would resume the present outbound route by turning south at Fourth and Washington to Locust.

North Side Express busses, which started operation yesterday, would use Washington avenue on eastbound trips and Locust on westbound trips. The busses now travel both ways on Locust.

Kriz and Police Capt. William Cibulka of the traffic division today began a field inspection of additional one-way streets proposed by the Chamber of Commerce in the area bounded by Third street, Grand boulevard, and Cass and Park avenues.

Attending yesterday's meeting, besides Kriz and Cibulka, were three Public Service Co. officials —John W. Dameron, executive assistant and assistant operating manager; Guido Moss, director of research and schedules, and John T. Davenport, traffic manager.

The Chamber of Commerce traffic control plan as outlined was given the approval of Raymond R. Tucker, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor in the March 13 primary election.

Tucker, who heads the Washington University Department of Mechanical Engineering, said it was a sound program and could be placed in effect with a minimum of expenditure.

The plan should be co-ordinated with plans for the construction of express highways through the city, he said, Tucker's indorsement of the plan makes the candidates for the Democratic nomination for Mayor unanimous in their approval of the proposal.

Mark Eagleton, Nick Blassie and J. Glennon McKenna, the other candidates, indorsed it earlier.

RENT CONTROLS HERE DEPENDENT ON U.S. OR STATE

Deputy Director Says Legislature Could Provide Curbs if Government's Expire.

Continuation of federal rent controls beyond the expiration date of April 30, as recommended for areas with serious shortages yesterday by President Eisenhower in his State of the Union message to Congress, probably would result in extension of the controls now in effect in the St. Louis defense area, rent control authorities said today.

If rent control is not extended by the Federal Government, it will come to an end automatically. The St. Louis defense area has rent control now because the Board of Aldermen voted last Aug. 9 for extension to April 30.

The board's action, as governing body of an incorporated area which contains more than half of the rental units in its defense area, automatically extended control in unincorporated areas of five adjacent Missouri and Illinois counties. Most incorporated communities in the defense area, having an option to recommend extension of federal control, voted for extension.

St. Louis has no rent control ordinance. The Missouri Supreme Court knocked out the city rent and eviction control ordinance, approved by the voters Aug. 3, 1948, in a referendum, in a decision July 11, 1949. The state Supreme Court reversed a circuit court decision supporting the ordinance, stating there was no provision in the city charter or any state enabling act delegating to the city authority to adopt the ordinance.

A way to continue rent control under authorization by the state legislature, if federal control is not continued, was seen by Oscar F. Renz, deputy rent director here, in President Eisenhower's message.

The President said: "I recommend the continuance of the authority for federal control over rents in those communities in which serious housing shortages exist. These are chiefly the so-called defense areas.

"In these and all areas, the Federal Government should withdraw from the control of rents as soon as practicable. But before they are removed, each legislature should have full opportunity to take over, within its own state, responsibility for this function."

Renz said Missouri and St. Louis might find an example in the case of the State of New York, which withdrew from federal control a year ago and now enforces rigidly a state law applying to all communities in the state.

A member of the city's legal department said he could see "no clear objection" to the legislature's passing enabling legislation for rent control, or in the city's applying to the legislature for authorization of local control.

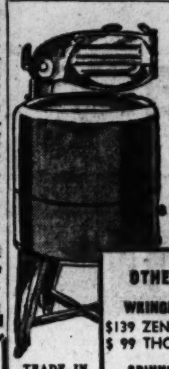

"Only "critical" and "defense" areas are now under control. Listed as Missouri defense areas besides the St. Louis area are Jefferson City, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Cape Girardeau. Listed as critical housing areas are Rolla, Lebanon, Waynesville, Sedalia, Warrensburg, Holden and Knob Noster.

The St. Louis defense area contains about 350,000 rental units under control, Renz said, housing about 1,000,000 persons. Since the city ordinance was declared invalid, there are no controls on rents of hotel and tourist court accommodations, or on units in new construction. A Census Bureau report issued last year and based on compilations made in 1950 showed a total of 168,325 dwelling units were under rent control in the city, or about 64 per cent of the total.

Accident Report.

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—A woman who bumped a cow on the highway with her automobile turned into the highway patrol her accident report.

In the section labeled "vehicle 1" she wrote in all required information about herself and her car.

"Driver: 1947 Hereford beef. Age: 5 years. License plate: none. Sex: female. Remarks: refused to talk.

Mother of the Bride.

Mrs. Ruby I. Boerner, a widow, and Ira E. Foutz, were married in the Mingo Church of the Brethern near here. Foutz, also 70, is a widower.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Margaret I. Bricker, had two great-grandchildren present at the ceremony.

What is the best Life Insurance policy for me?

There is no one answer.
But here's how to find out

First you must decide certain things. For example, is your primary aim security for your family in case of your death? Do you want to make provision for your children's education? Do you want a retirement income for yourself?

Once you've decided in general what you want life insurance to do for you and your family, the best plan is for you to sit down and talk things over with your life insurance agent.

Your agent will help you define your minimum needs, as well as your long-range objectives. Most families build their life insurance programs step by step as their needs grow or change.

Your agent will also explain to you the various kinds of policies that best meet your needs. Life insurance has become so broad and adaptable, with so many variations of policies within the basic plans, it is to your advantage to get the help of your life insurance agent.

There is no one answer to the kind of policy you should own. It all depends on your situation.

JEWISH OFFICIALS REPORTED HELD IN RED HUNGARY

VIENNA, Feb. 3 (UP) — Five Jewish officials in Communist Hungary have been arrested in the newest anti-Semitic drive sweeping the satellite countries, reliable sources said yesterday.

One was Hungarian Minister of Justice Gyula Decsi, who handled the interrogation of Cardinal Josef Mindszenty before the Catholic prelate was brought to trial and sentenced to life as a "spy and traitor."

Another was Lt. Gen. Gabor Peter, chief of the state police, who directed the questioning of American business man Robert A. Vogeler who was sentenced to 15 years on similar charges. Peter's mother lives in New York.

The three others, identified only by their last names, were Csapo, head of the economic section of the state police (AVH), Szirmay, director of the government radio system, and a Prof. Benedek, described as a neurologist.

MURDER CHARGES DISMISSED AGAINST THREE ST. LOUISANS

Murder charges against three St. Louisans in the death of Frank Vassallo, Ace Cab Co. supervisor who was shot to death in a tourist court at Hayti, Mo., last March 9, have been dismissed in circuit court at Caruthersville because of insufficient evidence, it was announced today.

The three were William H. Saunders and George Harvill, cab drivers, and Mrs. Nancy Garner Bell. Mrs. Bell has admitted being with Vassallo when he was killed by 10 revolver bullets fired by an unidentified man.

Charges against a fourth defendant in the Vassallo case, Miss Norma Jean Weber, also of St. Louis, were dismissed some time ago. All were freed on bond last April.

Press View of Eisenhower Talk: President 'Has Taken Initiative' in Cold War With 'Positive Policy'

Message Recognized 'Containment Is No Longer Adequate,' Says New York Times —Showed 'Middle-of-Road Leadership,' Christian Science Monitor Comments.

By the Associated Press.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S State of the Union address to Congress yesterday stirred immediate editorial reaction in newspapers across the nation. Excerpts from some of the editorials follow:

New York Times—The President's declaration regarding Formosa represents the first concrete application of what he himself defined in his message as a "new and positive" foreign policy. . . . This is a recognition that the policy of "containment," which served a good purpose during our military buildup, is no longer adequate. . . . Turning from foreign policy to the domestic scene, President Eisenhower made it clear at once that his guiding principle will be a minimizing of Government interference and a maximizing of the free play of economic forces. . . . The beginning is good.

New York Herald Tribune—The instructions to the Seventh Fleet that it no longer be employed to shield Communist China should be seen by this country and by our allies as an indication of the kind of policy which will be pursued by the new Administration—a policy utilizing military and political means to put the Communist powers off balance, while avoiding new or larger conflicts.

New York Post—It looks as if the major result will be to create disunion among the free nations and cement the Russian-Chinese alliance. . . . In Asia and Europe alike there is vast skepticism about Chiang's cause and great reluctance to link the free world's fate with his.

New York Daily Mirror — The most forceful statement in President Eisenhower's address yesterday, the one that will arouse the greatest excitement in the Kremlin, is his rejection of the Marshall-Acheson doctrine that the United States only responds to Russia's challenges. . . . Now, Eisenhower has taken the initiative. We shall choose the time and place of decision.

New York Journal-American—His speech contained suggestions of fortitude and foresight to break the paralyzed tension which has marked and marred our dealings with the Communist menace abroad, and to halt the drift toward despotic government paternalism and socialism at home.

Baltimore Evening Sun—The speech showed an analytical approach to our problems. As the President himself said, his Administration has not had time to chart a complete program. But throughout his talk there was evidence to show that he and his advisers were wrestling with the facts as they had found them and were endeavoring to define in precise terms both the present position of affairs and the line by which they hope to advance.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle— It (the message) will have a galvanic effect on torpid allies. It might even be the finger snap to awaken Russia from her self mesmerism. . . . He (Eisenhower) has produced a document that should live with the great state papers of the best of his predecessors. He has substituted hope for gloom, certainty for uncertainty, assured courage for desperate expediency.

Christian Science Monitor—Dwight Eisenhower is going to supply positive, steady, middle-of-the-road presidential leadership. That is the simplest meaning of his first State of the Union message. This message must be a shock to all those who have been assuming that with an "amateur" in the White House leadership would pass to the "professionals" in Congress.

Boston Herald—How much we have been trammeled by the doctrines of caution and suspicion can be gauged by the new sense of freedom that the message conveyed. It spoke confidence and action. It lifted the oppressive feeling of frustration.

Portland (Me.) Press Herald—President Eisenhower's State of the Union message was the voice of Republican leadership rejecting isolationism as a foreign policy and New Dealism as a domestic policy. . . . The presidential blueprints for future action was a far-sighted attempt to cull sound ideas from both parties.

Philadelphia Inquirer — While the President was disclosing a new and positive move in the Far East, he also was exerting his influence behind that of Secretary of State Dulles to spur western Europe in moves toward economic and political unity. . . . President Eisenhower's forceful moves . . . increase the nation's confidence in his capacity to master the task ahead.

Washington Post — Altogether every word in the message counted. Pieced together, they made a memorable phrase. . . . Perhaps the outstanding impression was the manner in which the President talked as an atlas. . . . President Eisenhower took the whole world in compass and in his accounting our relations with other countries were inextricably mixed up in our domestic relations.

Washington Star—The domestic phases of the message convey the impression that Gen. Eisenhower, not too sure of his ground, intends to proceed with caution—seeking to lay the groundwork for a partnership with Congress rather than attempting to spell out what he wants done and when he wants it.

Chicago Tribune — Mr. Eisenhower plainly has come to the conclusion that the Korean war must not be allowed to continue its aimless but costly course. . . . There is no doubt that the country, like Congress, will uphold him in his "positive" program, hoping that the cost will not be too high and hoping, also, that the plan will be pursued with utmost vigor. . . . Our principal difference with President Eisenhower (on domestic economy) is where to start. . . . Where we would start is by cutting taxes first and thus setting a ceiling beyond which appropriations would not be permitted to go.

Chicago Daily News—Of paramount importance was his notice of intention to lift the blockade between Formosa and Red China being maintained by the Seventh Fleet. He reversed the emphasis which President Truman had placed on the naval barrier when ordering it in August 1950. . . . Both were right at the time of speaking. . . . The most heartening aspect of the President's declaration was his indication that he means to take the initiative in the cold war.

Columbus Dispatch—The break with the past as it is defined in this statesmanlike document is practically complete. The message was remarkable for more reasons than one, but perhaps noticeable immediately was the fact that nowhere in it was there any concession to political or economic expediency. . . . It was, instead, a frank recognition of the major problems facing an entangled and hampered Government with concrete suggestions for meeting them

Milwaukee Journal—President Eisenhower's opposition to immediate and thoughtless tax cutting, stated five times in one way or another, is certain to bring angry repercussions in Congress. . . . It is unfortunate . . . (he) did not find it possible to be more specific on this tax issue. . . . On the whole, the President gave a sober, constructive and cautious speech.

Minneapolis Star—He makes it clear that the change (Seventh Fleet) indicates no "aggressive intent on our part." He offers no assurance as what the Chinese Nationalists' attitude may be. To us it seems an excellent idea to let Red China to do its own guessing about that. His recommendation that direct controls be dropped was intelligent and courageous.

Minneapolis Tribune — We should not be unprepared for the possibility that the United States may become involved more deeply in Far Eastern hostilities without material help from any of our major allies. There is no way of knowing at this stage how strongly the Red regime holds to its announced determination to take Formosa from the Nationalists.

Louisville Courier - Journal—Not since his election has President Eisenhower faced a task as difficult as preparation of his State of the Union message. . . . Part of this difficulty was due to the very strength of his victory at the polls. People of the widest differences of political beliefs helped elect him. Part was due to . . . his conviction that he can blend into a "team" all shades of the political spectrum of his party in Congress. Part was due to the necessity, as he saw it, of justifying an accented policy of international co-operation while making it take on a hue somehow different from that of the last Administration. In the case of his address, the resulting color was muddy.

Omaha World Herald — The new President believes that America's problems can be solved in American ways, by making use of the genius of free men, without borrowing the totalitarian methods of the Socialist and Communist nations of the old world.

Kansas City Times—Britain and some of our allies have qualms about our decision to deneutralize Formosa. They're afraid it might widen the war. But we have got nowhere by being cautious. A shift to a more positive attitude toward Red China may produce results where utter caution has been a failure.

Atlanta Journal — Eisenhower catches the dominant mood of the American people and of leaders in both political parties. The vast majority of Americans will approve the message as a whole. Criticism . . . will come mostly from extremes of the left and right.

Memphis Press-Scimitar—There must be a great stirring today among the oppressed millions on the Chinese mainland. Resistance, that must have seemed futile, undoubtedly feels new life in its veins. It is a bold stroke in the cold war—one of the few positive ones the free world has struck. It throws the China situation into uncertainty, and that is bound to give Stalin and his Chinese stooges pause—and hope to all peoples struggling to preserve or regain their freedom.

Denver Post—Eisenhower said three times that the Seventh United States Fleet has been used as a "defensive arm . . . a shield for Communist China." He made no reference to the fleet's purpose of protecting the island of Formosa from Chinese Communist invasion.

Either the American people have been mercilessly misled and deliberately hornswoggled by the new Administration's predecessors as to the offensive and defensive capabilities of the Chinese Nationalists huddled in their island exile; or we are about to embark on expanded operations against the Reds in Asia with a capable and effective ally on whom we can depend.

Phoenix Arizona Republic — A bold new course in foreign policy, a re-assertion of Americanism in its best and fullest sense on the home front, are the answers of President Eisenhower to the voters. His State of the Union message offers peace, with the risks that always accompany firmness and daring. It offers prosperity with a minimum of Government interference but without hesitance to intervene for the good of all the people whenever emergency arises.

Los Angeles Times—President Eisenhower did all that could be expected, and more, to justify the hopes and faith of those who voted for him last November. Few Presidents have ever set forth so lucidly a line of policy, foreign and domestic, in their first appearance before or message to Congress.

San Francisco Call-Bulletin—Uncle Sam is back on the right track at last. His (the President's) address is yet further indication that he means business when it comes to putting the Government on a more businesslike basis.

Portland Oregonian—President Eisenhower's State of the Union message goes to the heart of the world problem which must be met if our domestic troubles are to be eased. . . . It may take some time for the world to get used to a middle-of-the-road approach by this country to the tensions and threats which beset us.

Stassen to Send Teams on Study Of Europe Aid

Groups Led by Business Men Will Check on Needs of Nations.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

PARIS, Feb. 3.

HAROLD E. STASSEN, director of the Mutual Security Agency, main American agency for foreign aid, will send a team of investigators within the next four weeks to every nation in which the MSA maintains a mission, it was indicated here yesterday. Stassen was here with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on a 10-day fact-finding trip to seven western Europe countries which are the main recipients of American aid.

The teams' assignment will be to make independent surveys to determine what part of the America aid program is essential and what can be dispensed with. This apparently is the start of the Eisenhower Administration's program of reform and elimination of waste in the foreign aid program.

The teams will be made up of about 48 business men serving without pay. They will meet with Stassen in Washington on Feb. 9, the day he returns from Europe, and will be directed to make a study of the program and personnel situation in the countries they visit. They will be told to complete their tours by March 12.

(In Washington, Chairman Chiperfield, Illinois, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said Stassen had told him that the project would be headed by Clarence Francis, chairman of the board of General Foods Corp., New York. Clarence B. Randall, president of Inland Steel Corp., Chicago, was reported to be slated to head one of the teams.)

Most of Europe's Press Criticizes Formosa Step as New War Risk

British and French Editorials Voice Fears — Turkish Papers Think Eisenhower Decision May Shorten Korea Conflict.

PARIS, Feb. 3 (AP).

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S decision to lift the protecting wing of the Seventh Fleet from the China coast was criticized today in the editorial columns of the European press.

In Indochina French political and military circles feared it might "internationalize" the war there.

Paris newspaper editorialists today were for the most part unhappy about it, an opinion paralleling the views of English papers.

But in Turkey, which has a larger contingent in Korea than any country except Britain and America, the press found Eisenhower's decision good and perhaps likely to shorten the Korean war.

"A coalition among great powers ought not to go along without consultations, especially where it involves questions of such gravity," said L'Aurore, of Paris.

It added agreement with Eisenhower's comment in his State of the Union address that rearmament of the United States must be kept within the bounds of economic soundness. That goes for France, too, the paper said, adding:

The leftist Paris Liberation snapped:

"The new President of the United States is risking a third world war by his decision, taken under pressure of the Republican Administration and the military clique of Gen. MacArthur."

The paper added that if the Nationalist Chinese launched air attacks on Chinese cities from Formosa, they could expect reprisals and should not be surprised if Red China "decided to wipe out that nest of serpents on Formosa."

The Communist party newspaper L'Humanite editorialized only in headlines by saying "Eisenhower announces his decision to use Formosa and Indochina as bases of aggression against China."

Hurriyet, of Istanbul, Turkey's biggest paper, said the Eisenhower decision may shorten the Korean war.

"Chinese Nationalist forces will now be free to organize raids on the Chinese mainland directly threatening Communist China with a forthcoming invasion," it said.

"It is now clear Eisenhower is more energetic than Truman in the Far East to solve the Korean conflict."

Press comment throughout Turkey was favorable about the decision.

In Norway, the Oslo Morgen Posten said "one fears the unknown, that is, how Moscow and Peiping will react."

"Only the future developments will prove whether the pessimists are right, and whether the Chinese Nationalists will prove strong enough to wage a full-scale war on the mainland," the Oslo paper said.

Il Tempo of Rome said Eisenhower's policy in the Pacific would bring American pressure for quicker action on unifying Europe.

In Indochina, Premier Nguyen Van Tam first declared the problem was "purely Chinese," but in response to further questions added: "The situation in Asia is such that decisive measures must be taken from day to day. The de-neutralization of Formosa is of heavy consequence, and may lead to decisive measures."

His guarded words were more clearly reflected in comments of political figures who did not want to be quoted. Their desire, as outlined by correspondent Max Clos, is "to avoid any act which might be taken by Peiping as an excuse for direct intervention in Indochina."

He added that the French have barely enough troops to battle the Communist-led insurgents within the country and could not meet a Chinese invasion from the north.

The Times of India said editorially President Eisenhower "delights in hunting for peace with a gun."

It said de-neutralization of Formosa would have the effect of "inciting the Chinese Nationalists to attack the mainland from which they were ignominously driven four years ago."

There was no official comment but privately a responsible Indian official said:

"Political circles are agreed that the implications of this could be far-reaching. Obviously it would create grave fears of extension of the conflict in the Far East. Also it would make it much more difficult for any approach to settle the Far Eastern problem, either in the United Nations or outside. Therefore,

Truman Affable But Still Mum About Message

Waves to Passersby on Street as He Tells Reporters, 'No Comment.'

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 3.

FORMER President Truman persisted today in his refusal to comment on President Eisenhower's State of the Union message.

Truman was tight-lipped and stonily silent yesterday after hearing his successor's speech by radio in his office here, but it had been expected that, with a night to review and ponder the import of what Eisenhower had to say, the former President might be willing to express some reaction to the address.

But to reporters who met him this morning, Truman was stubbornly non-committal.

He was reminded that a whole night had passed since he heard the address and was asked if that might have helped him form some opinion on the Eisenhower talk.

"You know what the answer to that," he said, "no comment." You are free to ask me anything you want, but the answer will be "no comment."

Truman was affable, but there was no mistaking the stubbornness of his position. If there was any resentment in him because of the Eisenhower talk, he did not show it. He doffed his hat to passersby as he talked with reporters and waved friendly greetings.

One man who stopped to shake his hand, asked Truman, "What are we supposed to call you now?"

The former President replied with a chuckle, "I've been County Judge, Senator, Vice President and President, so you can take your pick."

He then picked up a suitcase of mail and went into his office to resume dictating replies to mail still pouring into his office and his home at Independence.

HOOVER PRAISES MESSAGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Former Republican President Herbert Hoover said yesterday of President Eisenhower's State of the Union message:

"President Eisenhower's speech was a forthright, direct, economically and philosophically sound Americanism."

Extent of Aid to Be Given Chiang In Any Attack on Chinese Reds Now Major Issue for Eisenhower

No Commitment by President—Dulles Said to Have Told French Officials Washington Does Not Intend to Support Nationalists in Any 'Reckless Actions.'

By JOHN HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP).

BY his order releasing Chinese Nationalist forces on Formosa to attack the Reds, President Eisenhower has closed one long and bitter dispute, but has almost certainly opened another.

For a major question which now confronts the Eisenhower administration is whether and to what extent the United States should support and assist Chiang Kai-shek in mounting sea and air raids—and more importantly in fulfilling his avowed determination to invade the Chinese mainland.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is reported to have told nervous French officials in Paris yesterday that Washington does not intend to support Chiang in any "reckless actions." All indications here are that Eisenhower intends (1) to let the Nationalists make whatever raids they can with present limited capabilities, and (2) protect their island, meanwhile, with the Seventh Fleet.

Demands by Chiang Likely.

Diplomatic authorities believe Chiang will not be satisfied with this, and will begin pressing for large-scale American help to mount a major invasion of Red China—the return to the continent to which he has long pledged himself. Up to the advent of the new administration the disagreement here had been between those who wanted action by the Chinese Nationalists, and the Truman administration, which wanted no active war in that area.

Eisenhower resolved that one yesterday by taking the wraps off the Nationalist forces which, as far as they are ready for action, have been trained and equipped by the United States. But he made no commitment to increase aid and authoritative informants said there was no plan now for any substantial increase.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, was asked on an MBS radio program last night whether Chiang's forces could attack the mainland without strong United States air and naval support.

"Not right now," he replied. "Perhaps sometime in the future they may be able to do it by themselves if we increase the amount of aid we are giving them."

Chairman Short (Rep.), Missouri, of the House Armed Services Committee, said a naval blockade may be the next move to "step up the pressure" on Red China. Conceding there was risk in the new Administration's course, he said, "We can't forever have a stalemate."

Representative Van Zandt (Rep.), Pennsylvania, also predicted a China coast blockade to "stop the thousands of tons of critical materials that are flowing into ports like Shanghai, Yunghai, Amoy and Swatow in ships flying the flags of Britain, Panama, Poland and Norway."

A storm of Allied criticism almost certainly would accompany any decision to blockade the China coast, not only on loss of trade grounds but on the theory that the blockade, although technically not an act of war, might invoke the Soviet-China defense pact and touch off a new world conflict.

Gen. Bradley, in his radio interview, also mentioned a blockade as one of the steps that "might" be taken.

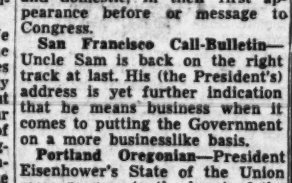

Chinese Leaders Reach U.S.

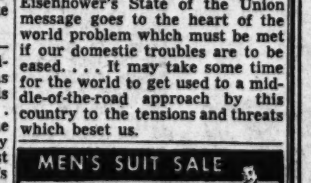

Nationalist China's navy and marine corps commanders, who would be entrusted with planning any raid from Formosa on the Red China coast, arrived in San Francisco yesterday by plane on their way to Washington.

In the background of consideration of how much aid to give Chiang and what operations to encourage him to undertake lies a basic question: How much deeper should the United States risk getting involved in the Far East? Eisenhower and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, all of whom would

Swing Towards the Right

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The free world certainly has a power to fear in Communist Russia and its scheme for world expansion. I believe we do need some kind of investigation of Communists in America (not the McCarthy kind, however).

But there is another evil, which this all-out fight on Communism overlooks —that is the extreme right movement of the Fascists. Signs of Fascism are popping up all over the world; neo-Nazism is becoming very strong in Germany.

But I am even more concerned with the fascistic trends appearing in our own country — the attacks on the United Nations, the pressures on academic freedom, the numerous attacks against our public school systems.

It was frightening to read how a small group was able to exert enough pressure to remove the study of UNESCO from the public schools in Los Angeles.

Many extreme right groups are only too willing to work under the guise of loyal Americans, especially when it comes to their fights against the "Commies."

Let us remember the freedom of which we in America are proud. Let us not be foolish enough to give up this freedom and jump on the "right" bandwagon, because of our distrust and fear of the "left."

Nothing Will Be Discarded

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Having spent two years in Korea I know of the terrible shortage of clothing among those people. The winters are below zero and the homes unheated.

Wanting to help, I wrote to a friend there, asking where I could send used clothing to be given directly to people in need. He sent the following address, with an appeal for anything I could collect for 300 war orphans:

Sister Anna Maria Rosi, Chief Nurse
Italian Red Cross Hospital No. 68
MAPO 6400, c/o PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Now, 300 orphans are quite a few more than I can handle personally and I'm wondering if anyone else would care to send something. Anything at all can be used—gloves, woolens, all sorts of clothing and materials.

Larger things will be cut down or distributed to needy grown-ups. Nothing will be discarded. They'll even use the cord you tie the box with.

Every Fan an Owner

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Most United States corporations are owned by the public. Why not the Cardinals?

Sell the stock in small units to any one in St. Louis and the area the team draws from. The people who buy tickets are the biggest asset the Cardinals have. Sell shares at $25 so most anyone could be an owner, and put a limit of 20 shares to a person.

Have a clause that the club can't be moved from St. Louis and the owners could almost fill the ball park.

That Helms baby story by L. L. Richardson in Saturday's Mirror of Public Opinion was an exceptionally touching piece. Why don't you have more items like it to take the dullness off the humdrum stuff? MRS. R. VELTEN.

Cowboys in the Rookeries

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Much publicity is being given to the many traffic law violations, but little thought apparently is being aimed at our youths who live in the rookery villages surrounding the city and operate their vehicles without any, or with very little, law enforcement.

Police autos in these bedroom communities sometimes cruise around, but most of the time they are parked at a gasoline filling station or a tavern, while their operators practice being tax-supported imitations of drug-store cowboys.

Until these rookeries have law enforcement under which our youths grow up, the youths will not be impressed by the boundary lines of the City of St. Louis, nor by its laws or ordinances. LEON LaFONTE.

Coliseum Condemned

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Condemned! Can you deny your guilt?
Yours is the sin of growing old;
The bravest bloom at last must wilt,
Fame's warm caress like spring's grows cold.
Time lays a heavy hand on all
Yet there are joys we may recall
And when I pause to contemplate
The abject ruin and decay
Like flames from coals heaped on the grate,
The glories of your yesterday
Transcend the present, drab and dire,
To set my brooding heart afire!

WILLIAM A. MARTIN.

The President's Message

President Eisenhower's State of the Union message gave him his first opportunity to spell out in some detail the foreign and domestic policies which his Administration will pursue. The objectives he set forth are broadly those which he laid down in the campaign.

In foreign affairs, he laid great stress on taking strong initiatives calculated to end the "posture of paralyzed tension" in which the free world finds itself. In the domestic field, he emphasized his concern for civil rights, his determination to reach a balanced budget, and his interest in unification of the armed forces.

The first step in what President Eisenhower defines as a "new, positive foreign policy" is his decision on Formosa, but the full meaning of that decision will not be clear until it is known what other steps, if any, he plans with respect to Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist forces.

So far, the President has only given instructions that the Seventh fleet, in his words, shall "no longer be employed to shield Communist China." Evidently the fleet retains the second part of the mission which President Truman gave it in July 1950—the protection of Formosa from Communist attacks. But it will no longer prevent the Nationalists from attacking the China coast by air or by sea.

This does not by any means imply that the Nationalists will or can promptly attack. They would need American equipment even for sporadic raids. For anything beyond raids of this type, continuous support and supply by the United States would undoubtedly have to be committed. About such a commitment President Eisenhower has said nothing. On the contrary, he made a strong point of saying that "this order implies no aggressive intent on our part."

* * *

The Truman Administration, acting on the advice of the same chiefs of staff who now advise the Eisenhower Administration, had four main reasons, which it repeatedly made clear to the public, for opposing a large-scale enlistment of Chiang's Nationalists in offensive operations on the mainland. These were:

(1) A belief that Chiang was too weak to accomplish much against an enemy which had thrown him off the mainland and which still retained substantial power opposite Formosa despite its involvement in Korea.

(2) A belief that the United States would have to supply and support any operations by Chiang, at heavy cost and at the risk of deeper involvement on the mainland.

(3) A belief that, in the interests of limiting the Korean war, Chiang's mission should be restricted to defense of Formosa. This policy was incorporated not only in the instructions to the Seventh fleet, but in the agreement under which we have been supplying aid to Chiang.

(4) A belief that American support of Chiang would alienate India and other Asians who regard him as the symbol of dead reaction, and otherwise weaken United Nations solidarity behind resistance to aggression in Korea.

* * *

The conditions underlying some of these reasons may have changed, but so far as the public knows the fundamental argument against identifying American interests with Chiang's remains valid. Until there is convincing evidence that President Eisenhower intends to embark upon a much expanded program of aid to Chiang, it must be assumed that his Formosa order is intended mainly for psychological purposes—to induce the Communists to direct more effort to coastal defense, to put them on warning that continuing the Korean war may involve them in fighting outside Korea, to create incentives for an honorable truce.

The danger is, of course, that incidents arising from this policy might bring about Communist reprisals, such as air attacks on Formosa, which would involve American forces in extended defense and so result in expanding rather than ending the Korean war. This is a risk for which President Eisenhower assumes full responsibility and he has undoubtedly weighed it carefully against the advantages of his new policy.

The Post-Dispatch, which has consistently opposed expansion of the Korean war, believes that the President is entitled to united support in carrying out this new policy, which is, essentially, a military decision of the Commander-in-Chief. We hope and trust that the consequences will be what he and everyone wants them to be—a contribution to peace in the Far East. But whatever the consequences, President Eisenhower has been made Commander-in-Chief by an unmistakable mandate of his countrymen, and in this first major military decision Congress and the country should march with him shoulder to shoulder.

The President's eloquent plea for unity and co-operation among the free nations was at once an answer to those who scoff at our need for allies, and a summons to great deeds of leadership. He was particularly effective in his plea for expanded world trade, for he couched that principle in the direct and specific terms of requesting revision of restrictive customs regulations and extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. How Congress responds in this field may well determine how the rest of the world responds to American leadership in other fields.

In domestic affairs, the President spoke strongly for the civil rights of all Americans. His proposal to use the full authority of the White House to end segregation in the District of Columbia and the armed forces will be widely welcomed. He did not request any civil rights legislation, and perhaps it would be futile to do so. But if the White House offers vigorous leadership against discrimination in the two fields mentioned, the results can be important and far-reaching.

Legislation is involved, and the President specifically requested it, in the area of immigration. Congress heard a firm appeal for revision of the McCarran Act. The President spoke out against discriminatory immigration rules and called for a new quota system that will "be faithful to our basic ideas of freedom and fairness to all." As he said, it is healthy to remember that we are all immigrants or the descendants of immigrants.

* * *

So too did the message convey hope that the Administration, while it seeks a strong and effective loyalty program, will protect individual rights in the execution of it. When the President stressed the "primary responsibility" of the executive departments, he seemed to be warning Congress that no policing by that branch will be required. Certainly he must have had the McCarthys in mind when he stated that his purpose in the loyalty program is "to clear the atmosphere of that unreasoned suspicion that accepts rumor and gossip as substitutes for evidence."

Congress also got a warning on fiscal policy. Members who have been agitating for a quick tax cut were told in plain terms that balancing the budget comes first. To some of them this may be less palatable than the Administration's decision to end price and wage controls this spring. This decision is supported by considerable evidence that the economy has reached a stage where controls can safely be dropped. We regret that the President did not ask for standby machinery to make possible the rapid restoration of controls if need arises.

On the whole, this first State of the Union message by a Republican President in 26 years was a firm, positive, coherent document, laying down a consistent course of action that follows in broad outline what the people were promised in the campaign. The President has reasserted the initiative that is rightfully his, and now faces the task of following through as his program goes to Congress.

"NO STAR FOR ME?"

Who Checks the Books?

The things that are wrong in Missouri's State Revenue Department indicate that there is also something wrong, though of a different nature, in the State Auditor's office.

Both Gov. Donnelly and the Missouri House are investigating missing funds and missing files in the Revenue agency. But one fact which stands out is that the State Auditor's Department has not made a general audit of the Revenue Department's sales and income tax collections since 1946. This may be only one reason why the irregularities in the Revenue Department did not come to light sooner.

Under the State Constitution, it is the duty of the State Auditor to establish proper accounting systems for state agencies and to post-audit their accounts. But State Auditor W. H. Holmes says he has been unable to make such audits because of lack of funds and lack of auditors.

Art L. Wallhausen, editor of the Charleston Enterprise-Courier, has come to the flat conclusion that "auditors are scarce in the office of the State Auditor." Mr. Wallhausen looked at the personnel of the auditor's office, as listed in the last Missouri "Blue Book," and among other things he said:

> Among the "county examiners" — the jokers who visit this and other counties periodically to "audit" the books, are listed under "previous occupations" these: circuit clerk, county treasurer, a probate clerk, member of the U.S. Army, deputy recorder, student, deputy county clerk, county treasurer, salesman, banker, recorder of deeds, deputy recorder, etc., etc. . . .

The "Blue Book" does list 11 accountants and five auditors in this office, but that is hardly enough to audit a multi-million dollar enterprise with all the ramifications of Missouri's State Government. Nor would the salaries listed—as low as $2400 for some specialists—encourage employment of a more adequate staff.

Gov. Donnelly has already said the revenue irregularities show the need for regular audits of all departments. This being so, the State could give the State Auditor enough money to do the job required of him by law. Or the State might hire public accountants to help carry the responsibility.

One way or another, the current investigations of the Revenue Department ought to suggest business-like administration of the State's business.

A Cat Kind of Cat

Some cat lovers may applaud the honors given a cat of uncertain pedigree in the Lake Erie Cat Club show. But those who respect cats —a different breed too—will consider the emoluments no more than any cat's due.

This cat won recognition in the domestic short-hair and all-breed classes. Well, there is no more cat-like cat than the all-breed short-hair with the contemptuous tail and toujours gai gaze. Mehitabel was of that pedigree.

Finally, the champion was adopted and given a name. The Associated Press regards the adoption as a happy reward for the cat. That is simply not the way to look at it. The final judgment depends entirely on whether the cat adopts his adopters.

As for the name, it is "Chopard's Nordic King." Yeow! If Kitty answers to that monicker, the mice thereabouts can feel perfectly safe.

No Need for a Rush

The annual rush for St. Louis auto license stickers is about to begin in earnest. Several thousand motorists will be forced to make the time-consuming pilgrimage to City Hall to purchase a sticker before the Feb. 17 deadline. And at the peak of the rush there may be upwards of 3000 taxpayers lined up from the City Hall rotunda out into Market street.

This is ridiculous. The License Collector and other responsible officials ought to encourage motorists to purchase stickers by mail, as is done in Kansas City. Officials there have devised a self-addressed envelope which also serves as an application form. It is mailed out to every taxpayer with his personal property tax receipt.

All the motorist has to do is fill out the application, inclose his personal property receipt, evidence of ownership and a check to cover the license. City officials then issue the sticker and mail it back. It is a simple, painless way to separate the motorist from his license fee and St. Louis officials ought to adopt it here before next year's rush rolls around.

Dismissal of the Hand Board

Secretary of State Dulles is well within his rights in dismissing the Judge Learned Hand review board set up by Secretary Acheson to study the John Carter Vincent case. But it is regrettable that he did so, for this distinguished panel might have contributed something of value not only to the Vincent case but to an evaluation of the loyalty review procedures in general.

True, Mr. Dulles would have to take the final responsibility for decision in the Vincent case in any event. But he is a political officer subject to political pressures and inhibitions. Undoubtedly he wishes to decide this question with as little reference to political considerations as possible. That would have been easier to do if he had allowed the independent judgment of Judge Hand and his associates to remain one of the ingredients of his decision.

Secretary Acheson appointed the Hand board because the Government's top loyalty review board presented a narrowly divided decision and gave contradictory reasons for its judgment. The opinion of an altogether independent panel might have been useful to Secretary Dulles in reaching his own difficult decision.

Our Three Choices in Europe

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Revolt of allies against NATO security plan compels re-examination of American policy, says writer; rejecting both Gibraltarism and rearmed German nationalism, he urges exploration of chances for all-German settlement with guarantee of disarmed neutrality.

From an Address by James P. Warburg

During the past six months, while we were preoccupied with our domestic Donnybrook, things have been happening in Europe which make it imperative to re-examine the keystone of our entire foreign policy—the Atlantic Alliance.

What we face is nothing less than a revolt of our allies in that alliance against the plan of mutual security which we have sought to impose. This plan rests upon making Western Germany the central bastion of West European defense and upon obtaining from the West Germans a contribution of ground and air forces to the so-called European army.

James P. Warburg

The British Government is the only one which has followed our lead in ratifying the Bonn and Paris treaties which were signed last May. Mr. Churchill obtained ratification only after an angry debate in Parliament last July, in which, for the first time in the postwar period, there was a wide-open split with the Labor party on a major issue of foreign policy.

Fearful of a Rearmed Germany

In Germany, Chancellor Adenauer, who had been confident of quick approval by the Bundestag, was forced to postpone action from July to October; then from October to November; then until just before the December adjournment, and finally, until some time in 1953. He found himself faced not only with the outright opposition of the strong Social Democratic party, but with a growing number of reservations within his own coalition.

The French fear Soviet aggression and desire a strong anti-Soviet coalition. But, being realists, the French also fear that, once armed, 43,000,000 Germans will become arrogant and unmanageable and will, no matter what guarantees are written into the treaties, dominate a European Defense Community from which Britain holds aloof.

Worse yet, the French fear that the Germans will never rest content so long as their country remains partitioned; that they will either maneuver the Western alliance into a war with Russia to regain their lost eastern territories, or—and this seems the more likely—betray the West by making another Russo-German deal at the expense of Poland. These fears, on the part of the French, are far from groundless.

NATO Blow-Up Invites Chaos

That is why, during the past six months, French opposition to the present NATO plan has been steadily mounting. This is why even so pro-American a French leader as Edouard Herriot has spoken out against the treaties unless they are modified in such a way as to give France real guarantees against German domination or betrayal. This is the chief reason why French ratification seems at this time, a most unlikely development.

All this adds up to the fact that, unless something is done—and done soon—the NATO plan will blow up in our faces. Whatever may be the Kremlin's intentions at the present time, the falling apart of the Atlantic Alliance would certainly make aggression more inviting than it has been at any time in the last three years.

What courses of action are open to the Eisenhower Administration, in order to meet the crisis which has arisen? As I see it, there are three possibilities:

1. The Hoover-MacArthur course. We can wash our hands of Europe in disgust at its "unwillingness to defend itself," and retire into an imagined "American Gibraltar of Freedom." Fortunately, it is unlikely that our new President will adopt any such defeatist policy.

2. The Truman-Acheson course. We can continue the attempt to bull our way ahead, seeking to cajole, browbeat and bribe the Europeans into acceptance of the present plan. This involves additional commitments to France, both as regards financial assistance in Europe and Asia and with respect to the permanence of our garrison in Europe, which the Eighty-third Congress is unlikely to approve.

It involves also making the overt threat to France that, if she does not fall into line, we shall not only permit but assist West Germany to form its own national army. In other words, it means, in the last analysis being willing to write off France altogether in order to place our European bet on Germany. This has, in fact, been the trend of our policy since 1947.

Would Abandon German Arms

3. Exploring the possibility of an all-German settlement.

This is the course which, in this writer's opinion, holds the only hope for constructive action. The Truman-Acheson regime has rendered lip-service to our original postwar aim of creating a united, demilitarized and democratic Germany. Actually, since 1947, our policy-makers have fallen so in love with their cold-war plans that they have lost all desire to explore the possibilities of an all-German settlement.

They have taken the position that there is no use in talking to the Russians about the unification of Germany until a "situation of strength" has been created in Western Europe. They have then set out to create that "situation of strength" by a course of action which, if completed, would make the unification of Germany all but impossible.

The first essential of a new approach to the problem will have to be the declaration by the West that, if a satisfactory all-German settlement can be reached, the idea of obtaining a German military contribution to Western defense will be abandoned.

Toward a Unified Europe

It is unlikely that either London or Paris would raise any objections to this, since both have followed our lead with increasing reluctance. So far as Germany is concerned, the majority of the German people would almost certainly welcome unification on the basis of German neutrality guaranteed by the four powers, which would relieve them of the burden of rearmament. Such a solution would, however, be fought tooth and nail by the present West German Government.

The choice confronting the Eisenhower Administration is, therefore, not only the basic choice between France and Germany, but also the choice between continuing to back German nationalism or backing the hope of German democracy.

In a more fundamental sense, it is the choice between seeking peace through restoring the unity of Germany and, eventually, the unity of Europe—or seeking peace through a precarious balance of military power in a permanently divided Europe, with the balance depending upon the loyalty to the West of a restless, unnatural and as yet unregenerate West German state.

THE BALLOT

Men call me the ballot. I am the voice of their loyalty, the proclamation of their freedom, and the charge of their authority.

I grow strong with exercise, virtuous by use, powerful in popularity, and irresistible through enlightenment.

I am the staff of the minority, the yoke of the majority, the balance of equality, and the root of good government.

I am the record of men's determination, the testament of their political faith, the jewel of democracy, and the hope of the world.

Between Book Ends

This Covers the Waterfront

WATER, by Thomson King. (Macmillan, 238 pgs., $3.50.)

Mr. King's succinctly titled book is about just that—water, in all its forms, aspects and relations to man. This is a rather diffuse subject for so small a volume. The result is roughly comparable to that of an effort to cover "People" in similar space.

In his treatment of his titanic subject, Mr. King is able only to brush lightly over the high points of such diverse topics as ocean currents, air conditioning, rain-making, clouds, irrigation, icebergs, sanitation, the development of steam power and water worship.

Thomson King

The author's style, though necessarily highly abbreviated, is lively and interesting, conveying a contagious enthusiasm for the subject. He performs such difficult feats as successfully compressing the history of naval warfare into a single chapter. Elaborate data and scientific mumbo-jumbo are kept to an easily understood minimum.

An important feature of the book is the stress laid on the pressing need for conservation of water as a vital natural resource. This is a timely problem, now that the American public is becoming alarmed about reckless exploitation of national resources which once seemed inexhaustible.

Mr. King believes that to prevent erosion and assure our water supply, expensive flood-control dams are but temporary expedients. The only true solution, he thinks, is extensive reforestation and conservation programs to reduce present waste of water.

"Water" is highly rewarding reading for those who enjoy informative or scientific literature. Because of the wide scope of its subject, the book is a perfect mine of entertaining bits of information from many fields of knowledge—physics, geology, history and paleontology—presented in an intelligent, sometimes anecdotal manner. It leaves the reader with a sense of awe at the marvelous workings of nature in general and of the vital, though little thought of, importance of water in particular.

A Sleuth Who Can't Be Slain

THE COMPLETE SHERLOCK HOLMES, by Arthur Conan Doyle. (Doubleday, 2 vols., $7.50.)

Sherlock Holmes is the most famous and indestructible detective in fiction. Some have gone so far as to call him the most famous character in literature except for Hamlet. Christopher Morley, who writes the preface to this edition of the Holmes stories, looks on the Holmes saga as a triumphant illustration of art's supremacy over life.

It is true that to many of his admirers the lean, hawk-faced detective, with pipe and deerstalker cap, is as real as an actual person. This goes even for a generation of Holmes fans (the fourth) reared on Dick Tracy and Hopalong Cassidy.

Vincent Starrett has apostrophized Holmes as "a symbol as familiar as the Tower of London, a name that has become a part of the English language." Literature has indeed bestowed on Sherlock Holmes that supreme honor, the secular equivalent of canonization. In these two volumes are all the exploits of this remarkable fellow, a feast of good reading. Other sleuths may come and go, but Sherlock Holmes, thanks be, is immune to the ravages of time.

Six Men on a Snowy Peak

Martin Ordway, stranded in a Swiss valley by a plane crash, sets out to climb the Weissturm, a high peak never before scaled from that side.

The book, now in a paperback edition, is an account of the adventures and meditations of Ordway and a group of five men he joins in making the attempt. Ullman handles the incidents of the climb superbly, but the philosophy seems beyond his grasp.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Fighting for Public Power

WASHINGTON.

NEVER, it is said, underestimate the power of a woman. Especially one with a purpose. There is a woman in the House of Representatives with a purpose.

She is Mrs. Gracie Pfost of Idaho, one of the few Democrats who unseated incumbent Republicans, quite a feat in the Eisenhower tide. She won with a 591-vote margin out of some 104,000 cast in Idaho's first district chiefly by campaigning for her purpose.

Mrs. Pfost

That purpose is Hell's Canyon dam, not exactly ladylike in name and more like a great Paul Bunyan of nature in scope, for the project would call for a mammoth dam straddling the canyon of that name on the Snake river along the Idaho-Oregon boundary.

It would impound 4,000,000 acre-feet of water and provide a reservoir 93 miles long and thereby harness the river to generate over 1,000,000 kilowatts of electric power, to control floods, to irrigate approximately 1,000,000 acres in Idaho, Wyoming and Oregon, and afford a waterway to a hitherto almost inaccessible mountain area rich in minerals, particularly phosphates for fertilizer, now dwindling in supply.

Propaganda Drive.

Mrs. Pfost is only a single woman ready and eager for the fight ahead, but her importance goes far beyond her own influence and her own cherished project. She is a symbol in this Congress of the uphill struggle that must be waged to preserve the great public projects already in existence and to expand the reclamation program, started 50 years ago by Theodore Roosevelt, that has meant so much for the West. Hell's Canyon is a part of the blueprint for the future—if there is to be a future.

This is threatened by the private utilities, which have financed an organized propaganda campaign such as hitherto has not been seen, to turn control of existing projects paid for by the taxpayers over to the power companies and to prevent any future public development, such as Mrs. Pfost's Hell's Canyon dam. She explained that 135 power companies spent $50,000 to print an advertisement fighting Hell's Canyon dam, part of an advertising campaign in which over a million dollars a year is being spent.

Sees TVA Affected.

"You pay for it in your power bills—you pay the costs of pouring false propaganda into your own minds," she told her people.

The atmosphere here is most favorable for the gigantic raid on our water resources. Many in Congress, as well as some key figures in the Administration, seem to have taken the election as a mandate for turning the clock way back in our natural resources program. The only check now is the power of public opinion exerting itself through such representatives as Gracie Pfost. For certainly the people were not voting to turn the clock back last November.

How effective the single Congresswoman can be may be measured by her determination, her thorough grasp of what is involved for all of our people, and the clear and simple and outspoken way she analyzes the purposes of the utility campaign. All this she exemplified in a speech a few days ago before the National Rural Electrification association convention in San Francisco, a veritable field manual for the coming battle, for she put her own Hell's Canyon project properly against the larger background of existing projects, TVA in the south, Hoover Dam in the southwest, Shasta in California, Bonneville in Oregon, Grand Coulee in Washington, and Hungry Horse in Montana.

Private Enterprise Aided.

As a plain matter of good business, she showed how these great projects not only have enriched the immediate region, but, by doing that, also opened markets for the products of distant parts of the country. They not only pay for themselves, but they pay many times over their cost in income taxes to the general treasury which new businesses in the regions yield.

That is demonstrable in the case of each project. Private enterprise has expanded and profited lavishly through these projects, as any local chamber of commerce will tell you, and likewise private utilities, themselves, have greatly expanded their own business and incomes, as Mrs. Pfost documented with statistics.

Frankly she told her own people what is keeping them from getting Hell's Canyon dam. Namely, the Idaho Power Co., a Maine corporation which makes its money in Idaho, but holds its annual meetings of stockholders in Augusta, Maine, of which the 10 largest are investment or insurance companies—five in Boston, one each in Philadelphia, Hartford, Chicago and Milwaukee, and one in Los Angeles.

Alternate Plans.

The company, in trying to block Hell's Canyon, now has before the Federal Power Commission here alternate proposals for the company itself to build either one small dam and maybe eventually four other small ones, or two small ones and one medium-sized one. This would not utilize the real potentials at all. As Mrs. Pfost put it, "no river regulation, no navigation, no irrigation, no flood control, no recreational development, fractional mineral development, fractional power development."

"This," she said, "is a deal we are supposed to accept in the sacred name of private enterprise. I tell you, if the Idaho Power Co.'s proposal goes through, it will kill off the future growth of private enterprise in the region for generations to come."

The Congresswoman from Idaho talks sense. But she needs lots of help from the folks all over. For it is your fight.

CALLS FLUORIDATION MAJOR AID TO HEALTH

Wisconsin Dental Official Cites Results of Tests in Own State.

Fluoridation of public water supplies is a proven public health measure "destined to go down in history as one of the greatest health benefits of all time," a Wisconsin dental official, Dr. Francis A. Bull, said here last night.

Dr. Bull, director of dental health of Wisconsin, addressed a meeting of the St. Louis Dental Society at Hotel Statler.

"In areas where fluorides have been added to drinking water in prescribed amounts, it has been shown that there is only one-third as much tooth decay as in non-fluoridated regions," he said.

"In non-fluoridated areas the anterior teeth—the six upper and lower front teeth—showed 15 times as much decay as the anterior teeth of residents of fluoridated regions.

"Slightly less protection is afforded by fluoridation to the deciduous, or 'baby' teeth, but in general studies indicate that the addition of one part of fluoride for every 1,000,000 parts of water produces sufficient immunity to reduce dental decay by two thirds.

500 Areas Using Process.

"More than 500 communities with a total population of over 12,000,000 persons now fluoridate their drinking water, and the number is increasing daily. The simplicity of the progam and its low comparative cost have led to its acceptance."

A proposed ordinance to authorize the addition of fluorides to the St. Louis water supply is pending before the public utilities committee of the Board of Aldermen. The plan has been indorsed by the dental society.

Reviewing the history of fluoridation in Wisconsin, one of the first states to employ the process, Dr. Bull listed percentage of protection afforded various age groups of children.

"In children of 6 to 7 years, fluoridation reduced tooth decay by 60 per cent," he said. "The 9 to 10 year age group showed a decrease of 35 per cent, and the 12 to 14 year group had 30 per cent reduction in tooth decay."

Young persons who receive the benefits of fluoridation while their teeth are forming "will retain these benefits throughout their lives," Dr. Bull added.

Discusses Mottling.

Reviewing the history of the fluoridation process, he said research into the cause of mottled tooth enamel in some regions resulted in understanding of fluoridation as a measure to reduce dental decay, "more or less by accident."

The fluoride group of chemicals, present in most water supplies in varying amounts up to 27 parts per million, was found to cause mottling of tooth enamel in regions with heavy concentrations of the chemical, the speaker pointed out. "But these same regions were singularly free from tooth decay."

When the fluoride concentration was below 2 parts per million, mottling of enamel disappeared, he added. Most public fluoridation programs add fluoride to drinking water in amounts sufficient to bring the fluoride concentration to about one part per million, he said.

"There is not the slightest danger that present fluoridation programs will result in mottling of tooth enamel," Dr. Bull asserted.

"The task of dentists today," he continued, "is to impress public officials with the virtues of those things which we know can improve dental health."

Donation for Freedom Crusade.

Dentists at the meeting donated $31 to the fund campaign of the Crusade for Freedom after viewing a display of helium balloons used to carry messages behind the Iron Curtain. The exhibit was set up by Missouri headquarters of the fund drive.

Fluoridation of the St. Louis county water supply has been indorsed by the Clayton board of education, it was announced today by Superintendent of Schools John L. Bracken.

In a resolution, the board urged the county health department, to begin fluoridation of county water supplies, "in order that our growing children may receive dental advantages comparable to those in other enlightened areas of the nation."

VATICAN MANUSCRIPT COPIES DEDICATED

Microfilm Collection at St. Louis U. Made Available to Scholars.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

First shipments of microfilm copies of the Vatican Library's priceless manuscript collection were made available to scholars yesterday at DuBourg Hall of St. Louis University, 221 North Grand boulevard. St. Louis University is the only institution outside of Vatican City which has copies of the documents.

More than 500,000 manuscripts on reels of microfilm were made available to qualified students as the collection was informally dedicated by Luke E. Hart, Supreme Deputy of the Knights of Columbus; the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J., president of the University, the Rev. Joseph P. Donnelly, S.J., secretary of the Knights of Columbus Foundation, which is sponsoring the collection, and the Rev. Lowrie J. Daly, S.J., of the University's Institute of Medieval Studies.

Father Daly has been in Rome for the past year and one-half supervising the microfilming project. He will return this summer to finish work on the collection, which eventually will consist of about 26,000,000 manuscripts.

The manuscripts are written in virtually every known language, including Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Syriac, Arabic, Turkish, Persian, Coptic, Slavic, Armenian, Hindu, Spanish, Gaelic, Italian, French, Islandic, and various Oriental languages.

The pages appear on large screens in black and white when viewed. Many pages of the manuscripts in their original state are elaborately illuminated in color and gold leaf, but none of this color has been reproduced on microfilm. Color photographs of some of the illuminated pages will be displayed later, Father Donnelly said.

Subject matter of the manuscripts ranges from philosophy, theology and Biblical history to Latin and Greek classics, music, jurisprudence and archaeology.

In addition to cultural reasons for making the library contents available in this country, the Knights of Columbus Foundation undertook the project to make sure the material would be preserved if the Vatican Library is destroyed. A second set of microfilm prints is to be preserved in an undisclosed "safe place," and will not be available for use by scholars.

MORRIS SOPHIR, PAINT FIRM BOARD CHAIRMAN, DIES

Morris Sophir, chairman of the board of the Morris Paint & Varnish Co., 1823 Washington avenue, died today at his home, 709 Limit avenue, University City. He was 73 years old.

Mr. Sophir had suffered a heart attack six weeks ago and had returned home from the hospital last Friday. He was born in Russia and came to the United States in 1898. He and his sons founded the firm in 1910.

Surviving are his wife, Fanny; three sons, Leo and Jack, of St. Louis, and Alfred, of Omaha, Nebr.; nine grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be tomorrow at 11 a.m. at Berger undertaking establishment. Burial will be in Beth Hamedrosh Hagodol Cemetery.

FUNERAL HELD FOR ASA H. GILL

Funeral services for Asa H. Gill, assistant secretary of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis, were held today at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City. Burial will be tomorrow at Mount Carmel, Ill.

Mr. Gill, 55 years old, died Sunday of a heart ailment at his home, 7417 Amherst avenue, University City. He had been an employe of the bank for more than 20 years. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Beulah Gill, and a daughter, Miss Nancy Sue Gill.

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood H. Faudree, 353 Goetz avenue, Lemay, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary tomorrow with a family dinner at the home of their son, Elwood H. Faudree Jr., 1219 Dammert avenue, Lemay.

COMPARES ST. LOUIS AND EUROPEAN ART

German Visitor Says Collections Here Equal Those in London, Paris.

Private St. Louis art collections are the equal of those in London and Paris in number, size and excellence, Alfred Hentzen, director of the Kestner Museum in Hannover, Germany, said here yesterday.

He noted approvingly that private collections in St. Louis and other parts of the United States generally go eventually to public museums.

"In Germany this is almost never the case," he said. "There a collection usually goes to a son, or is sold," he said.

Hentzen, who left last night after a two-day visit here, is one of a group of seven German museum directors on a 100-day tour of the United States under the State Department's cultural relations program. He was to rejoin the others in New York City. They visited St. Louis in December.

He characterized public collections in the United States as "fantastically rich," adding: "There is nothing to compare with them in Europe now. We can only envy."

Expressing amazement at the large number of persons visiting the City Art Museum, he said no German museum would attract so many visitors.

The Kestner Museum, a municipal institution, has a collection that includes sculpture, bronzes, enamels, textiles, prints, coins and modern art objects, he explained. Another city museum is devoted to paintings.

Hentzen was on the staff of the German National Gallery in Berlin for 10 years but left there in 1948 and has been director of the Hannover museum for the last year.

COL. J. W. QUILLIAN FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE IN MACON, GA.

Funeral services for Col. John W. Quillian, a retired Army officer, will be at his former home, Macon, Ga., Thursday, with burial there. Col. Quillian, who was 66 years old, died yesterday of a heart ailment at his home, 5501 Cabanne avenue.

He formerly was employed in the sales department of the Liquid Carbonic Corp. here. He was a graduate of the United States Naval Academy in 1909. In World War I he served in Europe with the Army, attaining the rank of major.

Following the war, Col. Quillian remained in Europe for several years before returning to this country and moving to St. Louis. He had lived here for about 20 years. In World War II, he returned to the Army Ordnance Department as a colonel, serving as commanding officer of a number of ordnance plants. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. William F. Orr, Brevard, N.C.

In Shadow of the H-Bomb

WASHINGTON.

IN this era when words flow endlessly from every source, the speeches that are made in Congress are forgotten almost before the air they have troubled has ceased to vibrate. If they last beyond the headlines they happen to inspire, it is noteworthy.

Just three years ago a speech was made on the floor of the Senate. It was not so much the form or polish of the oration as the prophetic and passionate words spoken on Feb. 2, 1950, that engraved that address in the minds of many men.

McMahon

The late Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut was speaking shortly after President Truman had announced that the Government would try to make a hydrogen bomb. As the chairman of the Joint Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy, he knew as much as any layman could about the terrible, the almost unimaginable destructiveness of thermo-nuclear fission in the so-called hydrogen bomb.

No Security Seen.

His words were solemnly weighted with this knowledge. It was almost as though he knew his own life would be cut off before it had been determined whether the experiment was a success or a failure.

"If we win the race to build this bomb first," Senator McMahon said, "it is only a matter of time—and possibly a short time—before the Kremlin achieves success also. Let me warn, with all the solemnity at my command, that building hydrogen bombs does not promise security for the United States; it only promises the negative result of averting, for a few months or years, well-nigh certain catastrophe. Do not for a moment overlook the obvious—that Soviet Russia broke our atomic bomb monopoly sooner than we had expected, and she would break any hydrogen bomb monopoly that we enjoyed with equal or greater speed. We are plunged into a truly terrible arms race."

Liberty Threatened.

He reviewed in that memorable speech the prolonged effort of Bernard Baruch to achieve through the United Nations a genuinely effective system of international control over atomic fission. That effort ended when the Russians said a final no. And the atomic arms race went on with a greater urgency and intensity.

"But even if this policy could enable us to avoid armed conflict for a whole generation," the Senator said, "it would undermine and corrupt that which we prize more highly even than the absence of hostilities: I refer to liberty. How is it possible for free institutions to flourish or even to maintain themselves in a situation where defenses, civil and military, must be ceaselessly poised to meet an attack that might incinerate 50,000,000 Americans—not in the space of an evening but in the space of minutes? Consider what sustained fear does to the individual—especially to the individual enterpriser. It constricts his imagination, paralyzes his initiative, and even his personal morality. It constitutes the most subtle and potent of poisons."

A Peace Plan.

It was, McMahon said, Russia's iron curtain that was responsible for the "enormously reluctant" decision to make the H-bomb. But having had to take that decision, America should now offer the world a peace plan of as great a magnitude. It was then that he made his bold and courageous proposal:

"We now spend about 15 billion dollars annually for armaments. (How small that seems against the 50 billions being spent this year!) Why not offer to take two-thirds of this sum, or 10 billions, and, instead of using it to amass sterile weapons, use it to foster peace throughout the world for a five-year period? Why not offer to spread the annual 10 billion dollars over three programs: President Truman's Point IV proposal, development of atomic energy everywhere for peace and general economic aid and help to all countries, including Russia.

Wildly Idealistic.

Such a global 'Marshall plan' might combine with the marvelous power of peacetime atomic energy to generate universal material progress and a universal cooperative spirit. In exchange for our own contribution of 10 billion dollars annually we would ask (1) general acceptance of an effective program for international control of atomic energy and (2) an agreement by all countries, enforced through inspection, that two-thirds of their present spending upon armaments be devoted toward constructive ends. Administration of the annual 10 billions which we offered to make available would be carried out through the United Nations."

Wildly idealistic, completely without reality, so the practical men said. Now, three years later, the hydrogen bomb is a fact. In the tests at Eniwetok last November this first "chunk of the sun" burst with a success far beyond the expectations of the scientists. So the atomic arms race goes on, with the days and the weeks and the months ticked off as though on some great clock set for an hour, a second which defeated men have confessed themselves unable to avert.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HERE FOR 4 CHAPLAINS

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

A memorial service for four chaplains who gave up their life belts to soldiers aboard a torpedoed transport 10 years ago was conducted today by chaplains on active and reserve duty in the St. Louis area.

The group, made up of about 20 Catholic, Jewish and Protestant chaplains, met on the steps of the Soldiers Memorial building to pay tribute to the four who died Feb. 3, 1943, when the U.S.S. Dorchester went down in icy seas off Greenland.

They were the Rev. Clark V. Poling, Schenectady, N.Y., Reformed Church in America; the Rev. George L. Fox, Chicopee Falls, Mass., Methodist; Rabbi Alexander D. Goode, Washington, Jewish, and the Rev. John P. Washington, Newark, N.J., Catholic.

"The heroic chaplains helped save over 200 men," said Dr. O. Walter Wagner, executive director of the Metropolitan Church Federation. "The last anyone saw of them they were standing on the slanting deck, their arms linked in prayer."

Music for the memorial service was furnished by the United States Naval Air Base Band, flags were placed by a Marine color guard and the Sumner High School Choir sang.

United Nations flags were presented to a chaplain of each faith at the close of the ceremony which was sponsored by the Metropolitan Church Federation to "keep alive the great hope of those who died in World War II for world peace."

51ST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversary at a family party last night at their home, 439 Frieling avenue, South Kinloch. The Thompsons, Negroes, were married in Butler, Ala., and came to St. Louis in 1941.

Thompson, 76 years old, retired eight years ago. Mrs. Thompson, the former Miss Carrie Tooley, is 66. They have four sons, six daughters, 13 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

W. C. CONNETT RETIRES FROM FIRST NATIONAL BANK POST

William C. Connett, 625 Skinker boulevard, has retired as executive vice president of the First National Bank in St. Louis, it was announced yesterday. Officials of the bank said Connett, 72 years old, had requested retirement.

He practiced law in St. Louis for 20 years before becoming vice president of the old Liberty Central Trust Co. When it merged with the First National, he became a vice president. He was named senior vice president in 1946 and a short time later became executive vice president. He is a director of several St. Louis corporations.

Connett was Democratic nominee for Mayor in 1917. He is a director of several charitable institutions and served as president of United Charities in 1942. He is a former chairman of the St. Louis Housing Authority and a former member of the State Highway Commission.

$138,688 J. P. POLSTER ESTATE

The estate of John Philip Polster, a retired industrial engineer, was valued at $138,688 in an inventory filed in probate court at Clayton yesterday.

Included were stocks valued at $137,355; bonds and coupons, $1228, and goods and chattels, $125. Under terms of his will filed previously, the estate was left to his widow, Mrs. Olga Polster, and a son, Philip Polster Jr. Polster died last Dec. 25. He lived at 6823 Waterman avenue, University City.

Prince Bernhard to Holland.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP) — Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, cutting short a visit in the United States, left by plane today to return to his flood-stricken country. He expressed appreciation for American aid and said it would take a year before sufficient land could be reclaimed to harvest 50 per cent of normal crops in the flood-damaged areas.

STOCKS MOVE DOWN QUIETLY ON MODERATE TRADE VOLUME

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP) — A late recovery in the stock market today erased a considerable portion of early losses, but the list nevertheless leaned a little lower at the close.

Losses of between 1 and 2 points were not infrequent, although most declines were in minor fractions. Modest gains dotted the list but seldom exerted much upside pressure.

The volume of business dwindled appreciably as prices backed away, and the total for the day came to 1,560,000 shares.

Sales compares with 1,890,000 shares traded yesterday, the best level in a couple of weeks.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed up .1 of a point at 115.5. The utilities group also was up .1 of a point to a new 1952-'53 high. The rail index lost .4 and industrial index gained .3 of a point.

Of 1159 issues traded against 1201 yesterday, 447 closed down, 414 up and 298 unchanged.

Coppers perked up with the realization that they would benefit from an end of price controls The metal remains in short supply with the price pressing against the ceiling.

Railroads, steels and motors, on the other hand, reacted under selling, although many individual issues poked their heads over to the upside on several occasions.

There still was some interest in the movie section as a result of the new enthusiasm for three-dimensional pictures. It was disclosed that Loew's was teaming with Twentieth Century-Fox in a new three-dimensional effort. Loew's opened on a block of 2200 shares up ⅜ at 12½, and Twentieth Century started on 2000 shares up ¼ at 16¼.

Florsheim Shoe was quietly steady. Yesterday it raced ahead 7⅛ at 27⅞ on the strength of an offer by International Shoe to buy up the common stock.

Business World

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Business failures in the week ended Jan. 29 totaled 162 compared with 173 in the preceding week and 164 in the like period a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

* * *

General Motors Corp. declared dividend of $1 on common, payable March 10 to record Feb. 11, same as in previous quarters.

* * *

* * *

Granite City Steel Co. reported profit for 1952 totaled $4,986,000 after all charges, including special tax adjustments, or $3.17 per share on the present 1,376,477 shares of common stock outstanding. For 1951 the company earned $5,142,000 or $4.02 per share on the 1,278,462 shares of common stock then outstanding. Sales for 1952 were $74,600,000 as compared to $86,600,000 in 1951.

* * *

Atlantic Refining Co. reported net income for 12 months ended Dec. 31 declined to $40,427,000, equal to $4.37 a common share, from $45,067,000 or $4.88 a share in 1951. Net income for 1952 includes $5,711,000 from the sale of assets received on the dissolution of a half-owned company.

* * *

Kansas City Southern Railway Co. asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to split up both its preferred and common stock on a two-for-one basis. The company has outstanding 210,000 shares of $100 par value, 4 per cent preferred and 510,000 no-par common. It proposes to reduce the par of the preferred from $100 to $50 and increase this issue to 420,000 shares. An additional 510,000 shares of common stock would be issued to present stockholders. The petition said the preferred is selling around $73 a share and the common around $92 a share and that the split will make the price more attractive to the average investor.

GRAIN FUTURES MIXED AFTER A PRICE SETBACK

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (AP)—Grains suffered through another shaking out on the Board of Trade today and then recovered toward the close of an active trading session. The market had a nervous undertone throughout the day. A renewal of liquidation at one time dumped all corn contracts, as well as several wheat deliveries, into new seasonal low ground. Selling appeared to be based mainly on a growing "deflationary psychology." Support developed on the basis of modest export business, continued dry weather in the Southwest and the probability some crop acreage had been damaged in the European floods.

Wheat closed ¼@⅝c lower, corn ⅜c lower to ⅜c higher, oats unchanged to ¾c higher, rye unchanged to 1c lower, soybeans unchanged to ¾c higher, and lard 13@45c a hundred pounds lower.

Corn also drew a little strength early from overnight sale of 360,000 bushels to the United Kingdom. Other export business over night included 335,000 bushels of red wheat sold to Holland.

U.S. BONDS ARE STEADY

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Utilities and industrials tilted the bond market lower today in modest activity. Railroads were mixed.

United States Government bonds were steady up to near start of the final hour. Long-term Victory 2½s and bank-eligible 2½s were quoted at 95 10-32 bid.

Foreign liens were quiet, though Peruvian issues improved. Peru 6s of 1960 climbed 1⅝ at 53⅝.

Changes in the corporate list were narrow. But the majority of issues lost ground. Missouri Pacific general 4s lost 1¼ at 110¾.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has approved a $70,000,000 financing program by Electric Energy Inc. Owned by five private utility concerns, the company was formed to supply electric generating facilities to an atomic energy project near Joppa, Ill. Bonds, stock and notes will be placed privately.

New G.M. Head

HARLOW CURTICE

HARLOW H. CURTICE NEW G.M. PRESIDENT

Former Shipping Clerk Named to Post Vacated by C. E. Wilson.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Harlow H. Curtice, whose early business training was as a shipping clerk and "a sort of bookkeeper", was elected head of General Motors Corporation yesterday. He took over the post left by C. E. Wilson, who resigned to become President Eisenhower's Secretary of Defense.

Curtice has been acting president since Dec. 1 and his election by the G.M. directors was no surprise. Prior to December, Curtice had been executive vice president of G.M.

Directors also named Curtice chairman of the corporation's operations policy committee and administration committee.

They named Philip J. Monaghan a vice president of G.M. and a member of the administration committee. He succeeds Roger M. Kyes, who went with the Eisenhower Administration as deputy secretary of defense.

The directors declared a dividend of $1 on common stock The dividend is payable March 10 to holders of record Feb. 11 and is the same as in previous quarters.

Curtice is in his sixtieth year. His philosophy has centered around the thought: "Give more of yourself to your job than your job has a right to expect."

He joined the AC Spark Plug Co. at Flint, Mich., as a bookkeeper in 1914.

Monaghan, at 38, is one of the youngest men in the top G.M. echelon. He was named Saturday as general manager of the G.M.C. truck and coach division, the division through which Kyes rose.

MAJOR ISSUE NOW IS EXTENT OF AID TO CHIANG IN RAIDS

like to wind up the Korean war, are now faced with this question in determining how the new policy toward Formosa should shape up.

Behind it is still another and more difficult policy problem. At the moment, reliable informants say, the United States Government has no firm, long-range policy for solving the problem of Red China. Military leaders would like to know, and probably will press to find out from the new President and State Department, whether the United States should aim eventually at breaking China away from Russia, or should embrace some other long-range objective, such as overthrow of China's Red Government.

What disturbs allied Governments like Britain's, which has already registered its concern and requested more information, is fear that the United States by choice or circumstances will become involved in an all-out war with China. Eisenhower appears to have every intention of avoiding that, but the fear persists.

Meanwhile military and diplomatic experts here are not sure what will happen. The Seventh Fleet, still under orders to cruise in Formosan waters, is understood to have the task of helping protect Formosa. If American and Communist Chinese planes or ships tangle in this re-activated sector of Far Eastern warfare, there is a question whether the risk of all-out war with China would grow greater than it has been.

The new state of relations probably will build up slowly. The Chinese Nationalist command seemingly had little or no advance notice of the policy shift and will require time—regardless of immediate smybolic action—to work out operations plans, schedule raids and the like.

State Department spokesman Michael J. McDermott said all those nations "primarily concerned with the U.N. effort in Korea" were informed in advance on Eisenhower's forthcoming announcement.

McDermott said, however, that the action did not require approval of these countries.

It was learned that the British Embassy expressed concern over the decision Saturday in a "representation" to Assistant Secretary of State John M. Allison.

Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo called at the State Department today to discuss the Formosa decision with Allison.

Asked about the possibility now of a Red attack on Formosa, Koo said he thought the Communists were "too busy" elsewhere. He added that it seems apparent to him that the United States fleet will continue to guard Formosa.

Cold Front Moves Eastward

Weather conditions as of 12:30 a.m., C.S.T., Feb. 3, 1953. Temperature figures show average for area. Arrows denote wind flow; shaded areas indicate rain; dotted areas indicate snow. Barometric highs and lows in inches.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Midwest and northeastern states were wintry today as a cold front moved eastward, while most of the rest of the nation had temperatures a little higher than normal. Snow fell in areas of the Great Lakes region and in northeastern states.

A "stationary" front extending through the Dakotas, Nebraska and eastern Kansas is moving toward Missouri and warming up as it goes, and is expected to bring mid-50s temperatures here tomorrow, as well as some lifting of the cloudy skies.

Yesterday's delightful afternoon temperature of 63 resulted when the warm side of the old front passed over. Cold air moving in dropped the mercury to 29 today at 7 a.m.

Lowest temperature in the nation this morning was 12 below zero at Park Falls, Wis. Key West, Fla., experienced nothing cooler than 65 degrees. High yesterday was 81 at Yuma, Ariz. Low in Missouri this morning was 24 at Kirksville and Farmington.

MOST OF EUROPE PRESS CRITICIZES FORMOSA DECISION

In London, the Times said Chiang Kai-shek's nuisance value for harassing the Chinese Communists "is small and fleeting at best when compared with wider political and strategic dangers that are being run."

London's Laborite Daily Herald declared "the just cause of the United Nations all over the Far East will be injured if it now appears that the discredited Chiang Kai-shek is to be resurrected as a valued ally."

The Manchester Guardian commented that Eisenhower's decision "will scarcely change the course of the Korean war but it will be hard to convince such countries as India—to say nothing of Red China—that there is no aggressive intention behind it."

Only the Conservative Daily Telegraph among British papers indicated it was not too worried about the outcome. It admitted the plan involved some risk but expressed confidence Eisenhower had weighed the risk.

Some West German papers also worried that Eisenhower's policy may lead to a new war.

The Frankfurt Rundschau commented:

"Chiang Kai-shek's past guarantees that he will not restrict himself to fight as America's foil. He will use his newly-won freedom to handle things in his own manner. And, with noticeable frankness, he has rarely concealed that a third world war seems to him the best means to regain power."

Drouth Ends in Tunisia.

TUNIS, Feb. 3 (AP)—A serious drouth in southern Tunisia was broken today when rains fell in the Bengardane region. The prolonged drouth killed half the livestock and brought hardship to 700,000 nomads and farmers.

YOUNG SPECIALTY SALESMEN WITH MANAGERIAL AMBITIONS
AGES 25-40
Several of our Sales Managers are approaching retirement within the not-too-distant future.
This fact, and other managerial promotions scheduled for the men in our organization, requires the need of several younger men to learn our business, and to lay a foundation for our future Sales Manager selections.
If you have demonstrated strong sales ability in the specialty sales field and have some field training experience, we can teach you to sell our product (information service).
If you are willing to take intensive training and work our way at personal selling, later you will be trained to teach others the mastery of sales psychology.
To the men we accept we will pay $400 a month to start (guaranteed pay check) plus bonus. Thereafter drawing account against earned commission.
If you have the confidence and demonstrate your ability as a Sales Manager, you will in time be advanced to a higher-paid sales executive position.
We are an old-established firm, the leader in its field. Many of our experienced salesmen . . . $15,000-a-year-and-over-caliber . . . have been with us as long as 20 years.
Apply T. Sigwart, 1225-27 Arcade Bldg., Wednesday.

THIS CAN BE YOU
Why be one of the men who are struggling along at $50 to $65 per week trying to make ends meet? There was never a more opportune time to step into a field where you can really make the money you have always dreamed of.
How would you like to make $750 per month year around and enjoy your work?

IF YOU OWN A CAR,
ARE 21 TO 45 YEARS,
NEAT IN APPEARANCE,
HAVE A GOOD PERSONALITY, CAN STAND ON YOUR OWN TWO FEET,
ARE A HARD WORKER,
HONEST,
Have CONFIDENCE in YOURSELF,
YOU TOO CAN STEP INTO THIS POSITION.

Experience not necessary; each man individually trained by experts; local position, no traveling, no investment. Mr. Hall, the factory representative, will be at Hotel Jefferson, Room 8, 2nd floor, Wednesday, Feb. 4, at 10:30 a.m. or 1:30 p.m. Please be prompt.

WE GUARANTEE
That an aggressive salesman can make $150 PER WEEK with the largest growing corporation of this kind.
SALARY-BONUS AND COMMISSION; ALL LEADS FURNISHED, ABSOLUTELY NO CANVASSING.
You must be between 21 and 35 and have a car, also be able to travel an average radius of 100 miles from St. Louis.
WONDERFUL CHANCE FOR ADVANCEMENT IN THE SALES FIELD.

Television in Review

The Girl Singers Are All Over the Place

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.

FEMALE singers never amounted to much in radio. They sang, if they worked at all, on other people's programs, not on their own. Mostly, they didn't even do that. If the producers craved song, they usually prowled around in search of a baritone like Bing Crosby or Perry Como.

JOHN CROSBY

Television has changed all that. Nowadays, the girl singers are all over the place, singing away like crazy. I don't quite understand why an invisible girl singer couldn't attract a crowd and a visible one can. Something to do with sex appeal, I imagine, a subject I'm unlettered in.

Of the girls, Miss Shore still leads the way by quite a margin both vocally and as a show. As someone once said of her, "When she sings a song, it's been sung"—a tribute I couldn't hope to improve on. Simply as television, the Shore program is a witty, relaxed, urbane operation teaming with production—sometimes a little too much production. Miss Shore is surrounded by able practitioners who occasionally suffer from more imagination than is quite good for them.

AND SINCE MISS SHORE has been under scrutiny here at some length on prior occasions, that will be enough of that. Let's turn to Mindy Carson, who is a pert little number with a whisper of a voice and about a ton of technique. A song stylist is the phrase, I believe, for Miss Carson.

Miss Carson is likely to sing to (and be sung at by) a quartet of four men in top hats and white ties, a costume that is now seen on television and virtually nowhere else. If the song is "Wish You Were Here," the production people will provide a couple embracing way in the background. (Love is being illustrated in more ways on TV these days.)

MISS FROMAN'S SHOW is more of the same thing except that it's called "Jane Froman's Canteen" and it's "for servicemen everywhere." That means that her fellow singers are dressed up as Marines and sailors and soldiers and gives the show an air of quasi-patriotism which is virtually unassailable.

Miss Froman, I guess everyone knows, was so badly smashed up in an air crash that it was doubtful she'd ever sing again and I'm overwhelmed with admiration that she can manage a whole show of her own. My only complaint is that the producers have a deplorable weakness for posing soldiers and sailors and marines in little picturesque tableaux like those still lifes we used to see in the circus. For television, it's altogether too self-conscious.

★ ★ ★

ANOTHER NEW filmed drama series, and a pretty good one, is "Favorite Story" with Adolph Menjou as narrator. The opening story was "How Much Land Does a Man Need," which is almost a parable rather than a short story. It was written by Leo Tolstoy, but neither in the large ads taken to hail the new series nor on the screen was Tolstoy given recognition. Afraid so august a name would frighten the customers away, I guess. Among other writers who will contribute to "Favorite Story"—but don't noise it around—are Anatole France, Dostoievski, Rudyard Kipling and Robert Louis Stevenson.

House Guests

By Christopher Billopp

IT IS a pleasure to have guests in the house over the weekend and enjoy their company.

Except that, if you have two bathrooms, you will have to give one up to them.

Except that you must make sure they have enough hot water, even though you may have to limit yourself to an inch or two of water in the bottom of the tub.

Except that you cannot go to the table the instant a meal is announced but must wait for the guests to appear. Heaven knows what keeps them so long in their rooms.

Except that you cannot set to work on your customary chores but must stand by waiting to see if there is anything you can do for the house guests.

Except that when the house guests have not retired to their rooms they will expect to be entertained. This will mean taking them to visit museums and national shrines you have seen many times before. It will mean also having in other guests who are not house guests.

Except that whatever help you employ will be annoyed by the extra work they have to do for house guests. If more sheets and pillow cases are put in the wash, then an equivalent amount of shirts, night clothes and underclothes will have to be left out.

Except that when it comes time for house guests to leave they will inform you they must be up and off before daybreak.

Yes, it is a pleasure to have guests in the house. But how insignificant that pleasure is compared to taking a hot bath with all the water you want, going to bed early and getting a good night's sleep after they have gone.

KYES ASSUMES DEFENSE JOB

President Eisenhower gives Roger M. Kyes a slap on the back as he hands him his commission as deputy Secretary of Defense in a White House ceremony yesterday. Smiles prevail as Mrs. Kyes joins in the impromptu celebration. In his new post, Kyes will be No. 1 aid to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, his former boss at General Motors Corp.

PRIZE FOR HOMELESS CAT

After Tom had been picked up as a stray by the Cleveland Animal Protective League, Mrs. W. K. Hansen (holding cat) put him in a cage marked "For adoption—please give him a home" at the show of the Lake Erie Cat Club. The judges, checking over 1788 entries, found that Tom was entitled to first place in the short-hair class and seven points toward a championship. The cat, which now has acquired a new home and a new name, Chopard's Nordic King, is being introduced by its sponsor to Hollywood Rejour of Robmar, which was adjudged best of show.

WINS CHEMICAL GROUP AWARD

ANOTHER SCHOOL 'EXAM'

As 5-year-old Sharon Lee Herweck has her teeth examined during a pre-first grade check-up at Irving School, 3829 North Twenty-first street, yesterday, other youngsters provide varied reactions to the proceedings as they wait with their parents. Dr. H. Bozoian, dentist associated with the Board of Education dental program, makes examination as Sharon's mother, Mrs. Melvin R. Herweck, 3008 Kossuth avenue, watches. Little girl at far left averts gaze.

IN WAKE OF EUROPEAN STORMS, FLOODS

Aerial view of Walcheren island, one of the Dutch areas ravaged by weekend storms and floods that have caused heavy loss of life in Holland, Belgium and southeast England. Village is completely isolated in an inland sea. Hundreds of additional bodies were being recovered today from the floodwaters, which rushed 40 miles inland in some places after Dutch dikes were breached. Below, an air view of a section of the British coastline battered by hurricane-force winds and high tides, as waters receded. Scene is the village of Cley Next the Sea, Norfolk. The death toll in the three countries passed the 1500 mark today.

EXAMINING MICROFILM COPIES OF VATICAN DOCUMENTS

Microfilm copies of the Vatican Library's priceless manuscript collection being examined at DuBourg Hall of St. Louis University, where they were made available to scholars yesterday. In group (from left) are: The Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J., president of the university; the Rev. Joseph P. Donnelly, secretary of the Knights of Columbus Foundation which is sponsoring the collection; Luke E. Hart, Supreme Deputy of the Knights of Columbus, and the Rev. Lowrie J. Daly, S.J., of the university's Institute of Medieval Studies. Father Daly spent a year and a half in Rome supervising the project through which more than 500,000 manuscripts on reels of microfilm have been made available. The collection eventually will consist of about 26,000,000 manuscripts.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR HEROIC CHAPLAINS

Participants in memorial service for four chaplains who gave up their life belts to soldiers aboard a torpedoed American transport 10 years ago, which was conducted at Soldiers Memorial today under sponsorship of the Metropolitan Church Federation. Catholic, Jewish and Protestant chaplains on active and reserve duty in the St. Louis area directed the service. In front row, with United Nations flags which were presented to a chaplain of each faith, are (from left): Chaplain Lawrence J. Gerstein, Rabbi Julius Gordon, the Rev. Dr. O. Walter Wagner of the Church Federation, Chaplain Leo E. Pesek, the Rev. J. H. Anler and Chaplain Richard Logan. In background are members of the Sumner High School choir.

The Dean

Speaks Up

More Precious Than Pearls

By Adele Starbird

THERE was once a young girl who was gentle in speech and action. Her mother preferred the older sister who was an exact replica of herself—arrogant, proud and sharp-tongued.

DEAN STARBIRD

One day the mother sent the younger daughter to the fountain to fetch a pitcher of water, and there an old woman begged her for a drink. The girl took the pitcher and held it up to the old woman's lips while she drank.

Immediately the old woman was transformed into a beautiful fairy. "You are so kind and so gentle, my child," she said, "that I am going to bestow upon you a priceless gift. Whenever you speak, gems and flowers will fall from your lips."

★ ★ ★

WHEN THE GIRL reached home she was bitterly reproached for her tardiness. She tried to explain what had delayed her, and as she spoke, roses and pearls fell at her feet.

The mother then rushed the older sister off to the fountain. But she was so disagreeable and impertinent when asked for a drink of water that the fairy ordained that henceforth only toads and snakes should fall from her lips.

Furiously disappointed, the mother drove the younger daughter out into the forest. There the young prince found her weeping—and you know the end of this fairy story.

NOW LIKE EVERY FAIRY STORY, every myth and legend, this is profoundly true. I meet the older sister sometimes and I often meet the younger sister. For there are words and tones of voice more repulsive than lizards from a young girl's lips; and beautiful words gently spoken are more precious than pearls.

In writing this and the article to follow, I am thinking chiefly of young girls, and addressing them. But we all, regardless of age or sex, need to check from time to time on our manner of speech.

I SHOULD LIKE to have you consider what you say, the word you choose to clothe your thought, the way those words are pronounced, and last—but very important—the voice in which they are uttered.

Did it ever occur to you that you are sealed up within yourself? All your life you will be trying to get outside, to reach into the hearts and minds of other people. All friendship and all love are an outgrowth of that effort to communicate with others.

Some writers have said that we are ships that pass in the night; we exchange signals, and then disappear into the mist. Others have said that each of us is like an island. How can we make connection across the seas of loneliness with those other islands in the blue distance?

This imprisoned self we express in the arts and in work. We express it in our clothes, in our handclasp, in our smile. But most often we express it through speech. That is why it is so important to give a lovely form to speech.

Fear of the Dark

By Angelo Patri

"OUR little daughter, aged 3½, won't sleep without a light. When we switch off the light, she screams, fights, gets out of bed and will not get back in until we turn on the light. She seems to be afraid of upstairs. Even in the daytime she won't go up alone, but insists someone go with her. This is very inconvenient for us as we have no help in the house.

"We have tried everything from spanking to promising her something she likes, all to no purpose."

We cannot always know the cause of fears in children. They have them and as this child's mother says, it results in a great inconvenience to the parents. One thing we do know—force will not conquer that fear. To drive out fear from the mind, faith and courage must take over. How to accomplish this is the great problem.

WHEN A CHILD WANTS a light in her bedroom, why not let her have it? We believe that darkness aids sleep, that it makes for more peaceful sleep but we have seen children, and even adults, sleep well with a light on. When a child is afraid of the dark and we insist that she face it alone, we only add a feeling of desolation to the fear and thereby increase it. Better to turn on the light, than to do that.

Take the matter casually, say little about it and leave the light on. Then work quietly to teach the child to trust her family, to learn that there is nothing in the darkness to frighten or threaten her. Talking about it will do little good. Telling her stories about the little creatures, who sleep, work and play in the darkness and the moonlight, helps. Telling her stories that teach trust in people who are always on hand to care for little children will help. The bedtime prayer will help. Meanwhile, keep the light on, if not in her room, just outside her door.

ANOTHER LITTLE GIRL hated going to bed, insisting on a light. A few minutes after she had been put to bed, kissed and tucked in, she would call for help. She was thirsty, she was hungry, she wanted to know if it was raining. Anything to bring someone to her side. Her father put a switch button on the side of her bed and said, "Now, whenever you want a light, turn it on. When you want a drink, go get it. Don't call anybody once you have been put to bed. Nobody will come."

When she learned that nobody would come and that she got no service after bedtime, she went to sleep. With the light on. Gradually she forgot about it. Darkness spells loneliness and some children cannot stand it.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A GIRL asks me: "What does the description 'a good sport' mean to you? Does it mean a girl must do all the things her friends do even though she disapproves of some of the things? I am in my early twenties and because I do not do certain things I am often called a 'poor sport.' I like a good time as well as the next one but must I do things that are against my principles in order to be a 'good sport?' I do wish you would comment on this as I am sure there are many young persons in the same predicament as I."

Actually, a "good sport" is one who takes his (or her) losses with good humor and without complaint. A "poor sport" is one who does not lose good naturedly and makes all sorts of excuses for losing. But one who refuses to do certain things that her friends do because her own conscience or good taste disapproves is not a poor sport. She is, in fact, a person of good character.

Patti Page---Still Just a Girl From Tulsa

Recording Star Didn't Dream She'd Hit the Top When She Started Singing

By Clarissa Start

IT'S been said that only the deaf and the dead have escaped hearing the voice of Patti Page, although it may be that a few cave dwellers in remote regions have missed her, too. If you've heard her and liked her—and enough people have to make her "Tennessee Waltz" and "I Went to Your Wedding" record-breaking records—what you probably liked best about her was her naturalness. And if you liked her recorded naturalness, her own personal lack of affectation would make you a fan club member for life.

Instead of a celebrity named Patti Page, Patti acts like she might be Clara Anne Fowler of Tulsa, Okla., one of a family of 11 children. That may be because she was born Clara Anne Fowler, tenth in a family of eight girls and three boys, and when she goes back home to Tulsa she's still "Katy" to the family, nicknamed after the railroad for which her father worked as section foreman. It's hard to think of her as a half-million-dollar-a-year singer, as she sits curled up in a chair, casually dressed and looking earnestly and a little nearsightedly through glasses. You get the impression she finds it a little hard to believe, too.

"I didn't have any idea of what might happen when I started singing," says Patti, who is appearing here at the Chase Club. "I never dreamed of anything like this. Jack did, though. He knew where we were going from the minute he heard me sing. He's been the one who's pushed and worked and told me what to do. He had all the ambition for both of us."

Jack is Jack Rael, Patti's manager who first heard her six years ago when he and another musician in Jimmy Joy's band which he managed, got into a Tulsa hotel. They flopped onto a bed and flipped on the radio on which a previous guest had thoughtfully left five minutes worth of music. What they heard was "Meet Patti Page," sponsored by the Page Milk Co. of Tulsa and featuring local girl Clara Anne Fowler.

Patti had been singing off and on for years. She and her sisters—Peggy, Louise, Trudy, Ruby Nell, Virginia, Rema, and Hazel—and brothers Dan, Mac and Charles went to the Church of Christ, and Patti remembers singing such hymns as "Kneeling at the Feet of Jesus." The first public appearance she recalls was her first day of high school when some scheduled entertainment for the auditorium program was late and the principal asked for volunteers. Her grade school teacher volunteered for her.

"The song was 'Frankie and Johnny,'" Patti says, "and my sister Rema, who was a junior in school, said she slid way down in her seat, she was so embarrassed."

APPARENTLY the song was a success because Patti sang every Friday at auditorium sessions from then on. On one occasion the KTUL station manager suggested she "stop in sometime" for an audition. One summer Patti did. The school sent her there just as they'd sent her to Western Union the summer before to work as messenger girl. Patti had ambitions to be a commercial artist and wanted to get into the production department of KTUL. While she was making out an application, the manager saw her again and suggested she sing on a tape recording in case they ever needed a singer.

"A week later the staff singer quit and they called me," says Patti. "I figured I must have been the only girl who ever bothered to make an audition. I stayed there three years and never got into the art department except to say hello."

Rael was the first person to be much impressed by her big natural voice. He was so impressed he called her as soon as the program was off the air and asked to meet her.

"I was singing at a night club, too," she says, "so I asked him to come there for dinner. As a precaution I asked all my sisters and the husband of one of them and they sat over in a corner. That was so if he got out of line they could move in. Not knowing anything about this business I couldn't believe he was telling the truth."

When Rael first saw his discovery he regretted the whole thing. Patti, by her own admission, was "18 and looked it, chubby, and wearing a high school formal. They wanted somebody to add something to the band, not take away from it."

PATTI PAGE . . . THE HORN ON HER CADILLAC DOES NOT PLAY "TENNESSEE WALTZ."

She did and they were terrible records but he was impressed at the trouble she'd taken and still had recollections of her radio voice. He sent for her to join the band and with her family's reluctant permission, she went.

"Everybody thought I'd be back," she recalls. "There'd been a lot of girls left Tulsa and tried to make it in Chicago and some even in New York but they came back. They figured I'd be back, too."

★ ★ ★

ONE of the band's first engagements was at the Casa Loma ballroom here. Patti doesn't remember much about St. Louis except "staying in my room in some downtown hotel most of the time and being terribly lonesome." Jack had told the boys in the band to "treat her like a sister," with the result that nobody ever took her anywhere.

When the band hit Chicago, Jack went around from agency to agency trying to get Patti on radio until he finally got her a replacement job on the Breakfast Club. Patti wasn't too enthusiastic about rising at 5 a.m. to rehearse at 6:30 and start singing at 8, but she went along. Most of the details of acting like a big star terrified her. She recalls being on her first disc jockey show. The disc jockey was Dave Garroway.

"And he frightened me," she says. "All the words he used. I looked at Jack and said, 'What do I say now?'"

Jack also got her a contract with Mercury Records and she made about 30 uniformly unimpressive records. Nobody bought them—"and I don't blame them," says Patti. She had just made one called "Confess," with a trick gimmick, a duet with herself, when Jack decided it was time to try New York. Patti still wasn't burning with ambition. ("Although I was making a lot of money — $100 a week," she laughs.) During her Chicago stay she'd gotten married and she thinks if it had worked out she might have retired right then and there to home life, but "he was the wrong man," she sums it up.

In New York she auditioned for jobs she didn't get, got on a TV program with some other unknowns (who later turned out to be the Ames Brothers and George Shearing), went out on tour. While she was on the road, "Confess" was released and began to sell. Then Jack picked a number for her—"With My Eyes Wide Open"—and it was an overnight hit. Jack selects all of her numbers now; the biggest three have been "Mocking Bird Hill," "Tennessee Waltz," and "I went to Your Wedding."

★ ★ ★

FRANK and forthright, Patti tells you her records haven't sold as fantastically as the publicized claims.

"Nobody ever tells the truth about record sales," she says, "so when a singer's asked about her record she says it sold a million because some other singer said her record sold a million and she knows she did just as well." Patti's favorite is "Roses Remind Me of You" which didn't sell so well.

Another publicity bubble she burst was the one about the record company giving her a Cadillac with a horn that plays "Tennessee Waltz."

"I have a Cadillac but I bought it," she says, "and it doesn't have a horn like that because who'd want it?"

She really wanted a Lincoln Continental but by the time she could afford one they weren't being made. She lists that as her only material unfulfilled desire. Recently she built a home for her parents, loves to visit her family including her 18 nephews and nieces.

She admits she "loves spending money," is a "salesgirl's dream" because she buys more clothes than she can wear, and enjoys the things success has brought, "like being able to see places like Hawaii." On the road she travels with secretary Dorothy Birdoff and spends a lot of time going through the 500 or more amateur songs sent to her each week ("which don't mean much to me because I don't read music," she says). In New York she has her own TV show, likes to go to the theater but her social life consists mainly of "asking people over for dinner and sitting around watching television." One of her close friends is Rosemary Clooney. She finds it a little puzzling that big stars meet so few other big stars.

"Not long ago I was giving a dinner for a new performer and his manager said, 'What other celebrities do you know?' I said, 'Well, I know Perry Como but not well enough to ask him, and I know Milton Berle but I couldn't ask him.' So nobody came to the dinner."

Patti cannily invests in real estate and annuities and owns a music publishing company, although she hopes to be in business a long time. Her future ambitions are as vague as past ones.

"When people ask me am I going into movies or into this or that," she explains, "I always say, 'If it happens, it's wonderful.' But too many people plan on things that don't turn out. It's better if you don't plan."

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

THE other day I was talking about the hope that I have that throughout this country in the course of the next year we will be able to develop sufficient co-operation between the chapters of the American Association for the United Nations and all other organizations so that even when a group is in opposition to the U.N. or any particular U.N. activity, it will still be willing to hold a discussion meeting. The two sides of any question can then be heard with sufficiently open minds. If the disagreement is valid, some change can be recommended and worked out. On the other hand, if the disagreement is caused by opinion based on incorrect information, that can be proved to everyone's satisfaction.

I would particularly hope this would be the case when the Daughters of the Revolution and the American Legion are concerned. Both of these groups are composed of people who are fundamentally patriotic and I think there is value for the community as a whole in getting at the truth of the positions that are often inadequately stated and not understood, and therefore cause disagreement.

I REALIZE there are people who oppose the U.N. for reasons of pure self-interest, which have nothing to do with the reasons they put before the public. And there are some who honestly still believe that we can turn the clock back and live in isolation. But I think a broader understanding would be accepted if there is free and open discussion before an open-minded audience.

When I expressed my hope of achieving this co-operation at a meeting the other day, someone in the audience sent me a little verse, which you might like to read:

"He drew a circle and kept me out,
Heretic, rebel, a thing to flout.
But love and I had the wit to win,

I CAME DOWN to New York City on Sunday afternoon and had my grandson and his wife, who are back from their holiday in California, at dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davison, who are here from Paris on their holiday, also dined with us. Mrs. Davison, who was a French girl, loves America and has close family ties in this country.

Madame Petsch, the widow of an ex-member of the French Government who also has many ties in the United States is over here at present, so I feel that I am having a chance to get a little of the Paris atmosphere which I like to acquire even when I cannot be in that delightful city myself.

Designing Woman

No Need to Choose

By Elizabeth Hillyer

WHY choose between modern and Early American? It's easier all the time to slice off a share of the best of both styles at once.

As Modern grows lighter, airier and more graceful, it comes closer to the characteristics of the early American style.

Both styles take simple lines and show an appreciation of the natural beauties of woods. Both respect the requirements of easy care. New furniture in maple introduced at the recent Diamond Jubilee Furniture Exposition in Grand Rapids is designed to fit either modern or early American ideas.

Decorative backgrounds and accessories might be changed from one to the other or the two might combine.

New pieces might be added to a room full of furniture in either style. There's a newsworthy adaptability of the use of this furniture as well as its style.

Sketched here, for example, is a double dresser which may also be a junior buffet for the dining room. The tables and the chair belong in the living room as well as the bedroom.

MRS. V. J. "We've just painted the walls of our daughter's room yellow and I am making a white bedspread and curtains. What practical color should we repaint her chairs and table, and what color should a throw rug be?" Green with yellow and white makes a flowerlike color scheme for a young girl's room. Avoid a stock apple green and find a deeper, more practical shade but one that isn't too dull. Choose the rug first and match the paint to it.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Dear Martha:

MAY a widow of just a few short weeks say a few words to the many married and somewhat befuddled women who complain so bitterly of their lot. Sure, I know it's tough, but find a way to make the marriage work. Spend as much time trying as you do fussing. I had to keep trying for nearly 35 years, but as our daughter and I sat beside him and watched life go, I realized fully what being a wife really means and I knew I had done my work well. So stay with that man. He and the children are worth the effort. Just tell him as I told mine, it's "for better or worse until death do us part." So put a little sunshine into your daily life. MRS. S.

Thank you for your letter and the advice you give unhappy women who feel that all the joy has gone out of their lives and there is no chance to recall it. Often there is a chance, if we only have the courage to look for it. I once heard a friend remark that she hadn't realized how happy she really had been in her marriage until the day of her husband's funeral and she could look back over the rich and full years—years which had not been without their heartaches and worries. Too many of us lose the joy of the present in grasping hopefully for some future dream.

Dear Martha:

I'VE BEEN GOING with a boy for three or four weeks. Last week I stopped dating him because I met a boy I had formerly gone with, and started dating him again. My mother wants me to go back to the other one because she likes him better. Should I do what she says? WORRIED TO DEATH.

This is one of the criticisms so many adults have of the teen-age custom of going steady. In this case, you were compelled to stop dating one boy because you started going with another. Knowing no more of the circumstances than you have told me, I can't say whether you should date one or the other—but I do think you should listen to your mother. She probably can give you some valid reasons why she prefers one over the other.

Hiring the Wife

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

IF a man is a good engineer, let's say, and is offered an important job, what difference does it make what sort of a person his wife is? Every difference in the world! Naturally, she needn't know anything about engineering, although she should be interested in the subject because it brings her her livelihood. But she does need to know all there is to know about being a good wife.

The plain truth is that in these days of high efficiency in hiring, firms engage not only men for their upper bracket jobs, but they also hire their wives and are almost as particular about the latter as they are about the men.

HERE'S WHAT the personnel manager of a large corporation had to say on the selection of employes:

"You know perfectly well, Dr. Popenoe, that most of the men and women fired from jobs are not laid off because of lack of ability, but because of faults of personality. It's just the same with hiring them in the first place. If I want a man for an important position I study his personality thoroughly. I give him a battery of tests. Then I send an assistant to his home to interview his wife."

"Do you find that wives are frank in telling you the good and bad qualities of their husbands?" I asked him.

"We don't ask them about their husbands. We ask them about themselves. If a man is going into an executive position, we want him to be permanent, to keep moving up. If he fails, his wife is often the real cause. So we don't ask the wife whether her husband is a good man. We ask her whether she likes this city; whether she enjoys living in this neighborhood; whether her children are getting along well in school; whether she has a circle of congenial friends; whether she and her husband have a satisfactory social and recreational life . . ."

★ ★ ★

"THAT SOUNDS LIKE a marriage counselor interviewing one of his clients," I interrupted.

"There's not so much difference as you might think," he replied, as he pulled a clipping out of his pocket. "Here's what Dale Houghton, professor of marketing at New York University, says. He's a top man in our field. He says these are the things that make a man lose his chance for a good job:

"1. Frequent changes in home address in the last five years.

"2. Indebtedness—exclusive of a mortgage on his home—of such an extent that he can't pay it off normally within two years.

"3. Too high a previous income, so he and his wife will be continually dissatisfied.

"4. Failure in his own business in the past.

"5. Divorce or separation at the time he applies for a job.

"We feel the same way about it. We want a man who has a good wife—a happy, stable wife who believes in her husband and will back him up. A husband's success in getting or keeping a job often depends not on himself but on his wife—and it would be a mighty good thing if a lot more wives remembered that. Tell 'em, Dr. Popenoe."

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

"MONEY in Your Pocket" is the intriguing title of a booklet by the Institute of Life Insurance, telling how to make the most of your allowance . . . so you'll have enough folding stuff for the things you want.

Thrift, it says is good management of money—not penny-pinching. You can spend your money and have fun as you go along and yet have something for future needs, it points out.

How? By dividing your allowance or money that you earn into two classifications:—"Have to" and "Want to" spending. Like this:

1. Out of your allowance or money that you earn, there are certain "have to's"—things that you have to spend money for and can't avoid. They usually include Scout dues, maybe school lunches, bus fares, possibly your share of team expenses or club dues, contributions to school or church activities. Pay these first. Then they're taken care of and off your mind.

2. Money left from "have to's" can be spent on "want to's." But the way to get the most out of the money you can spend is to ask your self, "What do I want to do most with my money? Am I spending it on something I'll want and be glad I have a month or a year from now? Is it something I'll remember later as worth the money I spent on it?" If you really give it a little thought and are honest in answering yourself, you'll manage your money sensibly, spending it on worthwhile things you really want.

3. Once you get your "want to" spending figured, pay for it in regular installments—and make those installments "have to's." Save a dime, a quarter, a dollar a week, depending on what you've got. Stick to the schedule and don't let any temporary "want to" spending upset it.

Tallulah's Autobiography

Spectacular Step, but in Wrong Direction

Miss Bankhead Gets Fired for Stifling Impulsiveness During Rehearsal; Gets Other Roles

By Tallulah Bankhead

THE curious may be muttering, "What about your love life, honey chile? If you were as beautiful as your partisans insist, as magnetic as you hint, as provocative and heretic as you boast, why, at 17, weren't you head over heels in love?"

It's a fair question. The truth is I was too scared to fall in love. My family, without laying undue stress on penalties, had hinted that New York was booby-trapped with enticements for young girls, particularly young girls who sought advancement in so loose a profession as the theater. I had been hedged in with chaperones, with a grandmother and aunts who still looked upon me as a child—as indeed I was. One false step and I might be withdrawn from the tournament.

And of course you've heard, I am sure, about Tallulah, the toper. Let's face it, my dears, I have been tight, but I'm no toper. In all my years in the theater, I have never missed a performance because of alcoholic wounds. I have never skidded into the footlights through confused vision. No curtain has been prematurely lowered on a play of mine.

Before we pursue this subject further, it might be wise to define intoxication. If you wake up in bed with your hat on, it's my guess that you had been addled on retirement. A friend of mine given to over-indulgence was horizontal for 10 hours in his derby. It was three months before the ring on his brow faded.

Joe E. Lewis, the night club cut-up, heads another school of thought. It's Joe's conviction that you're sober until, lying flat on the floor, you have to hang on to avoid falling.

Of the mots coined to fit my deportment when on a slight rampage of goodwill, the most acid and accurate dropped from the lips of Dorothy Parker. A party tosser of talent, Miss Parker tossed off a shindig in tribute to Edie Smith, my secretary and confessor, shortly after my escape from Hollywood in the early '30s. I made the mistake of taking a few nips before I got to the arena. I distracted the guests with backbends, cartwheels and monologue. Miss Parker was in the kitchen, when George Cukor, gentleman and diplomat, decided that in the interest of tranquility I should go home. Shortly after our departure, Miss Parker came out of the kitchen, looked about, then said sweetly: "Oh, has Whistler's mother gone home?"

BUT let's get back to the theater.

A veteran of six stage performances, two silent pictures and some pantomine in "The Squab Farm," my confidence soared, for reasons that are obscure. I had been loitering about the Algonquin for two weeks—when I was tapped for the leading role in "The Hottentot." I was to play opposite Willie Collier, one of the great comedians of his time, and with Ann Andrews, an experienced and beautiful actress. I'm not quite sure how I got the assignment. But I am not confused about how I lost it.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD, AS SHE LOOKED AT 16, WHEN SHE FIRST INVADED BROADWAY DETERMINED ON A CAREER AS AN ACTRESS.

It was a farce about horse-racing. At its climax I was to grow hysterical as another actor described the running of an off-stage sweepstakes. I never had a chance to get hysterical. Collier, Ann Andrews and Donald Meek dawdled through their roles the first two days of rehearsal. They read seated at a table facing the director. A quick study, as we say in the trade, I was letter-perfect in my part a week before rehearsals started. An eager beaver! In view of the casual approach of the others I hesitated to cast my part aside lest they think me a show-off. Part in my hand, I read badly, suffered occupational pains and disorders. I wanted to get on my feet and root the winner home.

I stifled my impulsiveness. After all, I had the leading feminine role. And I was getting $200 a week. That was as much as Daddy was making in the House of Representatives. After two days' rehearsal I was knocked flat when the stage manager handed me my notice. It read in part:

"Dear Miss Bankhead: We are very sorry but we don't think that your voice is strong enough for the part." It was signed by Sam H. Harris.

HERE it's February of 1920, and I'm at liberty again. To steal a line from James Thurber, I had taken a spectacular step, but in the wrong direction.

It was through Alex Woollcott that I won my first citation as a wit. Aware of my concern with the stage, Alex asked me if I would like to attend an opening night performance. Would I? I'd have attended any performance with anyone. The opening was Maeterlinck's "The Burgomaster of Stilemonde," one of the Belgian's minor inventions. At the end of the first act I turned to my escort to say, "There's less in this than meets the eye."

I wasn't aware I'd said anything devastating, but the next morning the comment was repeated in Woollcott's review in The Times. It was attributed to "the beautiful young woman who accompanied me." This item gave me considerable prestige among those jesters who took such delight in ridicule of their peers, even their betters.

Next I got a part in "Footloose," by Zoe Akins, which was a four-week flop, but it added to my experience. In Emily Stevens it had one of our finest actresses. When I was summoned for rehearsal in "Nice People" in April of 1921, it was over three years since first I stormed New York. Over that span I had received 11 weeks' salary.

"NICE People" was by the Rachel Crothers who had misread my tears when I was trying to wriggle in "39 East." It was produced by Sam Harris. In it I played Hallie Livingston, "23, beautiful in a large and brilliantly blonde way, who sips her Scotch whisky with a slow and self-centered enjoyment indicative of her general psychology." Katharine Cornell was Eileen Baxter Jones, "dark and piquant, frankly impertinent and wholesomely lovable."

"Nice People" was no great shakes as a play. How many good plays do you get in a lifetime? Three, if you're one of fortune's pets. Successful plays? That's something else again. The most successful plays are commonly trashy. "Nice People" gave me employment for 20 weeks.

I left "Nice People" before it finished its run. Miss Crothers had written a new play for me: "Everyday." She let me recess that I might rest a week before rehearsals.

The critics found "Everyday" something south of Shakespeare or Sheridan. All save Woollcott. "Here is the beauteous Tallulah Bankhead quite justifying her choice for the central role," he wrote in the Times.

The demise of "Everyday" started me on a chain of vacations. When Kathlene MacDonnell came down with the croup or something I replaced her in "Danger." Save for this pinch-hit, I was idle until the fall of 1922 when I impersonated Rufus Rand in "The Exciters," a comedy which belied its title. It succumbed to popular disapproval after five weeks. Percy Hammond identified it as "a delirious charade," then caressed me. "Few actresses can portray more convincingly than Miss Bankhead the difficult part of a pretty girl. 'The Exciters' provides her with several handsome spasms of neurosis," he crooned.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"Which Way the Wind Is"

WHEN Charles Reade, the popular dramatist of the last century, wrote in his beloved "Cloister and the Hearth" that "Such straws of speech show how blows the wind," he employed a metaphor made famous over two centuries earlier. Then John Selden, the English Jurist, writing in his celebrated "Table Talk," on the subject of libel, remarked, "Take a straw and throw it up into the air—you shall see by that which way the wind is, which you shall not do by casting up a stone. Solid things do not show the complexion of the times so well as ballads and libels."

This rhetorical use of "the wind" to represent the state of affairs or a state of being, goes back almost 600 years in English literature. It is not especially an agricultural expression, as our correspondent suggests it might be, stemming from the countryman's sizing up his prospects for weather. On the record, it has had application of very wide scope, from the metaphor's first recorded use (1374) in Chaucer, 'What manner winds guideth you now here?" Chaucer later made reference to "Tell him tidings how the wind was went!" With Shakespeare it was "Sits the wind in that corner?" And so on, to the metaphor's extension to the "straws of speech" which show "how blows the wind."

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1.

YES, because the temptations to "go overboard" are far more numerous. Vastly more young people go on drinking parties, and this practice is always dangerous. Yet, the Sex Knowledge Inventory devised by psychologist Gelolo McHugh, Duke University, shows an appalling ignorance of the most commonplace facts of sex. The majority of young people still get their knowledge of the subject either in the alley or from friends.

Answer to Question 2.

Dr. Charles Ullman, U.S. Public Health Service, says that when teachers pick pupils who need psychological counsel, they pick 8 out of 100, but these are often not the ones most in need of counsel. They usually pick four boys and one girl because the former are restless, over-active and manifest sex interests but may be perfectly normal. Teachers often overlook the quiet, polite child who frequently needs help most. A psychiatrist or clinical psychologist in every school is the best solution.

Answer to Question 3.

Yes, in a sense, if given training, according to the results from tests by psychologist Paul E. Fields. He placed strawberry ice cream behind one of a row of six advertisements picturing a pretty girl, a baby, etc. The rats soon learned to run along the row and jump through the pasteboard behind which the ice cream was placed. When the position of the advertisement was changed, the rat could instantly pick it out. Some people might not do as well.

NORTH'S "sacrifice" in the following hand turned out much better than he hoped.

East dealer

	♠7543 ♥A98432 ♦QJ8 ♣—
	♠J ♥65 ♦AK10973 ♣J832

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♣	1♦	1♠	2♥
3♣	Pass	4♠	5♦
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the spade king, but when the dummy was spread he quickly shifted to clubs—his sound idea being to force a trump from dummy and in that way prevent the establishment of the long heart suit.

Dummy ruffed the club lead, and South made the good play of a low heart from the board. East put up the queen and, following his partner's tacit suggestions, led a high club to force another ruff.

This was good defense, as far as it went, because if East had returned anything except a club, declarer would have controlled the lead, cashed the heart ace and ruffed a heart high, then drawn trumps, ending in dummy, and run the hearts. But with dummy's trumps reduced to one, it was hopeless to establish the heart suit—there would be no way to reach it. So South ruffed a spade, then ruffed another club with dummy's last trump, ruffed a second spade, and ran off every trump.

The last trump lead completed a double squeeze. Dummy was now down to one spade and the ace-nine of hearts. If West had had two hearts he would have been forced to discard one in order to keep a high spade. Actually, however, it was East who felt the pressure. Forced to hold a high club to guard South's jack, East had to let go a heart, and thereupon South cashed the ace and nine of hearts for the fulfilling tricks.

Today's Question.

"Is it ever wise to pass a hand containing three aces?"

Answer: Yes, if there is no five-card suit. However, this does not mean that an opening bid on three aces is wrong.

St. Louisans On Winter Vacations

THE season for late winter vacations is in full swing and St. Louisans are departing for trips and returning from holidays in ever-increasing numbers. Leaving St. Louis today will be Mr. and Mrs. Marion W. Niedringhaus, 9445 Ladue road, who will fly to Tucson, Ariz., to spend two weeks at a nearby ranch. Returning last Saturday was Mrs. William Maffitt Bates, 25 Upper Ladue road, who traveled in Mexico for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Pflager, 47 Westmoreland place, are in New York this week. Before returning home they will go to Lakeville, Conn., to see their son, Henry B. Pflager Jr., who is a senior at Hotchkiss School there. In Palm Beach, Fla., are Mr. and Mrs. Leo F. Ready, 601 South Price road, Ladue. Mrs. Ready has been there since Thanksgiving and will remain until Easter. Mr. Ready spends part of his time there and part in St. Louis.

Also in Florida are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belz, 53 Portland place, who departed last Friday for Miami Beach to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Pershall of Robertson, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Belz are expected home about the middle of the month. The Pershalls are entertaining two other St. Louisans, Mr. and Mrs. George Hannaway, 15 Hortense place, who left here last Thursday.

Among others vacationing in the South will be Mr. and Mrs. Wayne A. Lee, 4954 Lindell boulevard, who will depart soon for Palm Beach to spend six weeks at The Breakers. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Phillips, 52 Ridgetop drive, Richmond Heights, left here yesterday bound for Mount Dora, Fla., on a two-week holiday.

In Colorado Springs, Colo., are Cpl. and Mrs. Lee Allen Wolff. Cpl. Wolff returned to this country Jan. 22 from Korea where he served nine months with Gen. James A. Van Fleet's Honor Guard. He was in St. Louis on a three-day leave before motoring with his wife, the former Miss Joanne Dazey Draughon, to Colorado to await his discharge from the Army at Camp Carson. They will return home, probably next Monday, and will live at 1339 McCutcheon road, Richmond Heights.

Dooley-De Pirro Wedding Plans

MRS. THOMAS A. DOOLEY JR., of the Montclair apartments, 18 South Kingshighway, departed today for Brooklyn, N. Y., where she will attend the marriage, Saturday, of her son, Lt. Malcolm William Dooley of the Air Force, to Miss Gabrielle Marie de Pirro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew de Pirro.

The wedding is scheduled for 11 o'clock in the morning and will take place at St. Jerome's Church, Brooklyn. The Rev. Laurence Broughal, former instructor of Lt. Dooley's at the University of Notre Dame, will come from Princeton, N. J., to officiate. Subsequently there will be a reception at the Commissioned Officers' Club of the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

The prospective bridegroom's brother, Edward M. Dooley, who has been home on mid-semester vacation from John Carroll University, Cleveland, also left St. Louis today. He will go back to the university for registration, and on Friday will join the group in Brooklyn. His brother, Thomas A. Dooley III, a senior at St. Louis University Medical School, plans to leave here the end of the week, also to be in New York on Friday. He will be his brother's best man, and Edward will be an usher.

Among pre-wedding parties which Mrs. Dooley will attend will be the rehearsal dinner the night before the wedding to be given at the Officers' Club. The prospective bridegroom's mother will remain in the East a week to 10 days.

MRS. ROBERT TRUMAN SMITH . . . TO BE MATRON OF HONOR.

Kirkwood

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD NEAL KENNEDY will arrive a week from tomorrow from Indianapolis to visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion H. Swaim, 330 Oakley lane. Mr. Kennedy will return home Feb. 15 but his wife will remain through the next week. Mrs. Swaim is planning a luncheon in honor of her daughter, the former Miss Jeanne Swaim, during the second week of her visit.

★ ★ ★

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rowe, Lindbergh boulevard, returned last weekend from their winter home at Coral Gables, Fla. With them were their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cerny of Eureka. Leaving this week for the resort are the Rowes' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Doris, 7 Maret drive. They will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gauss of Chicago.

Mrs. Doris will remain in Coral Gables after her husband and their guests return north around Feb. 15. Other visitors expected this month are Mr. and Mrs. Rowes' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Rowe, Lindbergh boulevard.

The senior Mrs. Rowe will make a second visit to Coral Gables in March, accompanied by her grandchildren, Lee and Lynn Doris. With Mrs. Doris they will stay in Florida until the end of March.

★ ★ ★

MRS. WILLIAM KIRKPATRICK is here from Akron, O., spending two months with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Smith, 425 Parkwood avenue. Arriving Saturday for a 10-day visit will be the Smiths' son and daughter-in law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith, and their young son, Douglas Jr.

★ ★ ★

Elizabeth Sanders Guild of Grace Episcopal Church will have its annual pre-lenten dance Friday night at the parish house. Dancing will start about 10 o'clock after cocktail parties given by various guild members.

"A platter party" is the theme of the dance. A well-known disc jockey will serve as master of ceremonies. Guests will come dressed as their favorite records.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Prough are chairmen of the committee. Serving with them are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Nice, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moore, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hencken, Mr. and Mrs. James Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Scott.

Diane Carling To Be Married In Mid-April

HAVING announced their engagement last month, Miss Diane Stoner Carling and William Boff Barnes have selected April 18 as the date of their marriage. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Stoner Carling, 37 Picardy lane, Ladue, who after the service at high noon at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, will be hostess at a reception at the St. Louis Woman's Club. Officiating at the ceremony will be the Rev. Dr. William H. Laird.

Although wedding plans are only partially complete, Miss Carling has asked Mrs. Robert Truman Smith (Eleanor Richards Cunliff), to serve as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will include Mrs. John Joseph Sheehan (Ann Yeatman Carr), Miss Charlotte Crow, and Miss Janis Woodruff, Grosse Pointe, Mich., former classmate of the prospective bride at Bennett Junior College, Millbrook, N.Y. Miss Woodruff visited in St. Louis the Christmas of 1949 when Miss Carling made her debut at the Woman's Club.

Mr. Barnes, a lieutenant in the Air Force Reserve, is the son of Mrs. George Barnes, 7919 Delmar boulevard, University City, and the late Mr. Barnes. His attendants, together with a list of pre-wedding parties, will be announced later.

★ ★ ★

MR. AND MRS. MILTON L. RAND, Ballas road, St. Louis county, will depart Feb. 28 for Milwaukee where she will serve as matron of honor at the wedding of Miss Sally Hammond and George Wells. Mrs. Rand and Miss Hammond were roommates at Wellesley College.

★ ★ ★

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Illig, 800 South Meramec avenue, Clayton, are spending three weeks at Paradise Inn in Phoenix, Ariz. Leaving here Jan. 25 they went to Denver, accompanied by Mrs. Illig's mother, Mrs. A. J. Murphy, whom they left there with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy.

Dolores Mejia Plans February Wedding

A BRIDE of Feb. 14 will be Miss Dolores Marguerite Mejia, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn Mejia, 7387 Lindbergh drive, Richmond Heights, whose marriage to Robert Nelson Barnes will take place at 10 o'clock in the morning at the Church of the Little Flower, Richmond Heights. The Rev. James F. Flood will officiate, after which the wedding party, members of the immediate families and a very few close friends will attend a breakfast at Le Chateau.

Attendants at the wedding will include the bride's aunt, Mrs. Eileen H. Anderson, matron of honor; Mrs. Donald R. Norwine, a former St. Louisan now living in Springfield, Ill., and Miss Betty Jane Wehrli, bridesmaids. Mr. Barnes, son of Mrs. Albert G. Lincoln, 2920 Manderley drive, Brentwood, will have his brother, John L. Barnes as best man. Ushers will be William T. Dolan, Warren D. Donnell, William R. Bergen Jr., and Richard P. Milligan.

Pre-wedding parties for the bride-elect began last Thursday with the spinster dinner given by Mrs. Harry G. Hurst at her home, 1244 Moorland drive, Richmond Heights. Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. O. J. Lenhardt, of Fredricktown, Mo., another aunt of the prospective bride, were hostesses at a shower Sunday held at Mrs. Anderson's home, 4950 Parker avenue. Among other parties, details of which are not complete, will be a kitchen shower arranged for Saturday by Miss Wehrli, 7317 Lohmeyer avenue, and Mrs. Norwine, at the former's home.

Powers Cover Girl

I have always insisted that my models have a clear, flawless complexion. As I tell them, no matter how artfully you apply your make-up, you can never disguise an unhealthy skin that's clogged with impurities.

When I checked into the individual cleansing methods my models use, I was amazed to learn how many of them were actually aggravating their skins with improper cleansing. And they were not to blame. There simply was no perfect skin cleanser available. Many of the products offered were heavy creams that pulled tender, sensitive skin out of shape in applying and removing.

That is why I went to work with skin specialists and cosmetic technicians to develop a truly scientific method of skin care that would clean and soothe the skin . . . encourage a fresh, radiant complexion.

Fast working—easy to apply
It had to be quick and simple, because busy models rush from one camera appointment to another and complete changes of make-up are often required. It had to be thorough-cleansing, because a model's face is literally her fortune, and the camera shows every flaw. This led to the discovery and perfection of John Robert Powers Fluid Cleansers (one specially for dry, sensitive skin; another for oily "problem" skin). These remarkable Fluid Cleansers whisk away make-up and grime in a jiffy . . . leaving skin fresher, cleaner than ever!

A penetrating cleanser
And this is most important: there are no pore clogging waxes or fillers in Powers Fluid Cleansers. Nothing to hamper the corrective and beautifying work.

Instead, Fluid Cleanser finds its way to hidden depths in your skin . . . penetrating as no thick substance can. This pore-deep action frees your skin of particles of grime, letting the pores close naturally. Your skin will be cleaner than ever before—really clean for the first time! And oh, how soft and smooth your face will feel!

Regular daily use of your Powers Fluid Cleanser will reduce skin bacteria which cause common skin eruptions. This should be reason enough to convert you to faithful use of Powers Fluid Cleansing Treatment.

Normalizes skin-surface acidity
But there's still more! These fabulous Fluid Cleansers contain a special ingredient that "normalizes" surface acidity in the skin . . . works to free your face and throat of embarrassing wrinkles and lines. Why ever be satisfied with any other cleanser when you get all these extra advantages in John Robert Powers Fluid Cleanser?

Both types of John Robert Powers Fluid Cleansers come in a handsome, clear fluted glass bottle you'll be proud to have on your dressing table. And the measured-flow opening makes it easy to "tip out" just enough Fluid Cleanser each time.

Satisfaction guaranteed
Fluid Cleanser for Dry Skin costs only $1.50, Fluid Cleanser for Oily Skin, just $1.25. Their natural companion, Fluid Freshener, $1.10 (prices plus tax).

Get your complete Fluid Cleansing Treatment at the John Robert Powers Cosmetic Counter. If not thoroughly pleased return unused portion for purchase price refund.

Spring Fashions

Silk serge and needlepoint silk with tiny smooth but interesting background weaves rival faille, barathea and taffeta in the designer collections for spring. The coat dress and the dress and jacket costume, which are Easter favorites, use these silks effectively. Several of the newest of the crisp silk coats are lined with sheer wool, presenting an interesting reversal of the usual coat fashion consisting of wool exterior and silk lining.

Noteworthy Trends

Brigance, recognized for the interesting way he handles brilliant floral materials, presents cotton play and swim suits of bold poppy, rose and masturitum patterns. Gold fish and tropical fish against white net grounds also are striking among the designs of fabrics. The co-ordination of two different prints such as a colorful basket weave with leaves is noteworthy. Effective for suits and dresses is a pale blue seashell print on a white ground. The material is cotton with a glazed surface.

Dual Roles

The woman whose money is limited thinks about her wardrobe carefully, and is interested especially in costumes that play a dual role. With this thought in mind, Melba Hobson has designed a collection of "separates" that make up a complete wardrobe. Featured are clothes for travel made of basic flannel and wool jersey. Trimming is significant from the fashion standpoint including jet, linen and white angora. The brief jacket is regarded as one of the most indispensable items. Navy flannels and pastels along with richly textured knitted jersey make use of the jacket idea.

When you are buying a covered roaster for holiday fowl, make sure that the roaster has good handles. For open-pan roasting, any kind of pan large enough for the meat and deep enough to hold the drippings may be used. A pan about 14 by 10 by 2 inches is a good size for most roasts.

IN GENERAL MOTORS
BETTER HIGHWAYS AWARDS CONTEST
162 Awards, Totaling $194,000
Contest does not close until Midnight, March 1

ALL over the country all kinds of people are busy writing out their answers to one mighty important question:

"How to plan and pay for the safe and adequate highways we need"

They have their copy of the contest FACTS BOOK with the rules, the entry blank, and the basic information needed to get started. And they've settled down to the very worth-while job of putting on paper their ideas on how to solve the highway problem.

But—with practically a month still to go before the contest closes midnight, March 1, 1953—there's still time for you to get your FACTS BOOK and go after one of those big prizes.

You don't need to be an experienced writer. The contest is judged only on the originality, sincerity and common-sense workability of the plan you write.

You don't need to be an engineer or a traffic expert. You do have to do some thinking and some fact finding. The free GM FACTS BOOK will give you a good start on both.

And any resident of the U.S. can enter—except, of course, the judges and their families.

So—if you aren't already working on your answer—better get that FACTS BOOK today.

GET FREE FACTS BOOK FROM ANY GM DEALER

Facts Books, containing complete contest rules, entry blank, and important information, are available in these help-yourself displays at your nearest Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, Cadillac, GMC Truck or Frigidaire dealer.

Or you can get one by writing General Motors Better Highways Awards, General Motors Building, Detroit 2, Michigan.

WE speak of Venus as the closest planet to the earth, but it is close only in a sense of the word. At certain times it has a distance of 26,000,000 miles. When it is on the other side of the sun from the earth, the distance tween the two planets runs as high as 160,000,000 miles.

★ ★ ★

WE HAVE PLENTY of food in the rocket, and all on board are friendly folk. We play games, including chess and checkers, during some of the hours. Our checkers, and the chess men as well, are made of iron, and the boards are magnetic. Magnetism takes the place of gravity in our rocket.

In answer to the requests of several persons, Prof. Huffer gives a short talk about Venus, saying:

"This planet has been called the twin sister of the earth. The two planets are almost the same size, but Venus is a little smaller.

"The gravity on Venus is about 85 per cent of that on earth. A boy who weighs 80 pounds on the earth would weigh about 68 pounds on Venus.

"VENUS MAKES an average speed of 22 miles a second during its trip around the sun. That trip takes 225 days, which means that a year on Venus lasts about seven and a half months, as we count time on earth."

Talking, playing and sleeping, we pass the days, and then we gain the most beautiful sight of Venus ever seen by human eyes. At a distance of only 100,000 miles, we see the bright and glorious planet, which looks several times as wide as the moon looks from the earth.

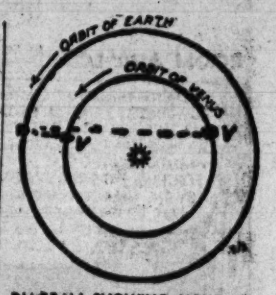

DIAGRAM SHOWING HOW, AT ONE POINT IN HER ORBIT, VENUS CAN BE FOUR OR FIVE TIMES AS FAR FROM THE EARTH AS AT ANOTHER POINT.

Murder' she yelled

By Joseph Shallit

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

BREAKFAST over the next morning, I was still feeling queasy about the letdown I'd gotten from Dave Fields, but everything around High Hill had a strong urge to get back to normal.

The dining room waiters were planning a water carnival, some girls were getting up a bicycle outing. But I sat beside Al Kemmer's desk and stared at his chair. And it was as if in a dream that Kitty Lane appeared and silently moved to his chair and sat down in it.

"First thing, I want to go over the financial records," she said. "Where are the bank statements and things like that?"

I stood up, I walked around, prodding my brain into motion. There was something wrong about all this. Weren't there formalities that had to happen first—probate, court order?

But I knew a phone number that would give me a quick answer to all that. "Excuse me, Kitty, I'll be back in a couple of minutes," I said.

I walked across to the rec hall and went upstairs to the phone booth. I put in a long distance call to Alex Craige, an old high school classmate of mine who had become a well-heeled Philadelphia lawyer.

"Some free legal advice, if you have a moment," I said.

"Shoot, chiseler."

"Is there such a thing as an oral will?"

"There is. A noncupative will."

"What's that mean?"

"It's not written down." Lawyers have to talk technical even when they're not getting paid for it."

"I'll tell you the situation. A man—call him Mr. A.—is critically injured. He's never made out a will. Just before he dies, he tells Mr. B. he wants the estate to go to some third party. Now, what do you have to do to make that legal?"

"Is anybody present beside Mr. B.?"

"No."

"For a noncupative will to be valid, there have to be two witnesses. Furthermore, the amount of the bequest can't exceed $500. At least, that's the law in this state."

"Then who gets the man's property if those conditions aren't met, and there aren't any known relatives?"

"The good old Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, son."

★ ★ ★

"Search me," I said.

"There must be a note of the combination somewhere."

I watched Kitty prowl around the room. I watched her lithe, firmly muscled arms. Yes, she could have handled that ax, I thought.

Al's behavior, the hints that he'd like to junk her, could easily have been enough to set her off. She would have brooded and fumed, and halfway through the night, she might have charged out of her room and hunted him down and bashed him—hitting Eddie to get him out of the way, or just accidentally. . . .

A hand slammed the desk. "Are you going to pay any attention to me?" Kitty yelped. "Do you want me to start my first day by firing you?"

It was too much. "You might as well hear it now as later. You're not the owner of this place. You're not inheriting a thing—not the fuzz on the grass."

I waited for the explosion. What came was a slow burning stare.

"I just phoned a lawyer friend of mine," I said. "He told me a word-of-mouth will won't stand up."

"Don't be silly. I just explained you're not boss around here. I think it'd be a better idea if you got out yourself — you're only messing things up. Why don't you go to your room and rest it off?"

Abruptly her face weakened. Part by part gave away—even her engraved eyebrows got a crumpled look. She lifted herself out of the chair. "I'll fix you for this."

And there was another question. A touchier one. A question that seemed to have been poking at me for some time without my paying attention: Why had it taken Eddie so long to report what Al had said?

It was a funny thing. Eddie hadn't said a word about it when Healey quizzed him the night of the beating.

★ ★ ★

I SNATCHED the phone off the window sill and called the hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Fields had already left, the reception clerk said.

"This is Sgt. Morrison—" I said, special investigator, State Police. I want you to look at your visitors' record."

"That's right," I snapped. "Yesterday's. Tell me the names of any visitors Mr. Fields had befor 2 p.m."

"I know that. Wasn't there anybody before that?"

"Oh, wait a minute—I'm sorry—someone did go up at 8:30 a.m. on a special pass. Katherine Lane."

"What?"
